VOL. XXXI. NEW YORK, JANUARY, 1900. No. 1

GUNNING BEDFORD, JR., SIGNER OF THE CONSTITUTION.

BY SAMUEL EUGENE PARKER.

GUNNING BEDFORD, JR., of Wilmington, Delaware, was the son of Gunning Bedford, whose father, who was also Gunning Bedford, came from England and settled at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1621.

Gunning Bedford, Jr., was born in Philadelphia in 1747. He graduated from Nassau Hall (now Princeton College) in 1771 with great distinction. Among his classmates were James Madison, who afterwards became President of the United States, and Hugh M. Breckenridge. He studied law in Philadelphia, and was admitted to the bar in 1779; he afterwards practised in Delaware with success, and was distinguished for his eloquence as an advocate, attorney-general, member of the Legislature of Delaware, and also member of Congress. He was one of the delegates to the convention that framed the Constitution of the United States, and it was through his efforts, together with those of other delegates, that two senators were obtained for the State of Delaware. He was also one of the signers of the Constitution of the United States from the State of Delaware.

In 1789 Bedford received from Washington the commission of first judge of the United States Court for the District of Delaware, which he held until his death. He conducted himself in such a manner in these high offices as to deserve and receive the approbation of his fellow-citizens. In the Federal Convention he denied the right of that body to change the principles of the Confederation. He boldly threatened an alliance of the small States with foreign powers if they were oppressed by the large ones, and declared the circumstances which would justify the small States in a foreign alliance; he also declared that the legislative power of Congress should be accurately defined. He opposed the conferring of the appointing power entirely upon the President. He preferred his executive term three years, and advocated the removal of the President by Congress, on the application of the States.

Miss Henrietta J. Bedford, daughter of Gunning Bedford, Jr., stated in her will that her father was an aide to General Washington. During the War of the Revolution Washington desired him to go from Trenton to New York on some important secret embassy at night, and fearing that he was not sufficiently armed with the pistols in his holsters, presented him with a pair of pocket pistols, with a view to his protection and greater security. These pistols were left to the Historical Society of Delaware by the will of Miss Bedford.

Judge Bedford married early, so early that on the occasion of his graduation at Princeton in 1771 his wife was present with their first child. His wife was Jane Ballarean Parker, the only daughter of James Parker, the colonial printer, of Woodbridge, New Jersey, first printer of New Jersey, editor of the Post Boy, published in New York, etc. Parker was apprenticed to William Bradford, and a fellow apprentice with Benjamin Franklin in Boston. The first silver dollar they each earned as apprentice boys in Boston they had converted into punch strainers, and each exchanged with the other. The punch strainer made from Dr. Franklin's dollar, and presented by him to James Parker, is among the valuable relics of the Historical Society of Delaware.

Mrs. Bedford is described as a lady of rare accomplishments and great intellect, whose grace and conversational powers contributed much to the advancement of her husband's home, and naturally gave her a leading place in the most cultured society of that day.

Judge Bedford's residence was at Wilmington; later, in 1793, he purchased a farm of 250 acres on the Concord Turnpike, Brandywine Hundred, being as described in the deed, "Pisgah, part of a large tract called New-work," near Wilmington. He renamed the place "Lombardy." The large and handsome stone mansion which he built on the farm is still standing; and there he made his home during the remainder of his life. Judge Bedford died March 30, 1812, his wife surviving him until 1831. Their issue were: Anna Maria, died unmarried; Gunning James, died unmarried, and Henrietta Jane Bedford, who also died unmarried August 13, 1871.

Henry C. Conrad, of Wilmington, in his "Sketch of Gunning Bedford, Jr.," says: "Judge Bedford was a Presbyterian in religion and usually worshipped in the building now occupied by the Historical Society of Delaware. His remains lie buried in the churchyard adjoining the First Presbyterian Church on Market Street, Wilmington; and I cannot more appropriately close this sketch than by quoting from the epitaph, which was written by William T. Read, and which appears on the handsome marble monument which was erected over his remains by Henrietta Jane Bedford, his daughter, in 1858:

BAXTER FAMILIES, GENEALOGY AND NOTES.

By James W. T. Scott, Philadelphia.

In 1631 several Baxter families, in order to better their condition and enjoy religious freedom, emigrated from Shropshire, England, to Massachusetts. At Salem they became acquainted with John Throckmorton, were excommunicated with him and went to Rhode Island, where one family remained. With Throckmorton two families settled in Westchester County, N. Y. In 1642 the Dutch authorities granted permission to Throckmorton and thirty-five families to settle within three leagues of the Manhattoes, and, July 6, 1643, gave him a patent for land at Vreland, Throgg's Neck. These dates fix a time for the Baxter arrivals in Westchester. In 1682 one branch of them moved to Bucks County, Pa., and took up land from William Penn. Mr. Isaac Jay Baxter, Peekskill, N. Y., has inherited a tradition that before the Revolution three brothers came from Europe, one of whom settled in Philadelphia, another back of Albany, and the third in Putnam County, N. Y. This legend has in the main been confirmed by research.

We begin the record with a short account of Thomas Baxter, yeoman, of Westchester, who does not appear to have been connected with either George Baxter, the Dutch governor's English secretary, or Thomas Baxter, at one time influential and apparently much esteemed, but in 1653 denounced by the Dutch authorities as a fugitive from the province and a pirate, or the Thomas Baxter who, in 1656, was a freeholder of Gravesend.

In the assessment roll, September 12, 1675, "Tom" Baxter is mentioned as having eight taxable domestic animals; in 1683, according to the "account of what the inhabitants of Westchester have given in to be rated this yeare," he had twenty-four acres, one horse, twenty cows, sheep and hogs; rate, eight shillings nine pence; in 1684, sold real estate; 1686, in Governor Dongan's second patent; 1692, in the Indian deed of Westchester; 1694, examined as to methods of tax collecting; 1696, an alderman by the charter and a juror in the Richbell case; 1696–7, called Thomas Baxter, senior, for the first time, in a deed for 250 acres on "Froggs" Neck; 1698, money advanced Captain Baxter's company at Albany; 1701, "Mr. Justice Baxter;" petitions the council about an assault upon him by the Hunts; 1702, a vestryman of St. Peter's Episcopal Church; 1703 and 1704, a trustee of Westchester; May 9, 1710–11, in a deed called captain. July 1, 1714, he made a will, proved at Westchester, July 2, 1715, witnessed by Miles Oakley, Thomas Haddens, and John Stephenson, naming his wife executrix, and sons-in-law John Palmer and Joseph Betts executors. The widow was given one-third of certain properties while she remained a widow, until James became nineteen years and four months old. May 1, 1720, when her share was reduced in his favor, but he was obligated to pay £190 current money of New York as follows: May 1, 1724, to Elizabeth, £60; May 1, 1726, Keziah Glover, £30; May 1, 1728, "Merriam," £50; May 1, 1730, Phebe, £50. If James died before twenty-one years old or without heirs Thomas and John were to have his share, subject to the following legacies: May 1, 1724, Elizabeth, £70; May 1, 1726, Merriam, £60; May 1, 1728, Phebe, £60; May 1, 1730, Mrs. Palmer, Mary Kinison, Abigail Betts, "Dorkas Tippett," and Keziah Glover, each £50; total, £440. An Indian named Jeffrey is mentioned in but not disposed of by the will. He appears to have been a slave.

Widow Rebecca Baxter's will was probated in 1736.

1. Thomas and Rebecca Baxter, of Westchester, N. Y., had:
   - 2. i. Thomas, born 1675.
   - 3. ii. John, born 1680 or 1684.
   - 4. iii. Abigail, Mrs. Joseph Betts, born 1687, was given land May 14, 1708. She was then a married woman.
   - 5. iv. Elizabeth, Mrs. Sands, born 1693, was deeded a negro boy slave July 1, 1714. Her will of June 4, 1759, probated January 15, 1760, left many legacies to relatives.
   - 6. v. Phebe, born 1698, in 1719 was given by her widowed mother the negress Diana.
   - 7. vi. Keziah, Mrs. Glover. By her mother's will, made in 1732 and probated in 1736, she was left a house to reside in during her lifetime.
   - 8. vii. Merriam (Mrs. Underhill Barnes?).
   - 9. viii. Mrs. John Palmer.
   - 10. ix. Mary Kinison.
   - 11. x. Dorkas Tippett.
   - 12. xi. James, born January 1, 1701.

   Which was "my daughter Drake" cannot be said.

   Except for James, birth dates are assumed as twenty-one years before the persons were given negroes or land "for love and affection."

2. Thomas Baxter, in August, 1696–7, was given fifty acres with £50 privilege commonage; 1705, in Daniel Turner's will called for the first time junior; 1715, of the Westchester militia and became senior by the death of his father; 1729, a freeholder and trustee of the town; 1741, when deeding land to his son Augustine, of Westchester, "of Dutchess county." His father's will gave him a "cane" and a "great chest." He was alive in 1732 and perhaps much later.

Thomas and Abigail Baxter had:

13. i. Thomas, born about 1699.
14. ii. Marcus, born about 1701.
15. iii. Augustine, born about 1703.

And perhaps other children.

13. Thomas Baxter was called junior, March, 1721–2, when deeded land by his father. Prior to September, 1723, he married Deborah Hunt. In 1779 Samuel Rodman's will says she is living on Munniford's Island. He is probably the Thomas Baxter of Pelletreau's Putnam County history, born about 1700, who had a son Thomas, born about 1735.

Thomas and Deborah Baxter had:

16. i. Thomas, born about 1735 on Throgg's Neck.
17. ii. Phebe, a legatee of Gilbert Hunt in April, 1760.

14. Marcus Baxter bought land from Hunt in 1724; 1726, sold real estate to James Baxter, of Westchester, and receipted for its pay in Newport, R. I.; 1737, registered at Westchester a cattle earmark, giving his home as Cortlandt Manor; 1757, noticed in Mrs. Elizabeth Baxter Sands' will; a Continental soldier during the Revolution; 1790, one of this name a pew-holder in Westchester Episcopal Church. He is said to have lived ninety years, and his wife, who was French, ninety-eight. Perhaps there were more children than the following:

22. i. Marcus, born Westchester, March 9, 1762, afterwards lived in Putnam County, died April 28, 1828.
23. ii. Gideon.

22. Marcus Baxter married his cousin Jemima Baxter. Their children were:

24. i. Anna, born August 19, 1786.
25. ii. Abraham, born May 23, 1788.
26. iii. Isaac, born March 28, 1790; died, Peekskill, August 10, 1829; a soldier of 1812.
27. iv. Phebe, born February 25, 1792; died December, 1826.
28. v. Jacob, born March 20, 1794.
29. vi. James C., born March 11, 1796; died October 3, 1840.
30. vii. Abigail, born May 30, 1798; died July 8, 1830.
31. viii. Thomas, born April 20, 1800; died August 19, 1819.
32. ix. John, born July 15, 1802; died November, 1832.
33. x. Jemima, born November 18, 1804; died March 6, 1855.
34. xi. Anar, born April 26, 1807; died 1860.
35. xii. Marcus, born August 27, 1809; died September 10, 1851.
36. xiii. Gideon, born December 3, 1812; died Kingston, Ulster County, April 18, 1886. He was named for an uncle in Dutchess County.

25. Abraham Baxter moved to Illinois. He had a son (37) William.

35. Marcus Baxter had three sons, (38) James Marcus, (39) Charles Henry, and (40) George Andrew, who migrated to Indiana.

23. Gideon and Ann Baxter, of Swartwoutville, now East Fishkill, Dutchess County, had:

41. i. Harriet, born in 1800; died, unmarried, 1864.
42. ii. George W., born in 1806; died, unmarried, 1863.

Digitized by Google

43. iii. Norris, who, late in life, married widow (Hasbrouck) Brackett. All are buried in Fishkill.

Gideon witnessed the will of Nicholas Bogart, of Beekman, in 1813.

15. Augustine Baxter, yeoman of Westchester, a cousin of Augustine Drake, took title to real estate in 1724. In 1731 a road to the ferry ran through his property. His wife's first name was Sarah. His will, dated March 24, 1760, mentions the following children, who appear to have been minors at that date:

44. i. George.
45. ii. Phebe.
46. iii. Elizabeth.
47. iv. Thomas, mentioned in Mrs. Sand's will June 4, 1759.
48. v. James, mentioned in Mrs. Sand's will, June 4, 1759.
49. vi. Frederick.
50. vii. Augustus.

Some of these young people became Tories and left with the British Army "at the peace." August 4, 1784, at Amherst, Nova Scotia, Frederick, Augustus, Phebe, and others, gave their friends Thomas and George Baxter, of Westchester, a power of attorney to collect legacies from Augustine Drake and Daniel Quimby; in 1787 Frederick and Augustus were in Westchester again and witnessed a deed. Mr. James P. Baxter, Amherst, Nova Scotia, writes, November 20, 1897, that his grandfather, Augustus Baxter, came from Long Island between 1782 and 1785, when about eighteen, with a brother George, who died, unmarried, after 1802, and an uncle Frederick. They were Loyalists. Augustus, originally a carpenter, took to farmimg and lived to be eighty-four. Frederick, who had been a soldier and received two hundred acres and an allowance, died, unmarried, at the age of ninety-six.

16. Thomas and Phebe Mabie Baxter are thought to have had one or two more children than the following:

18. i. Lebbeus, birthday unknown, is supposed to have migrated west.
19. ii. Solomon, born February 10, 1763, married June 22, 1788, ——, and had eleven children.

In 1790 a Solomon Baxter was a pew-holder in the Westchester Episcopal Church.

20. iii. Jemima, born March 17, 1767, married Marcus Baxter.
21. iv. Thaddeus, born June 6, 1771, married Hannah Cole, moved to Carmel, Putnam County, and has descendants in Cold Spring, opposite West Point.

3. John Baxter, yeoman, of Westchester, was deeded property on "froggs neck" by his father in 1701. He married Mary, daughter of Israel Honeywell.

His will, April 10, 1727, appointed Israel Honeywell and William Forster executors, and was witnessed by John Stevenson, a Quaker, who affirmed; Thomas Baxter, who swore on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, and Paul Dubois, whose particular method of testifying is not stated. The widow was given half the personal property and use of buildings, lands, and meadows after his debts were paid, in consideration of "her bringing up my children, so long as she remains a widow and no longer." John was given the Long Reach between Eastchester and Westchester, one-fourth the growing crops, and the Indian boy Bohenah. The other boys were to be apprenticed to trades, and it is therefore concluded that they were minors in 1727. The children of John and Mary H. Baxter were :

51. i. John, born about 1700 or 1706.
52. ii. Roger.
53. iii. Oliver.
54. iv. Israel.
55. v. Peracholus.
56. vi. Stevenson.
57. vii. Charity Stevenson, who was unmarried in 1732, when her grandmother Rebecca Baxter made a will which was probated New York, Dec. 22, 1736.

51. John Baxter inherited the Long Reach in 1727. In the deeds book at White Plains is an entry dated Westchester, June 1, 1742, signed John Baxter, receipting for £19 from Israel Honeywell in settlement of the latter's promissory note which had been lost or mislaid, December 24, 1744. Bazil Bartow and Nehemiah Hunt recorded that they witnessed the payment. No will of this John Baxter is registered in Westchester or New York. One of his name settled in Schoharie County by 1730, and was killed by Indians in his garden, now owned by Mr. Guy R. Beardslee, at East Creek, Herkimer County. Mr. B.'s grandmother, who lived from 1770 to 1855, remembered the tragedy, but whether from tradition or sight is not known.

It is assumed that here should follow as,

58. Captain John Baxter, who married Mary Schuyler in 1760, or earlier, and had :

59. i. Schuyler Baxter, born April 10, 1761, who died in the residence of his son-in-law, James M. Scott, Cincinnati, Dec. 5, 1843. While young his parents left him with relatives, went to Great Britain, and never returned. Years afterwards they died, leaving an estate about which he was notified, but made no effort to obtain. He had recollections of an "old uncle Israel" and a relative from Europe, who wore a long dress train when she visited him. At the close of the Revolution, he went from Fishkill to Cow Neck, Queens County, and married Penelope Dodge, a Quakeress, born May 17, 1767. An obituary in the Cincinnati Gazette says he received what was considered a good education for provincial days, volunteered in the American army, and was wounded at the battle of Brandywine. The children of Schuyler and Penelope Baxter were :

60. i. Sarah, Mrs. John Ebbetts of New York City, born Sept. 6, 1784.
61. ii. Isaac Bogart, born New York, June 25, 1786 ; died Philadelphia, Oct. 9, 1866.
62. iii. Fanny, Mrs. Seaman or Simmons, born April 13, 1788 ; died in Queens County about 1847, childless.
63. iv. Mitchell, born July 7, 1789 ; died unmarried at Norfolk, Va.
64. v. Samuel, born Dec. 21, 1792 ; died in youth.
65. vi. Margaret, born Oct. 18, 1794 ; died in youth.
66. vii. Violetta, Mrs. Jasper Vanderveer, born Oct. 8, 1796 ; died at Mott's Dock, Queens County, N. Y., April, 1879.

The yellow fever visited New York in 1797–8–9, and, during one of those years, Schuyler Baxter's wife died from it. At Flatbush, Kings County, May 22, 1800, he married his second wife, Miss Magdalen Bogart. Their children, all of whom were born in New York, were :

67. viii. Magdalen, born Aug. 16, 1801 ; died New York, Dec. 26, 1808.
68. ix. William Schuyler, born Feb. 16, 1803 ; married Miss Mary Anne O'Brien, and died childless, New York, Dec. 1, 1828.
69. x. Penelope, born Feb. 25, 1805 ; married James M. Scott, New York, Feb. 22, 1826 ; died Philadelphia, Nov. 16, 1855.
70. xi. Margaret, born, Aug. 27, 1807; married, first, Horace Bidwell, New York, September 7, 1825 ; second, Samuel Trevor, Cincinnati, May 24, 1848 ; died, New York, March 22, 1888.

THE "KING" FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

Compiled by George Austin Morrison, Jr.

In the course of several years' research after the English ancestry of Clement King, of Marshfield, Mass., much information was gained concerning several families of "King" more or less illustrious, which may be of value to many bearing the King name in this country. The facts and data herein digested were scattered through many manuscripts, publications, ancient pedigree charts, heralds' visitations, and family wills, and a great indebtedness should be felt to Mr. Rufus King and Mr. H. F. Waters for their zeal and labor in collecting the mass of memoranda dealing with the varied "King" families in New and Old England. That the compiler has been able to digest the within records is solely due to the courtesy of the above expert genealogists, not only in furnishing detailed information, but also in loaning him valuable charts, manuscripts, and records. Eight "King" pedigrees are herein compiled, viz.: Of Thame and Worminhall, Oxfordshire ; of Iver, Buckinghamshire ; of Stouton, Wiltshire ; of Steeple Cleydon, Buckinghamshire ; of Watford (2), Hertfordshire ; of Kings Langley, Hertfordshire ; of Wraysbury, Buckinghamshire. The first three bear the same arms, differenced in some slight manner, and are without doubt closely related, although the link of relationship leading to a common ancestor has not as yet been discovered. The Steeple Cleydon King family claim a kinship to, and the arms of, the Bishop King family, but this claim cannot be proved in any way, despite the statement of Rafe King, vintner, of Popes Head Ally, London, given 1633, to the contrary. That worthy was either deceived, or led astray the herald, at his visitation in 1633. It is to be hoped that the within pedigrees may call forth additional facts, criticisms, and corrections, for thus only can sound information be derived upon the debatable problems in family history and records.

The King Family of Thame and Worminhall, Oxfordshire.

The origin of this ancient and honorable family is lost in obscurity, but indications point to the counties of Devonshire, Northamptonshire, and, in one case, to Kent as the homes of the first who bear the name. Their arms are blazoned as follows : " King : of Devonshire and Torcester, Co. North: Sable, a lion rampant or, crowned argent, between three crosslets, or: crest: out of a ducal coronet or a demi-ostrich winged argent and beak of the first." The chart of descent runs as follows:

1. John[1] King, called yeoman and churchwarden of Thame in 1464, 1465, and 1469. The name of his wife is unknown, but the following children are given:

1. i. William,[2] born about 1450.
   ii. John,[2] vintner of Bicester, Co. Oxon, from whom the Kings of London claim descent.

2. William[2] King (John[1]), called yeoman, was born about 1450 at Thame, and was living in 1508. Name of wife unknown, but he had children as follows:

3. i. Robert.[3]
   ii. Thomas,[3] mentioned in his brother Bishop Robert King's will.
4. iii. William.[3]
   iv. A son,[3] name unknown, but mentioned in Bishop Robert King's will as another brother.

3. Robert[3] King (William,[2] John[1]) was a Cistercian monk in 1506; Lord Abbot of Bruerne, 1515, and Doctor of Divinity at Oxford, 1518. He was Abbot of Thame, 1527, last Abbot of Osney, and first Bishop of Oxford. On 15 April, 1535, he was Suffragan Bishop of Rheon to Dr. John Longland, Bishop of Lincoln. On 1 Sept., 1542, he was Bishop of Thame and Osney, and on 9 June, 1545, Bishop of Oxford. He died 4 December, 1557, and was buried in Christ Church Cathedral at Oxford, with the following inscription on his tomb: "Hic jacet Robertus Kyng, sacri theologie professor, et primus epus Oxon, qui obiit quarto die Decembris 1557." His will is dated 9 June, 1557, and in it he bequeaths to Edmond Kyng, 20 marks; to Arthur Kyng, £6 13*s.* 4*d.*; amongst the children of Thomas Kyng, £20; to Robert Cooke, £20. Brother Thomas Kyng and Cousin Robert Colmer and Dr. Wright to be executors. If there is any remainder I will it be divided to my other two brothers' children. To the poor of Thame town, 20*s.*; to Raffe Locke 40*s.*, and Nicholas Locke, 40*s.*

Commission issued forth 28 May, 1559, to Philip King and Edward King, nephews and next of kin, for the reason that Thomas King and Robert Colmer had died and Walter Wright renounced. Bishop Robert King is said to be descended from the ancient Kings of Devonshire. In the deed of surrender, dated 16 Nov., Henry VIII., 31 (i.e. 1540), the abbot styles himself: "Roburtus Kyng, Dei patientia Reonem epus, Abbasque Monasterii B'te Marie Virginis de Tayme in Com Oxon, cisterciens ordin." An imaginary representation of Robert King is executed in stained glass on one of the cathedral windows of Christ College, Oxford, in which he is shown with cope, alb, amice, mitre, gloves, and pastoral staff.

4. William[3] King (William,[2] John[1]) of . . . in Co. Devon, later of Thame and Worminghall, Co. Bucks: Gent. He married Anne, daughter of Sir John Williams, of Burfield (by his wife Isabell, dau. and coheir of Richard Moore, armiger), and sister of John, Lord Williams, and of Lady Joane Williams, Prioress of Studley, Co. Oxon. The only children known are:

   i. Robert,[4] sonne and heir.
5. ii. Edmond.[4]
6. iii. Philip.[4]

5. Edmond[4] King (William,[3] William,[2] John[1]), of Shabbington, Co. Bucks, later of Keynsham in Cadmoor End, Parish of Lewknor, Co. Oxon. His will is dated 8 Feb., 1606, and was proved 16 Oct., 1606. He married Joane, daughter of William Belson, of Brill, Co. Bucks, and had issue :

7. i. William.
8. ii. Thomas.
iii. Arthur.
iv. Martha, who married Edward Crouche, of Westoming, Co. Bedford.
v. Elizabeth, who married Robert Smith, of Bedford.
vi. Anne, who married John Parker, of Henley on Thames.
vii. Susan, who married John Rose, of Marlow, Co. Bucks.
viii. Mary, who married Henry Carter.
ix. Margaret, who married John Golding.
x. Ursula, who married —— Thomson, of London, draper.

6. Philip[4] King (William,[3] William,[2] John[1]), of Worminghall, Co. Bucks, was a page to King Henry VIII., and later in the service of John, Lord Williams, of Thame. He died 12 Jan., 1592, and was buried 14 Jan. at Worminghall. His will is dated 6 Jan., 1592, and was proved 11 June, 1592.

In it he bequeaths "to the parish church wherein my body shall be interred, 12*d.* To Anne King, mine eldest daughter, £40. To Elizabeth, Phillipa & Alice King, my daughters, £20 apiece. To Dorothie King, mine youngest daughter, 20 marks, all of which aforesaid sums of money I give unto them upon condition of their good behaviour and dutiful regard in each respect unto their mother to be performed. Philip and Thomas King, mine youngest sons, shall have towards their maintenance, by consent of their mother, the commodity of a hold within Wornall (sic) commonly called Campian's Hold yearly arising thereout and by equal portions betwixt my two foresaid sons to be divided. To Richard King, my second sonne, one yoke of oxen now pasturing and feeding in the grounds of Mr. Richard Conquest at Bedfordshire. To John Kinge, mine eldest sonne, a drinking cup garnished with silver and gilt, and to Henry Kinge, his sonne, a drinking measure garnished in the same sort. To Elizabeth, my wife, all the rest of my goods, etc., and I constitute and ordain the said Elizabeth the full and whole executrix, etc." He married Elizabeth, daughter of Edmund Conquest, of Houghton Conquest, Co. Bedf., Armiger. She was a sister of Sir Richard Conquest. Their children were as follows :

9. i. John, baptized 1560, at Worminghall, Co. Oxon.
ii. Anne.
iii. Richard, baptized 1562, Jan. 4.
iv. Elizabeth, baptized 1564, Feb. 12.
v. Philip, baptized 1566, Apl. 10, a graduate of Oxford. Was Auditor to the Dean & Chapter of Cathedral, Oxford.
vi. Alice, baptized 1567, June 20.
vii. Phillipa, baptized 1568, Oct. 23.
viii. Thomas, baptized 1570, June 11.
ix. Margery.
x. Dorothy, baptized 1572, Apl. 20.
xi. Edmund, baptized 1575, Oct. 3.

7. William[4] King (Edmund,[3] William,[2] John[1]), of Keynsham, at Cadmoor End, Parish of Leukenor, Co. Oxon, called "sonne & heir" in his father's will. Gen[t.] His will is dated 11 Jan., 1624, and was proved 6 July, 1624. Mentions wife Thomasin as executrix, and gives to her "the house called Keynsham, wherein I now dwell, so long as she shall live unmarried (with provisions for hedge bote, cart bote, plow bote, etc.). If she shall marry, then I give her only 20 marks a year after said marriage during her natural life and ⅓ part of a dwelling house, etc. To eldest daughter, Dorothy King, my said house called Kenshams for life, then to her sons, etc., in order next to her heirs female, remainder to my youngest daughter Elizabeth (with similar entailments), then to my right heirs. Daughter Dorothy's marriage to be with the good liking and consent of my said wife, Thomas King, my brother, and Richard Farmer, gentleman, or any two of them that shall be then living. My said wife to be executrix, and my brother, Mr. Thomas King, Richard Farmer, & Francis Quatremain, my loving kinsmen, to be overseers."

He married Thomasin, daughter of —— Sutley, of Ickford, Co. Bucks, and had issue :

i. Dorothy.
ii. Elizabeth.

BUTLER'S RANGERS.

By A. H. Van Deusen.

Sir Guy Carleton, September 15, 1777, furnished John Butler with "beating orders for the enlistment of eight companies, each composed of a captain, a lieutenant, three sergeants, three corporals, and fifty privates."

Two of these companies were to be formed of "people speaking the Indian language, and acquainted with their customs and manner of making war," and were to receive four shillings, New York currency, a day. The remaining companies, "to be composed of people well acquainted with the woods, in consideration of the fatigues they were liable to undergo" were to receive two shillings a day. The whole were required to clothe and arm themselves entirely at their own expense. This was considered extremely high pay, and it was subsequently estimated by General Haldimand that these eight companies of rangers cost the government as much as twenty companies of regular infantry.

By the middle of December (1777) the first company of rangers was completed, and Butler expected to form two more upon the return of his recruiting officers. Many of his best recruits were drawn from the east branch of the Susquehannah, where all persons suspected of loyalist leanings were keenly persecuted. A return of the corps in the spring of 1784 showed a strength of 469 men, 111 women, and 259 children. The regiment was finally disbanded in June, 1784. John Butler was born at

REPLY.

GREENE.—K. S. M., April, 1899, sent to "Notes and Queries" in THE RECORD, among other things, a request for the ancestry of William Greene, who died in Barnstable, Mass., 1746. On page 55, same volume, the Editor set forth that William Greene possibly married Elizabeth Warren, daughter of Nathaniel, the son of the "Mayflower" Richard. Now the record of Plymouth Births, Marriages, and Deaths published in the "Mayflower Descendant," Vol. 1, No. 3, page 146, shows "William Green sone to William Gren and Elizabeth his wife was born the 24th of April 1684," which corroborates THE RECORD, vol. xxx., page 55, as well as the family record of his death, "Jan. 28, 1756 aged over seventy." There can be no doubt that this is the parentage of William Greene who married Desire Bacon, and this also appears in the appendix, page 329, of Davis' "Ancient Landmarks of Plymouth," second edition, 1899.

ST. PETERS IN THE FIELDS, DROITWICH, ENGLAND
AND USNER HOUSE, BUILT IN 1618.

ST. PETER'S IN THE FIELDS, DROITWICH.

DROITWICH, Worcestershire, Eng., seven miles from Worcester, is one of the oldest and most interesting towns in that vicinity, especially to the large number of descendants of the Winslows, of whom Gov. Edward, and Gilbert, his brother, came on the "Mayflower" in 1620; Kenelm, in 1629; and John, another brother, came in the "Fortune," in 1623, and married Mary, daughter of James Chilton, of the "Mayflower" pilgrims. These four brothers were all baptized in the old church, still standing, called St. Peter's in the Fields. The present structure dates back to about the year 1500. The population is generally engaged in the salt works, which have always been its principal industry, and the Winslows are said to have acquired their wealth from this occupation in early times. The salt springs at this place were celebrated in very early times, and are mentioned in Domesday Book. The quality is said to be excellent, and the yield about 700,000 bushels a year.

The church records exist back only to the year 1560. The baptisms of the Winslows begin with Edward, 1595, Oct. 20; and include John, 1597, April 15; Kenelm, 1599, May 3; and Gilbert, 1600, Oct. 29. St. Peter's stands on the principal street. It was new in the time of Edward Winslow, the governor's father. It was built by John Abingdon, or Habingdon, whose son, Thomas, was unfortunately connected with the gunpowder plot. Edward Winslow, the father, and Magdalen were married at St. Bride's, London. Edward, the son, was married by Pastor John Robinson, in Leyden, Holland, to Elizabeth Barker, of Chetsum (Chester), Eng.; May 16, May 27, 1618; his brothers who came to America were all unmarried at the time of their emigration.

There is a tradition that the Winslow homestead was on the site of the manor house, shown in the view of the church. This is now occupied by Mr. Young, manager of the salt works. It was built in 1618. Nash, the historian, lived in it at one time. Over the fireplace in the dining-room is this inscription:

> "When you sit by this fire,
> Yourself to warm,
> Take care that your tongue,
> Do your neighbor no harm."

The present entrance to St. Peter's is by the little porch on the side. Over the door is the inscription, "Remember Lot's Wife," which seems to be more appropriate than a carving above the entrance of an old house in Droitwich, showing in stone a head with the mouth open, disclosing a toad. Within the memory of those living in Droitwich, there was a stone in St. Peter's to the memory of one of the Winslows, but it has disappeared. The church, in 1853, was fairly restored. Possibly interest in it, on account of the Winslows, may do for this church what the descendants of another pilgrim have done for the church at Austerfield. Droitwich was called by the Romans, Salinae. On the site of St. Peter's stood a church in the time of the Saxons, which was added to or altered at the Norman conquest, and the Saxon nave disappeared in King John's time. A south transept was erected in the time of Edward I., and one on the north in the time of Edward III. The tower was rebuilt in Henry VII.'s reign, and thus St. Peter's has come to be what it is to-day. Many will recognize it as a sacred shrine.

ONONDAGA COUNTY RECORDS—1784.

DURING the year 1784 no steps were taken by the State to locate the military claims. The large number of sales is probably due, however, quite as much to the poverty of the owners as to any demand on the part of buyers. In this year the State made a formal treaty of peace with the Six Nations, but did not purchase their lands.

Adams, James; soldier 1st Regt., illiterate, transfers to George Bartholomew and John Fisher. William Clark, William Orr, Jacob Foster, wits. Date, Feb. 23.

THE WOOSTER FAMILY.

By Holdridge Ozro Collins, of Los Angeles, California.

Abraham,[2] second son of Edward Wooster.[1] In 1696, Abraham and his brother Timothy exchanged the lands inherited from their father Edward for others in a tract known as Quaker's Farm. He moved to Stratford in 1706, where his son, General David Wooster, was born. About 1720, he removed to Quaker's Farm, where he lived until his death, which occurred after 1743. He was a weaver by trade and a prosperous farmer, acquiring extensive tracts of land in Derby and Stratford by purchase, and by inheritance from his father, Edward, and he was constantly solicitous for the education of his children, sending his youngest child, David, to Yale College. His children by Mary Walker were :

40. i. Abraham[3], Jr., m. twice : 1, Sarah Merchant ; 2, Martha Hull.
41. ii. Ruth[3], b. Sept. 26, 1700.
42. iii. Joseph[3], b. Jan. 16, 1702 ; m. two times, his second wife being Lucy Nichols, Dec., 1751.
43. iv. Sarah[3], b. April 2, 1705.
44. v. Mary[3], b. April 3, 1707.
45. vi. Hannah[3], b. Feb. 23, 1709.
46. vii. David[3], b. Mch. 2, 1710, d. May 2, 1777 ; m., Mch. 6, 1746, Mary, daughter of Rev. Thomas Clapp, president of Yale College.

40. Abraham[3] Wooster, Jr., lived at Quaker's Farm, in Oxford parish, near his father. He had children :

47. i. Wait[4], b. April 22, 1732. He was dead June 5, 1770 ; m., Mch. 9, 1758, Phebe, daughter of Samuel Warner, and had children : Moses[5] and Hinman[5], twins, b. Dec. 21, 1758 ; Mary[5], b. Dec. 31, 1760 ; Benjamin[5], b. Oct. 29, 1762 ; Wait[5], b. Oct. 28, 1764 ; Abraham[5], b. July 28, 1770.
48. ii. Mary[4], b. May 10, 1733.
49. iii. Hinman[4], b. April 26, 1735.
50. iv. Miles[4], b. June 10, 1738.
51. v. Abraham[4], b. Sept. 20, 1740 ; m. Rebecca Adkins.

51. Abraham[4] Wooster (3d) lived for a time in Chicopee Falls, Mass., whence he moved to the State of New York. His children were :

52. i. Lyman Adkins[5], m. Lydia Hall.
53. ii. Daniel[5], a millwright at Batavia, N. Y.
54. iii. Rev. David[5], of Batavia, N. Y.

46. General DAVID WOOSTER is a part of the history of this country; but an outline of his career and that of his distinguished grandson, Admiral Charles Whitney Wooster, may not be uninteresting, nor out of place in this paper. The large wealth of his father, Abraham, gave him the means for acquiring a superior education, and he was graduated A. B. from Yale College in 1738. At the commencement of the war between Spain and England in 1739, less than a year after the close of his college career, he was commissioned a lieutenant in the provincial forces, but soon thereafter the colony of Connecticut made him captain of a ship built for the defence of her coasts.

In the expedition against Louisburg he was captain in the regiment of Colonel Aaron Burr, and he commanded the Colonial vessel "Connecticut" which conveyed troops to Cape Breton. His services during the siege and capture of the fortress were recognized in his appointment as a messenger of despatches to England, and he was received by King George II. with great favor, who rewarded him by a commission as captain in Sir William Pepperell's regiment, with half pay for life. During the French and Indian wars, 1756–1763, he was, by Connecticut, made colonel of one of her regiments, being soon thereafter promoted to brigadier-general. Upon the termination of that war he was appointed collector of customs for the port of New Haven. At the commencement of the troubles with Great Britain his patriotism carried him immediately to the side of the Colonists. In April, 1775, being a member of the Conneticut Provisional Assembly, he was one of those who originated the plans and assumed the responsibility for the capture of Fort Ticonderoga.

Upon the organization of the Continental Army, he was commissioned third in rank of the eight brigadier generals, serving as such in the expedition against Canada, where he assumed chief command upon the death of General Richard Montgomery. Soon after the close of that campaign he resigned his commission in the army, but he was immediately appointed the first Major-General of the Connecticut Militia. In the raid of Governor Tryon upon Danbury, he hastened to the scene of action, and at Ridgefield, on April 27, 1777, he received a mortal wound, dying at Danbury on May 2d, aged 67 years.

The Continental Congress, on June 17th following, appropriated the sum of five hundred dollars for a monument to General Wooster, but the money was never paid, and the location of his unmarked grave at Danbury was forgotten; but in 1854 the State of Connecticut erected, at Danbury, a handsome monument of Portland granite to commemorate the acts of her most distinguished hero. David Wooster had three children, viz.:

79. i. Mary[4], b. Jan. 21, 1747; d. Oct. 20, 1748.
80. ii. Thomas[4], b. July 30, 1751; m., 1777, Lydia Sheldon.
81. iii. Mary[4], b. June 2, 1753.

80. Thomas[4] Wooster was graduated from Yale College, A. B. in 1768, subsequently travelling in Europe. He was a captain in Colonel Webb's regiment of the Continental Army, and he was a member of the Connecticut Society of the Cincinnati. In 1791 he moved with his family from New Haven to New Orleans. Upon a return voyage to New Haven his vessel was lost with all on board. By his wife, Lydia Sheldon, he had children, viz.:

82. i. David.[6]
83. ii. Isaac S.[6]; m. Caroline Moore.
84. iii. George C.[6]
85. iv. Charles Whitney[6], b. at New Haven in 1785; d. in California in 1848; m. Frances Stebbins.
86. v. Mary C.[6]
87. vi. Henry.[6]
88. vii. Cornelius B.[6]

Four of these sons became seamen, and two of them were lost.

83. Isaac S.[6] and Caroline Wooster had issue, viz.: 89. i., Charles W.; 90. ii., Caroline; 91. iii., Thomas; 92. iv., Sheldon.

85. Charles Whitney[6] Wooster married Frances, daughter of Simon Stebbins, descended from the immigrant Thomas, of Deerfield, Massachusetts, the son of Sir Thomas Stebbins, of Suffolk, England. In the early part of the War of 1812 Charles W. Wooster was in command of the fortified posts around New York as Major of the Sea Fencibles. Subsequently he commanded the armed privateer "Saratoga," with which he captured many English ships, acquiring a large fortune. In 1817, while cruising in the Pacific, the Chilean government purchased from him his armed brig, the "Columbus," and, changing its name to "Araucano," commissioned him as its captain in the navy, and in the war with Spain he was uniformly victorious in all his sea battles. In 1819 the Chilean government made Lord Cochrane commander-in-chief of her navy, and Wooster, refusing to serve under him, resigned his commission; but, in 1822, when Lord Cochrane had left the Chilean service, Wooster again entered her navy with the rank of post captain, being promoted in 1829 to rear admiral. In 1847 he went to California and engaged in placer mining on the Yuba River. He had two sons. The elder died in infancy; the second was: 93. ii., Charles F.[6], b. 1817; graduated at West Point, and served in the Florida and Mexican wars, dying on February 14, 1856, at Fort Brown, Texas, captain of the Fourth Artillery, United States Army.

9. Ruth[2] Wooster, the third daughter of Edward Wooster[1], and the youngest child by his first wife, lived but a little more than a year after her marriage with Samuel Bowers, the son of Rev. John Bower, who came to Massachusetts from England with his parents, George and Barbarie Bower, or Bowers. The family was in Scituate in 1637, in Plymouth in 1639, and in 1642 they were settled in Cambridge, where Barbarie died March 25, 1644, and on April 15, 1649, George married Elizabeth Worthington. At the General Court, May, 1652, "George Bowers of Cambridge being complained of for putting in a vote on the election day for the Governor, acknowledged the fact, not only this year but every year since he came into these parts, pleaded ignorance: It is ordered, that the said George Bowers, for his offense shall pay the sum of £10." Not being a sworn freeman at this time he was not a legal voter. He participated actively in the local affairs of Cambridge up to the time of his death in 1656.

Rev. John Bowers was graduated B. A. by Harvard College in 1649 in a class of only five, viz.: John Bowers, John Collins, Samuel Eaton, Urianus Oakes, and John Rogers, and it is a remarkable circumstance that all of these classmates became distinguished in the early history of New England. Samuel Eaton was son of Governor Eaton; Bowers, Col-LINS, and Oakes were ordained into the ministry, and Oakes and Rogers became Presidents of Harvard College; the former in 1675, succeeded by the latter in 1682. Soon after his graduation JOHN BOWER taught school in Plymouth, probably the first in the business, says Savage. In 1653, upon the invitation of Governor Eaton and the General Court, he took charge of the schools in New Haven, terminating his services in 1660. He preached for the congregations at Guilford, Branford, and New Haven. In 1673 he was the first regularly established pastor of the church at Derby, in which duties he continued until his death, June 14, 1687. His last will, dated January 8, 1684, is recorded in the Town Records of Derby. His first wife was Rebecca, daughter of Thomas Gregson. He married, secondly, BRIDGET, daughter of ANTHONY THOMPSON, one of the wealthier proprietors of Quinnipiac, called by the Dutch Rodenberg, now New Haven. He came with Rev. John Davenport and Governor Eaton in the "Hector," which sailed from London in April, 1637, and landed in Boston the following June 26th. He was one of the signers of the Compact at Quinnipiac, June 4, 1639. He died March 23, 1647, and by his nuncupative will, made in the presence of Rev. John Davenport and Robert Newman, "he left fifteen pounds to Bridget, daughter of his first wife, to be paid her at the age of eighteen years provided she disposed of herself in marriage with the consent and approbation of her mother and the elders of the church then being." As she married a clergyman and the classical school teacher of New Haven, it is to be hoped the widow and elders were not averse to the match. BRIDGET continued to reside in Derby, dying there May 19, 1720.

SAMUEL BOWERS, their third child and oldest son, was born Nov. 5, 1665. In a census of estates taken by authority of the Town of Derby in 1718, his estate is numbered twenty-four in value. He was constable several years and active in the church and public enterprises of the town. His second wife was Lydia, daughter of Francis French. By his first wife, RUTH WOOSTER, he had a daughter:

120. i. Sarah[5] Bowers, b. 1688; d. Oct. 23, 1749; m., Mch. 22, 1737, TIMOTHY[3] Wooster, Jr. (No. 121), her first cousin, son of Timothy Wooster, Sr. (No. 10).

10. TIMOTHY[2] WOOSTER, Sr., the oldest son of EDWARD, by his second wife, TABITHA TOMLINSON, appears to have been closely associated with his brother Abraham[1], in farming operations. He was one of the solid men of Derby up to the time of his death, being Selectman in 1716 and 1726. In 1716 he is styled "Sergeant." His wife, ANNA PERRY, born Jan. 32, 1678, was daughter of ARTHUR PERRY, Jr., "son of ARTHUR PERRY, of Boston, 1638 to 1652, born too near his father's death to be mentioned in his will." ARTHUR PERRY, Sr., and wife ELIZABETH were born in England. He was the Town Drummer of Boston, and a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. ANN JUDSON, born 1656, the wife of ARTHUR PERRY, Jr., was the daughter of JOSHUA JUDSON, the youngest of the three sons of WILLIAM and GRACE JUDSON, from Yorkshire, England, who first appear in Concord, Massachusetts, in 1634. He removed to Stratford in 1638, finally locating in New Haven, where he became the owner of iron works, dying there July 29, 1662. TIMOTHY and ANNA PERRY WOOSTER had the following children, viz.:

121. i. TIMOTHY[3], Jr., b. Dec. 29, 1699; m., 1, Abigail, daughter of Ebenezer Harger, Aug. 18, 1727. She d. Sept. 23, 1736, 122. ii. Tabitha[3], b. May 3, 1701.

123. iii. Edward[3], b. Sept. 17, 1702; m. Elizabeth Watkins, of Stratford, Feb. 7, 1625, and had two children, viz.: Naomi[4], b. Jan., 1726, and Grace[4], b. Feb. 15, 1727.
124. iv. Ann[3], b. Jan. 17, 1705; m. Daniel Hawkins.
125. v. Samuel[3], b. April 17, 1706; m. Ann Moss, and had Elisha[4], b. July 5, 1732.
126. vi. Damaris[3], b. Feb. 20, 1708; m. Eleazer Hawkins.
127. vii. Henry[3], b. Feb. 19, 1710.
128. viii. Arthur[3], b. Mch. 26, 1713.
129. ix. Eliezar[3], b. Oct. 16, 1715.

121. TIMOTHY WOOSTER, Jr., and his cousin-wife, Sarah Bowers, were both first cousins of Gen. David Wooster, his father TIMOTHY, Sr., and her mother RUTH being respectively brother and sister of Abraham, the father of General David. TIMOTHY WOOSTER was the first named in the list of an ecclesiastical society named Oxford, organized out of the territory of Derby by act of the General Assembly of Connecticut, May, 1741. He had the following children by his first wife, Abigail Harger:

130. i. Jabez[4], b. Oct. 15, 1728.
131. ii. Dorcas[4], b. April, 1731; d. April, 1737.
132. iii. Abigail[4], b. Aug. 18, 1736.

By his second wife, SARAH BOWERS:

133. iv. Dorcas[4], b. Mch. 25, 1738.
134. v. Edward[4], b. Feb. 18, 1740; d. Oct. 15, 1746.
135. vi. Jesse[4], b. May 4, 1743.
136. vii. WALTER[4], b. July 7, 1745; d. July 21, 1829; m., Nov. 15, 1780, Ursula, daughter of Capt. Ira Beebe, of Waterbury.
137. viii. Edward[4], b. Sept. 28, 1747.

136. WALTER WOOSTER was a marked exemplification of the patriotic soldier of the Revolution, ready to sacrifice his property and life in the struggle for freedom from tyranny. Enlisting at Waterbury on March 2, 1777, in the company commanded by Capt. Eli Leavenworth, of Col. Return Jonathan Meigs' Continental Regiment, the Sixth Connecticut Line, during three years he participated in nearly all of the campaigns and battles in Connecticut and New York, carrying with him to his grave the scars of the honorable wounds received at New York and Stony Point. He was promoted to be orderly sergeant of his company, which rank he held until his discharge in February, 1780. Sergeant WOOSTER led the storming detachment at Horseneck on Long Island Sound, February 26, 1779. He was the first man to enter the fort and he hauled down the British flag. His principal military services were along the Hudson River from New York to West Point, where he was engaged in many skirmishes, being severely wounded by a musket ball in the shoulder at an engagement near King's Bridge. He participated in the storming of Stony Point, July 15, 1779.

Upon his return to Connecticut, the town of Derby designated him as a member of its Recruiting Committee, and he was soon thereafter appointed a revenue officer for one of the districts of Connecticut, and he collected the war taxes for the Continental Army. The record of the taxes collected by him, showing the amounts and the names of the persons from whom collected, was kept in six books, which became the property of his daughter, Mrs. Abigail Isbell, the mother of Mr. Robert Harris Isbell, now of Woodlawn, New York. The records of the Pension Office at Washington state that after his marriage he was on the "Alarm List," and was frequently absent from home on military duty, his wife being obliged for her safety to resort to the houses of friends. The following obituary notice, written by a comrade in arms, was printed in the New Haven Columbian Register of July 25, 1829:

"At Waterbury (Salem Society), Mr. Walter Wooster, aged 82. He served his country in the hour of her need, and was one of the heroes who stared death in the face at the Storming of Stony Point, and among the first of those who braved the cannon's mouth and entered the fort. He was in several hard fought battles, and at different times saw many of his comrades fall by his side killed and wounded, while he escaped unhurt. Mr. Wooster sustained through his long life, the character of an honest man and a humble Christian (of the Baptist denomination), and his was 'the path of the just which shineth more and more unto the perfect day.'"

His wife, URSULA BEEBE, was descended from JOSEPH BEEBE, HUGH CALKIN, WILLIAM HOUGH, JOHN BORDEN, JOHN LEWIS, and JOHN HUNTLEY, of early New London, of whom WILLIAM HOUGH and JOHN LEWIS served as "Volunteers" in King Philip's War. Her grandfather, JONATHAN BEEBE, was lieutenant of Connecticut troops in the French and Indian War, and so distinguished himself by his services in the campaign of 1759 as to attract the attention of his commanding officer, Col. James Montressor, who mentions him several times in his journal. Her father, IRA BEEBE, in 1777 was commissioned first lieutenant of Capt. John Lewis's Company in the Tenth Connecticut Regiment, commanded by Lieut.-Col. Jonathan Baldwin. Lieutenant BEEBE marched the company to New York City and joined Colonel Douglass's regiment. He fought in the battles on Long Island, and when Washington retreated, the regiment of Colonel Douglass, in which Lieutenant BEEBE was serving, was the last one that left the island. He was subsequently promoted to be captain in the Twenty-seventh Regiment, in which he served until the close of the war. Her mother, JEMIMA HICKOX, derived her origin from some of the most distinguished founders of Connecticut: Deacon STEPHEN HART, a first settler of Cambridge, Mass., in 1632, and deacon of the original church, and one of the twelve "Adventurers" who first explored the Connecticut valley in 1635. Hart moved to Suckiaug, now Hartford, with the company of Mr. Hooker. He was one of the original proprietors of Hartford, a man of large wealth and public enterprise; JOHN BRONSON, a member of Hooker's church; JOHN LEE, one of the second company from Hartford that settled Tunxis or Farmington in 1641; JOHN ROOT, JOHN NORTON, and THOMAS UPSON, of Farmington, the latter an original proprietor; THOMAS KILBOURNE, of Wethersfield, and ROBERT PLUMB, who married MARY, daughter of SYLVESTER BALDWIN, and Sergt. SAMUEL HICKOX, one of the thirty-one original proprietors of Mattatuck, now Waterbury.

Of these, Deacon STEPHEN HART, JOHN BRONSON, and ROBERT PLUMB were soldiers of Capt. John Mason's little army in the Pequot War, 1637, and two of them. JOHN NORTON and ROBERT PLUMB, belonged to Armigerous families of England.

ROBERT PLUMB bore the following arms, viz.: Ermine, a bend vair or and gules cottised vert. Crest out of a ducal coronet or, a plume of ostrich feathers argent.

JOHN NORTON'S arms were gules, a fret argent; a bend, vair, over all. Crest: A griffin, sejeant: proper winged, gules, beak and fore legs, or.

SYLVESTER EALDWIN, the father of MARY, wife of Robert Plumb, had these arms, viz.: Argent, a chevron, ermine, between three hazel sprigs, vert. Crest: A squirrel, sejeant, or, holding a hazel sprig, vert. Motto: Vim vi repello.

URSULA WOOSTER was borne upon the pension rolls of the United States as the widow of a soldier of the Revolution until her death on September 28, 1846. The children of Sergt. WALTER WOOSTER and URSULA BEEBE were: 138. i., Levi[5], b. 1782; d. after 1832, at Naugatuck. 139. ii., JEMIMA[5], b. 1784; d. 1861; m., 1807, AHIRA COLLINS. 140. iii., Jesse[5], b. Aug. 23, 1786; m., Mch. 13, 1813, Rhoda Brocket. 141. iv., David[5]. 142. v., Sheldon[5], b. Feb. 10, 1792; m. Lockey Baldwin. 143. vi., Mitchell[5]. 144. vii., Rebecca[5], m., 1821, Lyman Smith. 145. viii., Abigail[5], m. Lorain Isbell.

138. Levi Wooster was a lieutenant of Connecticut militia during the War of 1812. He was stationed at New London, at one time having command of that post, owing to the scarcity of officers of higher rank. His home was in Naugatuck, where he died later than 1852. He married and had three children, viz.: Albert, Alonzo, and Alson.

139. Ahira Collins, the husband of JEMIMA WOOSTER, was born in 1785, the only child of AHIRA, Sr., who died when his son was a young lad. A descendant from three generations of clergymen, Ahira, Jr., inherited the religious attachments of his ancestors for the early New England Puritan church, but it does not appear that he manifested any inclination to assume the responsibilities of the ministry. At an early age, relinquishing his small patrimony for the support of his mother, his tendencies led him to the more intellectual pursuits. For some years he was a surveyor, subsequently becoming a school teacher. His final experience in this avocation was as master of the Wooster District, where he had as one of his pupils JEMIMA WOOSTER, whom he married in 1807. His permanent location was at Straitsville, where he became a manufacturer of farming implements, increasing his business operations by a clock factory, a grist mill, an iron foundry and machine shops, a store of general supplies and drugs, and at the same time conducting the operations of an extensive farm. Absorbed as he was for so many years in his many commercial enterprises, he did not neglect to give his three sons the advantages of a good literary as well as business education, and living in a most thoroughly democratic community he never failed to impress upon their minds the knowledge of their descent from ancestors who bore for their arms: Argent, a dexter hand gauntleted in sinister base, grasping a sword in bend, all proper, pommel and hilt or; Crest: an Owl argent; Motto: Nostra Tuebimur Ipsi. On November 1, 1863, while participating in a trip on Long Island Sound with his grandchildren, he fell from the yacht into the sea and was drowned.

Situated upon the public thoroughfare between Naugatuck and New Haven, with a bountiful supply of water from her mountain streams held in a spacious reservoir and conducted by raceways for the distributing of power, Straitsville for many years was an energetic manufacturing village and the home of local public enterprise. The ruins of the old Collins Homestead are a memorial to the old-time prosperity which could support such a mansion in a district somewhat remote from large commercial centres. The construction of the Naugatuck Valley Railroad, drawing to its immediate vicinity all possible manufacturing interests, was the ruin of this thriving village, and nothing now remains to tell of its former prosperity but a few scattered farmhouses, the stone foundations of the old mill, a long mound which marks the course of the race, and the moss-covered beams of all that remains of the dam.

> "No more the glassy brook reflects the day,
> But chok'd with sedges works its weedy way.
> Sunk are thy bowers in shapeless ruin all,
> And the long grass o'ertops the mould'ring wall.
> Here, as I take my solitary rounds,
> Amidst thy tangling walks, and ruin'd grounds,
> Remembrance wakes with all her busy train,
> Swells at my breast, and turns the past to pain."

AHIRA and JEMIMA WOOSTER COLLINS had: i. Orville[6], b. April 29, 1809; ii., Ozro[6], b. 1811; iii., Sheldon[6], b. May 14, 1814; iv. and v., twin girls, died in infancy; vi., Wolsey, died aged four years.

150. OZRO COLLINS succeeded to the manufacturing business of his father at Straitsville, Conn. He was Townsman, School Trustee, Postmaster, and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Twenty-second Regiment Infantry, Connecticut Militia. In 1850, disposing of all of his interests in this place, he took his family to Ohio, where many of his relatives and friends had settled upon the "Connecticut Reserve." His wife, ANN VAN ETTEN, was descended from the earliest Dutch and French Huguenot settlers of New Amsterdam, Wiltwyck, Rensselaerwyck, and Orange County. Her genealogy has been published by THE RECORD in the following articles, viz.: "The Cuddeback Family," Vol. xxvii., p. 145; "The Du Bois Family," Vol. xxvii., p. 190; "The Van Etten Family," Vol. xxx., p. 52.

OZRO m., Oct. 23, 1843, ANN VAN ETTEN, dau. of Anthony and Jemina Cuddeback, his wife; they had: i., HOLDRIDGE OZRO[7], b. Dec. 10, 1844; ii., Wolsey Wooster, b. Oct. 17, 1846.

HOLDRIDGE OZRO COLLINS was graduated from St. Louis University (Mo.), with the degree of A.B., later A.M., and from Harvard University, LL.B. In 1869 he located at Chicago, being soon thereafter admitted to the Illinois Bar. He served for five years in the Illinois National Guard, enlisting as private and retiring with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He is President of the Society Sons of the Revolution and Governor of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of California, and a member of the Pennsylvania Society of the War of 1812. He is a lawyer in active practice at Los Angeles, Cal. MARY BALLANCE, his wife, b. Peoria, Ill., May 19, 1851; d. Peoria, Dec. 24, 1894, was descended from CHARLES BALLANCE, ROBERT GREENE, AIJALON PRICE, Capt. WILLIAM BARBER, and Judge SAMUEL BAYLY, of Colonial Virginia, and Dr. HEINRICH SCHNEBLY and JOHN RENCH, of early Maryland.

12. Jonas[2] Wooster, seventh son of Edward[1] Wooster, lived at Oronoke in Stratford and afterwards in Derby. He was the owner of a grist mill on the south side of the Farmill River in what is now Huntington. He had two children, viz.:

MARY DEURCANT, WIFE OF LION GARDINER.

By Frederick Diodati Thompson, LL.B.

A curious error has existed, beginning with the earliest writers on the subject, in regard to the name of the wife of Lion Gardiner. She has been always called Mary Wilamson, but by recent investigations in Holland it has been discovered that Lion Gardiner served under the command of Captain de Vere, one of "the fighting Veres," and that his wife was Mary Deurcant. The error arose from a misunderstanding of the account in Lion Gardiner's family Bible, which was somewhat in this way: "In the year of our Lord 1635 July the 10 came I Lion Gardiner, and Mary my wife from Woredon a Towne in Holland, where my wife was born being the daughter of one Derike Wilamsom deurcant; her mother's name was Hachin Bastians and her aunt, sister of her mother, was the wife of Wouter Leonardson, old Burgermeaster dwelling in the hofston over against the Brewer in the Unicorn's Head; her brother's name was Punce Garretson, also an old burger measter. We came from Woerden to London and from thence to New England and dwelt at Saybrooke forte four years of which I was commander and there was born to me a son named David in 1636 April the 29, the first born in that place and in 1638 a daughter was born to me called Mary, August the 30, and then I went to an island of mine own which I bought of the Indians called by them Manchonake by us the Isle of Wite, and there was born another daughter named Elizabeth, September the 14, 1641, she being the first child born there of English parents."

It will be noticed that the word deurcant was not written with a capital D, and much curiosity has existed to know what a deurcant was; no one having thought to solve the difficulty in what now seems to be such a natural way. Recent investigations made by the family have resulted in the discovery of some very important facts, and I write this to THE RECORD so that future historians may know that the wife of Lion Gardiner—one of the grandest characters of our colonial period—was Mary Deurcant. In this connection I may say that the ancient lordship and manor of Gardiner's Island has been in the Gardiner family since 1639, 260 years, and the present proprietor, Col. J. Lyon Gardiner, is the twelfth lord of the manor. It is the only instance in this country of the law of primogeniture having been followed for so many years.

David Gardiner above mentioned was the first white child born in Connecticut, and Elizabeth Gardiner was the first English child born in what is now the State of New York.

HOES FAMILY BAPTISMS FROM EARLY CHURCH RECORDS OF NEW YORK STATE AND WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS.

By L. Hasbrouck von Sahler.

The American ancestor, Jan Tyssen Goes, or Hoes, was an early settler at Beverwyck, now Albany, and many of his descendants have been men of prominence in the various walks of life, chief among them being the eighth President of the United States, Martin Van Buren, whose mother was Mary Hoes, and whose wife was Hannah Hoes. Jan Tyssen Hoes married first, Breechje Maryns, widow of Claes Cornelissen von Voorhout, and second, Styntje Janse van Hoesen, daughter of Jan Franssen van Hoesen, by whom he had the following children:

1. Matthys, m. Cornelia Mattheussen van Deursen.

Digitized by Google

2. Dirk, m. Lybetje Luykassen Wyngaart.
3. Jan, m. Margarita Wyngaart, widow of Emanuel van Schaick; second Jannetje ———.
4. Anna, m. Isaac Vosburgh.
5. Teuntje, m. first, Thomas Winne; second, Jacob Turk.
6. Judith, m. Isaac Hendrickssen Burger (Burghardt).
7. Mayke, m. Burger van Huyck.
8. Jacobus, bp. May 1, 1687.

The Dutch pronunciation of the surname Goes is Hoes, and so, after the English took possession of New Netherlands, the family in general spelled the name as it was pronounced, while some changed it to Gors, which was again changed to Goss. As was usual, it appears in many forms of spelling in the early records.

The following entries were collected for a special purpose in my genealogical work, and as a Hoes genealogy has not been published, although the family would appreciate one, I think that they will be valued, not alone by the family, but by brother genealogists.

NOTE.

SHELTER ISLAND HISTORY.—There is a peculiar interest in the early history of this island. All its neighbors in America, except Rhode Island, were in the possession and under the rule of the Puritans, and in accord with the men of the Commonwealth. The early owners and occupants of Shelter Island were in sympathy with the Royalists. The insurgents against the Massachusetts government found welcome and hospitality with Captain Nathaniel Sylvester, whose wife was a daughter of Thomas Brinley, Esquire, Auditor General of the Revenues of Kings Charles I. and II.

More or less intimately associated with Captain Sylvester were his brother Giles Sylvester and his brother-in-law, Francis Brinley.

The early proprietors of the island had their own troubles with the colonial governments, Dutch and English; and the island did not become an organized town until 1730, nearly eighty years after the Sylvesters made it their home.

The Rev. Jacob E. Maltmann, the present pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the island, has published an elaborate history of the town and the church, with carefully prepared genealogies of thirty of the early settlers.

Digitized by Google

The work bears the extremely modest title of "Historical Papers;" but it is a remarkably accurate and thorough history, and bears the impress of an eager, diligent, and painstaking investigator.

The historical part contains 160 large octavo pages; the genealogical part, 175 pages. There is a good index of seven pages of double columns.

The paper and binding are good, and the printing excellent.

LAWRENCE.—Wanted the maiden name of the wife of Isaac Lawrence, of Yonkers. He died November 4, 1824, aged eighty years. His will at White Plains, N. Y., names his wife, Mary, and children: i. William, ii. John, iii. Susannah, married Thomas Disbrow; iv. Elizabeth, married Hewlet Valentine; v. Charity, married Samuel Rich; vi. Abigail, married Joseph Lawrence; vii. Charles. There is a tradition that the wife of the above Isaac Lawrence was Mary Odell, and that her father's name was Michael. EDWARD MYERS, White Plains.

MERRITT, THOMAS.—Was a prominent resident of Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., 1673-1721. He married a second wife, Abigail Francis, in 1688. His children Thomas, Joseph, Ephraim, and Samuel were born before 1685, and left many descendants. Wanted, the names of his parents and first wife, the dates of his birth and death, and births of his children. DOUGLAS MERRITT, Rhinebeck, N. Y.

OBITUARY.

AKERLY, REV. SAMUEL MITCHILL, of Newburgh, N. Y., was born in New York City, February 7, 1829, and died there April 9, 1899.

He was the son of the late Dr. Samuel and Mary (Ketchum) Akerly, of New York City; grandson of Samuel and Priscilla (Titus) Akerly, of Long Island birth and ancestry; and the great grandson of Benjamin Akerly, of Manhasset, L. I., who was doubtless a descendant of Robert Akerly, one of the proprietors of Brookhaven, L. I., in 1655.

Rev. Mr. Akerly married first, on March 14, 1854, Louise, daughter of the Rev. Georges Dubois, of Dampierre-les-bois, Doubs, France, and his wife Elmire Roy, of Couvet, Neuchâtel, Switzerland.

He married second, on October 19, 1880, Charlotte Manigault, daughter of the late Rev. Thomas House Taylor, and his wife Ann Manigault, of South Carolina. Dr. Taylor was for many years rector of Grace Church, New York City. Mr. Akerly's widow, and two daughters by his first wife, Mary and Lucy Dubois Akerly (a member of this Society), survive him.

Mr. Akerly attended Columbia College, New York; studied for the ministry under the Rev. Thomas House Taylor; was ordained deacon in 1858 by Bishop Horatio Potter, and advanced to the priesthood by the same prelate in 1861. He was rector of Christ Church, Marlborough, N. Y., from 1858 to 1875, and of St. Mark's Church, Carthage Landing, N. Y., from 1879 to 1882.

A man of high cultivation and deep religious feeling, pure and true in all social relations, he has left to his family a precious heritage in the memory of an unstained and noble life, well spent in the service of his God and of his fellow-men.

Mr. Akerly was a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, and of the Descendants of Royal Governors.

DAHLGREN, JOHN VINTON, died at Colorado Springs on August 11, 1899. He was a son of the late Admiral John A. Dahlgren, U. S. N., by his first wife, who was the daughter of Samuel Finley Vinton, of Ohio, one of the leaders of the old Whig party. She was a woman of great force of character and literary attainments, and her book, "Etiquette of Social Life in Washington," called forth a storm of condemnation and appreciation at the time of its publication. John Vinton Dahlgren, the son of this gifted pair, was born at Valparaiso, Chili, April 22, 1868, his father being at that time in command of the South Pacific squadron. He received his early education from the Society of Jesus, and graduated from Georgetown College in 1889 as valedictorian of his class. Studying law, he received successively the degrees of LL.B. and LL.M., in addition to that of A.M.; removed to New York City, and was for a time in the office of Lord, Day & Lord. In March, 1895, he was appointed, in Mayor Strong's term, first Assistant Attorney of the Department of Buildings, and so well did he discharge his duties that when Gen. Thomas Ewing resigned his place as Attorney and chief of that department's law office, Mr. Dahlgren was promoted to the vacant place. During his service as First Assistant Attorney he had already collected and published all the laws relating to his department, under the title of "The Dahlgren Building-Law Manual."

Ocular trouble, caused by overwork, led him, in December, 1896, to resign the office which he held with so much credit; and in March, 1898, he was appointed by Governor Black a Commissioner on the State Board of Charities. After his retirement from public life, he became actively engaged in shipping and other business interests, and was President, up to the time of his death, of the New York and Pennsylvania Brick, Tile and Terra Cotta Company. In politics Mr. Dahlgren was a Republican. June 29, 1889, he married Elizabeth, daughter of the late Joseph Wilhelm Drexel, the banker, by whom he had a son, John Vinton Dahlgren, Jr., born June 30, 1892. Mr. Dahlgren became a member of this Society in 1896.

SWAN, FREDERICK GEORGE, a member of this Society since November 24, 1893, died at his residence in The Lenox, in this city, November 30, 1899, in his sixty-ninth year. He was born in this city February 22, 1831, and was the son of the late Benjamin F. Swan. He was a member of the New York Stock Exchange until fifteen years ago, when failing health compelled him to retire from business, but he did not lose his interest in club, commercial, and social life, as is evidenced by the fact that he was a Life Director of the American Bible Society, a member of the Metropolitan, South Side, Republican, and Good Government "D" clubs; of the Sons of the Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars, the Geographical Society, Mercantile Library, Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, and of the Order of Founders and Patriots of America. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Welles.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE KIRBYS OF NEW ENGLAND. A HISTORY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY OF MIDDLETOWN, CONN., AND OF JOSEPH KIRBY OF HARTFORD, CONN., AND OF RICHARD KIRBY OF SANDWICH, MASS. TOGETHER WITH GENEALOGIES OF THE BURGIS, WHITE, AND MACLAREN FAMILIES, AND THE ANCESTRY OF JOHN DRAKE OF WINDSOR, CONN. By Melatiah Everett Dwight, New York. The Trow print, MDCCCXCVIII. Three quarters bound in red morocco, 6¼ x 9½, pp. 451.

This exquisite volume, one of eighty-five numbered copies, from an edition limited to one hundred, was published by subscription, and there are no extra copies. It cannot be purchased, but Dr. Dwight has supplied the libraries, and there the public may enjoy it. We predict it will not be permitted to remain on the shelves. The book includes, as far as possible, all the Kirby race, and, moreover, is not confined to that name; therefore many others will be interested in searching its pages. Families are associated in the text, and it is not attempted to keep generations by themselves. The original intention was to publish the family of John, of Middleton, which occupies 165 pages. It is followed by Joseph 62, and Richard 107; and interspersed, where intermarriages introduce them, are lineages of other families. After the Kirby name the descendants of Thomas Burgis, William White, and Finlay MacLaren are given; finally, compressed into ten pages, is given the ancestry of John Drake, of Windsor, to wit: nine in the paternal line, seventeen in Courtenay, twenty-three generations to Godfrey, Count of Brionne, in two lines; the same to Gruffydd ap Llewellyn, King of Wales; William, Count of Eu; and Torfulus, Lord of Pont Ademar. These include, when carried out, every court in Europe. There is a copy of the arms in metallic colors, and a dozen process plates of superior workmanship. Finally, this excellent book has 60 pages of index in three columns. Those fortunate enough to own a copy of this book will find it increasingly valuable.

FOSTER GENEALOGY. BEING THE RECORD OF THE POSTERITY OF REGINALD FOSTER, AN EARLY INHABITANT OF IPSWICH, IN NEW ENGLAND, WHOSE GENEALOGY IS TRACED BACK TO ANACHER, GREAT FORRESTER OF FLANDERS. By Frederick Clifton Pierce, Chicago, 1899. Press of W. B. Conkey Co., Hammond, Ind. 8vo, cloth, pp. 1081. Price, $10; address the publishers.

The title page gives, in addition to the above, that it contains "Also the record of all other American Fosters;" and judging from the size of the book it certainly must. It is well notated, after the Record and Register plan, printed on good weight paper in readable type, is well illustrated, and thoroughly indexed. From the table of contents we give the following: Origin of the Name; The Early Forresters; The Forresters of Bamborough and Etherston; A Visit to Bamborough Castle; Other English Foster Branches; Foster Land Grants in Nova Scotia; Fosters in America; Fosters in the Various Wars; The Dorchester Branch; The Salem Branch; The Fosters of Long Island, Scituate, and Chelmsford; Descendants of John of Kingsware, Eng., and Andrew, of Andover, Mass.

FIRST REPORT OF THE PUBLIC RECORD COMMISSION OF NEW JERSEY, 1899. 8vo, pamphlet.

So another has fallen in line behind the happy example set by Massachusetts. Let the good work go on! The pamphlet in hand is the result of the labors of a Committee of Three—William Nelson, Henry S. Haines, and William S. Stryker—appointed by the Governor in July, 1897, and is published by these indefatigable historians under the above title. Concerning the records of the State, they find: That the early records were kept at the two capitals, Perth Amboy and Burlington, until 1790, when the records of Conveyances and Wills were transferred to Trenton, and the records of Warrants and Surveys remained in the offices of the Registers of East and West Jersey; that the records of the early government are principally in the books of Patents, Deeds, and Commissions in the office of the Secretary of State; that there are about 10,000 marriage bonds in that office, as well as the records of Wills. Following this information is the descriptive contents of the various volumes of Deeds, Warrants, Patents, Wills, and Conveyances, and several appendices containing a bibliography of the printed proceedings of the Provincial Assembly, 1707–1776, bibliography of the printed acts of the Legislature of New Jersey, 1703–1800, and Army depredations in New Jersey during the Revolution. The Commission closes its valuable report of 115 pages with an earnest recommendation that the State complete the sets of the Legislative Proceedings, and expresses the hope that at some date in the near future it will be able to report concerning other records of value and interest in the State House. The edition is limited to 600 copies—100, extra paper, uncut; 500, cut.

JOHN MALLETT, THE HUGUENOT, AND HIS DESCENDANTS, 1694-1894. By Anna S. Mallett. Harrisburg, Pa., 1895. 8vo, cloth, pp. xx-342. Price, $5; address the author, 1454 Rhode Island Avenue, Washington, D. C.

A beautiful lithographic reproduction of the Mallett Arms, with its three escallops, embellishes this book as a frontispiece. The work is the result of a deep impression made upon the author's mind in childhood, by a visit to the ancestral burial ground in Stratfield, where the moss-covered gravestones were found and reset; an impression which gave rise to a strong desire to know more of the family history, with a subsequent ambition to spread broadcast the gathered information. The investigation, as happens in so many cases, has laid bare several genealogical problems which the author expresses the hope will be solved in due time. Among them is the query, What was the maiden name of John Mallett's wife? The author gives many facts which she has gathered, which seem to throw light upon the subject, and leaves the conclusions to be derived by the reader. John Mallett was a Huguenot who escaped from France after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and came first to South Carolina. After one or two voyages to England, he came to New Rochelle and finally settled in Fairfield, Conn., about 1700. Most of those bearing the name and living in the Atlantic States trace back to this John, and through him to a Norman tribe which went to France from Scandinavia, early in the eighth century. There are many pages of most interesting historical information relating to both the Malletts and the Huguenots in general. The genealogical portion of the book is arranged in tabular form as follows: 1st column, Name of wife (or husband); 2d, Date of birth; 3d, Date of marriage; 4th, Residence; 5th, Date of death; 6th, Place of burial. To each person is annexed a personal number. The book is copiously indexed and neatly bound. Of the contents the following is a list: Derivation of the Norman tribe; Origin of the Normans; Sketch of the family in England; In France; Exile to America; Life in Connecticut; Family of John and Joannah Mallett; The Malletts in the Revolution and later Wars; In Church and State; Genealogical record; The Beardsley family.

YEAR BOOK OF THE SONS OF THE REVOLUTION IN THE STATE OF NEW YORK, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 690.

Another society publication exceedingly well put together. It contains the usual roll of Members, Ancestors, and Descendants, with additions since the last publication; Officers of the General, State and Local Societies; Constitution and By-Laws; In Memoriam, George Washington; The First Continental Congress, 1774; Biographies of Revolutionary Soldiers; Battles of the Revolution, and illustrations composed of portraits, historic views, relics, and autographs.

THE HAZARD FAMILY OF RHODE ISLAND, 1635–1894. BEING A GENEALOGY AND HISTORY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS HAZARD, WITH SKETCHES OF THE WORTHIES OF THIS FAMILY, AND ANECDOTES ILLUSTRATIVE OF THEIR TRAITS AND ALSO OF THE TIMES IN WHICH THEY LIVED. By Caroline E. Robinson. Boston, 1895. Small quarto, pp. 293. Price, $8; address the author, Wakefield, R. I.

This genealogy of a most important family is most unique. We have many genealogical books, masterpieces of the printer's art, and this one, in its seventeenth century style, is another. Each page has the two lines across the top, broad margins at the bottom, initial and tail pieces, a generous sprinkling of old English type; the whole bound in board covers, with paper label and a characteristic title page. Mrs. Robinson says in her author's note: "The compiler, who is a descendant of the Hazard family, has not endeavored to make a scientific, formal, or final historical work, but simply a collection, more or less complete, of genealogical data in relation to the Hazard family." Among the portraits given are: William Coddington, Abraham Redwood, Stanton Hazard, Isaac Peace Hazard, Rowland Gibson Hazard, George Starr Hazard, Oliver Hazard Perry, and Samuel Rodman. One peculiarity of the book is that the information concerning the early generations is fuller and occupies more space than that of the later generations—a subservience to antiquity which is quite commendable to-day, but will probably be condemned two or three generations hence by those who happen to be descendants of grandsires who failed to leave notes hitching themselves on where this book leaves off. Almost the first thing we look for in a new genealogy is the index—its character, system, and completeness. Our first investigation of this book proved the existence of an index; our subsequent examination showed its splendid characteristics. Every name has the generation number after it, which is at once a means of identification. We understand that Mrs. Robinson is now at work on the Gardiner family, with its two important branches, Robinson and Watson. If she produces a volume half as well done as is the Hazard family we shall express ourselves as satisfied; but we rather suspect that Mrs. Robinson never does things by halves.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE AMERICAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION, 1898. 8vo, cloth.

Contains much valuable and interesting material. From the table of contents we cull the following: Report of the Proceedings, Fourteenth Annual Meeting; The Historical Manuscripts in the Library of Congress; A Study of American Colonial History; An Examination of Peter's "Blue Laws;" The Connecticut Gore Land Company; Southern Economic History; Diplomatic Relations of the Confederate States with England; Germans in America.

GENEALOGY OF THE FITTS OR FITZ FAMILY IN AMERICA. By James Harris Fitts, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. Fort Orange Press, Brandow Printing Company, Albany, N. Y., 1897. Imperial 8vo, cloth, pp. 170.

The book before us is distinctly the product of the western mind. When men migrate to the growing West most of their time is occupied in absorbing enterprises, and it is only just now that these same men are finding the time to devote to genealogical research, which, after all, is a luxury. When men of this stamp finally put forth a family history it is reasonable to suppose that it will have a business-like precision about it, and that its pages will be laid out methodically, after the manner of the western financier. Such is the volume before us. Its genealogical notation has the appearance of a bank ledger—clear, concise, complete; and though it is per se worthy of commendation on account of its ingenuity, yet we cannot at all pronounce it an improvement on the Record and Register plan. Concerning the latter scheme of notation we have yet to find one that is more completely adapted in every detail to the subject. It is clear, concise, easily mastered, combines all information of a given person in one sketch, and, above all, lacks the confusing elements which enter into the make-up of so many other systems. So it is, after considerable experience with genealogical searchers who succeed so well with the Record and Register plan, and come to grief so promptly with most of the others, that we stand forth in desperation and cry with a loud voice, begging all future compilers to confine themselves to one system, be it either the one referred to or one acknowledged as simpler and better by the majority in time to come. It has but one fault, so far as we have yet discovered, and that a minor one—the use of exponents. These seem needless, a waste of material and a useless expense. If, for illustration, John Jones of the seventh generation is the son of James Jones of the sixth, and so on back, it is needless to print them in this wise, John Jones,[7] James,[6] James,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Richard,[2] Thomas,[1] for the mere enumeration of these Christian names in such succession certainly conveys to the mind of even average intelligence that it represents successive generations and nothing else, and the numbering of them as such is superfluous. Let us who use this system omit the exponents in future as decidely uncomplimentary to the intelligence of the readers at large, and substitute in line figures of bold type the personal number of each ancestor; or, better still, the personal number of the next succeeding the one discussed, since reference to this will carry the reader to the next succeeding, and so by proper degrees back to the beginning. On the page then devoted to the seventh generation will be the following: John Jones (James, 1052, James, Joseph, William, Richard, Thomas). Reference to the James No. 1052 would give this: James Jones (James, 684, Joseph, William, Richard, Thomas). Turning to the page containing sketch of James, No. 684, the reader would find this: James Jones (Joseph, 296, William, Richard, Thomas). And so on back to Thomas No. 1. Is there any one, we ask, mentally so constituted as to be interested in ancestral research and yet lacking in mental power to a degree that the enumeration of these names does not mean to him successive generations? and that the name bearing the largest personal number is furthest from the progenitor? It cannot be. Suppose then we eliminate the exponents, credit the readers with the possession of mental qualifications which they are at least supposed to possess, and best of all improve the best system yet promulgated. Dear me; we started out to say something about Fitts and wound up on recipes. But that is the fault of our western financier, who has given of his labor and his thought this family history, which, though not laid out on professional lines, is nevertheless wonderfully clever, and deserves the praise due always to originality. We quote from the author's explanatory chapter: "To avoid the use of abbreviations and to give the records . . . in a concise manner . . . a new system has been adopted. All the records of each family are given together in a table, or tabulated form, commencing with Henry Fitts, of North Carolina, as being in the first generation, who, it will be seen, was, in all probability, in the ninth generation from John Fitts, of Fitzford, Devon Co., England." This is all true and conscientiously preserved; but the tables seem to us unnecessary, for they but give in another form, lacking the entirety of the family tree, the same matter contained in the text, which is so easily found in a very complete and most satisfactory index. We give all this, not in condemnation of the author's system of notation, for it has many excellent qualities, and in many respects is vastly superior to a lot of other complicated systems, but simply as a vigorous appeal for unity, that the searcher who visits the libraries need not be compelled to waste a morning learning how to use a book only to be confronted with the necessity of mastering another system for every third volume he peruses. Concerning the annals of the Fitts family contained in this volume, the character of the author is sufficient to vouchsafe their accuracy, precision, and conscientious attention to details. Its 170 pages, frequently illustrated, give information resulting from searches of all kinds of records made at considerable cost. It sprang from the human desire to know the history of the forefathers, which gave birth to the natural offspring—duty to posterity. It is a labor of love, cheerfully undertaken, gratefully completed, and we commend it to all the Fittses in America.

A HANDBOOK OF PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS IN GENEALOGY. By Henry R. Stiles, M.D. Albany, N. Y., Joel Munsell's Sons, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 55. Price, $1; address the publishers.

When we reflect upon the large number of persons who visit genealogical libraries for the first time, who know nothing about their ancestors, down to and including their grandfathers, and to whom the mention of titles like "Durrie's Index" or "Burke's Peerage" conveys no more information than "hazard," "bunker" or "lofter" do to the non-golf player, then one truly realizes the great need of this valuable book. The author has for many years prescribed plentiful pellets to assist the course of nature in relieving physical ills, and now he offers to those afflicted with "The Genealogical Fever" sage advice for the consummation of the disease. The good doctor defines Genealogy as the Science of Personal Identification—a definition at once terse, direct, and perfectly true; and he who begins his genealogical investigations without a thorough appreciation of the import of this definition, is the very fellow who ends with a lot of paper ancestors, between whom and their would-be descendant there is no personal identification. He says further that "genealogy is not a mere fad, . . . an out-cropping of a despicable vanity, . . . the bolstering up of a falser pride," to all of which we do not agree. Experience has classified genealogists for us into four sorts: the student of the science pure and simple (like the doctor himself); the fellow tracing his eligible lines; the ten-dollar-a-liner, and the estate-in-England enthusiast. They are different as pea-vines and thunder showers; but perhaps the doctor does not count some of them as genealogists, though they do. But to the book. It has abundance of information and practical hints for practical workers, and stands as a sign-post directing the weary traveller toward the proper and authentic sources of information; and when he turns face homeward with scrip full and pencils worn to the stub, this valuable little book still gives him practical suggestions for the classification and preservation of his notes for future reference. At this point there comes, in most cases, a lapse of time. The notes accumulate, the labor of arrangement and notation seems apalling, and the material is laid aside for some future day, which, sad to relate, so often never comes. But here the author, like a good physician, sticks to his patient and continues to give him sound advice, born of many years' experience; and we find him insisting with vigor upon the Record and Register plan of notation, and also upon an index, without which no genealogy is worth the paper upon which it is printed. Oh! ye who are about to enter the labyrinth of Genealogical Investigation, read this book and let it serve you as the unwinding spool to Theseus; for then you shall emerge with task completed, and the world will be the gainer!

THE OLD FAMILIES OF SALISBURY AND AMESBURY, MASSACHUSETTS, WITH SOME RELATED FAMILIES OF NEWBURY, HAVERHILL, IPSWICH, AND HAMPTON. By David W. Hoyt. Providence, R. I., 1899. 8vo, pamphlet.

The fifth and concluding part of this very valuable work has come from the press. It completes the volume and contains records of the first three or four generations of the following families: Stanwood, Stevens, Stockman, Stowers, Tappan, True, Tucker, Tuxbury, Warner, Webster, Weed, Wells, Wheeler, Whittier, Williams, Winsley, Woodman, Worcester, Worthen, and Younglove; also briefer records of Stanyan, Sterling, Straw, Swett, Taylor, Thompson, Thorn, Tongue, Towsly, Travers, Trussell, Wadleigh, Wait, Watson, Wentworth, Wheelwright, Whitridge, Willix, Wooddam, Woodin, Worth, Young. The indexes of places and surnames, as well as the general index, are very full. Copies of parts 1 and 5 may be had of the compiler at $1.25 each, the other parts at $1 each, and the complete set, if ordered now, at $6, bound in cloth.

GENEALOGY OF THE CLEVELAND AND CLEAVELAND FAMILIES. By Edmund J. Cleveland and Horace Gillette Cleveland. Illustrated, in three volumes. Hartford, Conn., 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 2894. Edition 600, of which 100 are uncut. The price is $20. Discount to libraries fifteen per cent.

Verily! verily! "It is a condition and not a theory which confronts us," in this splendid work. A condition of stupendous detail, of monumental labor and assiduity. If there are any Clevelands not in these volumes we would like to know where they kept themselves while these two compilers were at work. The title page, in addition to the above, further says that the work is "An attempt to trace in both the male and female lines, the Posterity of Moses Cleveland who came from Ipswich, County Suffolk, England, about 1635, was of Woburn, Middlesex County, Mass.; of Alexander Cleveland of Prince William County, Virginia; and of ancient and other Clevelands in England, America and elsewhere; with numerous biographical sketches; and containing ancestries of many of the husbands and wives, also a bibliography of the Cleveland family and a genealogical account of Edward Winn of Woburn, and of other Winn families." The introductory chapter states that the researches have been exhaustive. "Not only have town, probate and other municipal records, and church registers been searched, family records transcribed, many persons corresponded with and interviewed, local histories, genealogical and other publications excerpted, but a careful record has been made of every traced or untraced Cleveland found mentioned in published and unpublished army rolls, State Archives, pension and other reports, periodicals, advertised-for persons, directories, etc., and yet the genealogy is not perfect or complete." Concerning the contents of the books we need say no more. The pages give ample testimony in support of all these things; and the portraits and illustrations are generously numerous. The type is large and easily readable, the paper good, the binding neat and substantial; and while we are filled with pleasure at the mere examination of the work, we rub our hands in glee over the voluminous indexes which occupy 387 pages, 3 columns to the page. We have not space at our command sufficient to do justice to this stupendous compilation; we can but urge those interested to see it and examine for themselves.

REGISTER OF THE EMPIRE STATE SOCIETY, SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 584.

A neat volume of 584 pages, containing frontispiece portrait of Hon. Robert B. Roosevelt, some quarter-century comparisons of American history, origin and influence of modern patriotic societies, officers, constitution, by-laws, roll of members, Revolutionary ancestors, etc.

THE MORRIS FAMILY OF PHILADELPHIA, DESCENDANTS OF ANTHONY MORRIS, 1654-1721. By Robert C. Moon, M.D. 3 vols. Philadelphia, 1898. 8vo, cloth, pp. 1260.

A superb production. These three volumes, containing the annals of an historic family so closely identified with the growth of Philadelphia and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, are such as may well fill the author with just pride, which, when we take into consideration the fact that his own connection with the family is only by marriage, is doubly deserved—the pride of disinterested historical investigation brought to a successful completion. We often hear and often remark ourselves, "What a splendid book!" but few there are, even in the moments when enthusiasm finds such expression, who fully appreciate the enormous labor, the tedious hours of unremitting toil, the systematic search of records, the indefatigable prosecution of correspondence necessary to the publication of such a work—a toil which, even from the members of the family itself, so often meets with but scant enthusiasm and less support. When we think of all these things, when we see the concrete forms of these labors of love, when we fondly turn the pages of such a splendid work as this, we who know what it all means feel that we cannot begin to do it justice in description. The author seems to have taken as a basis of work the "Morris Family Tree," published by Mr. Anthony Morris in 1861, and as a result of his researches gives the information that the Anthony Morris, "Mariner," of the Tree, was a son of Anthony Morris of the Island of Barbados, formerly of Reading in Great Britain, born about 1600. Some other matters of interest are that the family went from Leicestershire to London, the many biographical sketches, the separate notices of allied families, the photographic reproductions of priceless relics and portraits, and the splendid index covering 157 pages. Of the contents of these volumes we note the following in addition to the very complete genealogical and biographical data of the family itself: Portraits of Hannah Cadwalader, Joseph Morris, Samuel Morris, Major Anthony Morris (killed in the battle of Princeton), Ann Willing, and many others; also valuable data relating to the genealogy of the following allied families: Cadwalader, Canby, Carter, Chew, Corse, Cranmer, Drinker, Edwards, Ellis, Fisher, Franklin, Griffitts, Guest, Hacker, Hill, Hollingsworth, Hudson, Husband, Jenks, Jones, Kearney, Large, Lewis, Marshall, Mifflin, Montgomery, Morrison, Ogden, Paschall, Pemberton, Pennington, Perot, Powell, Pusey, Rasin, Rodney, Shober, Shoemaker, Smith of Burlington, Strettell, Sutton, Vaux, Waln, Wells, Wharton, Wight, Wilcox, Willing, Wilson, and Wistar. These three volumes, handsomely bound in red cloth, bevelled edges, containing 1260 pages of superior letterpress and about 300 engravings and photographic reproductions, are to be had neatly packed in a box by applying to Dr. Robert C. Moon, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa., at a cost of $20 for the set. And again we declare we cannot do it justice.

GENEALOGY, HISTORY, AND ALLIANCES OF THE AMERICAN HOUSE OF DELANO, 1621 TO 1899. Compiled by Major Joel Andrew Delano. WITH THE HISTORY

AND HERALDRY OF THE MAISON FRANCHIMONT AND DE LANNOY TO DELANO, 1096 TO 1621. Arranged by Mortimer Delano de Lannoy. New York, 1899. 8vo, pp. 561. Price $5. Address, Mortimer Delano, 104 West 120th Street, New York.

Individuality manifests itself in this book from cover to cover. It has been in preparation for some time, and we are glad to see it out. It is well put together on good, heavy paper, large type, generous margins. It is neatly bound, well illustrated, and thoroughly indexed under the supervision of Mrs. Mortimer Delano, whom we do not envy the task. It covers 800 years of family history and 1,400 years of royal descent from Guelph, Prince of the Scyrri. It contains photographs, coat armour, maps, charts, and views, and gives many of the allied families, their coats-of-arms, origin, etc. Scanning the synopsis of contents we note the following: Towns of Delano, Honor Roll, Prince of Rhenia-Wolbeck, The Arms Illustrated, The Inherited Right to Bear Coat Armour in America, The American Line in Brief, History of Lannoy, History of the Golden Fleece, Royal Descents of Lannoy and Franchimont, The Royal Chart of Lannoy, Philippe De La Noye and Daughters, Descendants of Philip, Dr. Thomas, John, Lt. Jonathan and Samuel Delano, Unknown Branches, War Records. Every page is crowded from top to bottom with information which, from the character of the family, is of an unusual and individual kind, most of which has never before been in print.

SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS.

The season of 1899–1900 opened with the meeting of October 13th, at which Monsignor Seton, of St. Joseph's Rectory, Jersey City Heights, read a delightful paper on "The Seton Butts and Seton Links, or Archery and Golf in Queen Mary's Time." The Monsignor had provided himself with numerous illustrations bearing upon the subject, which were distributed among the audience, and were examined with much interest. These illustrations were later published in the Monsignor's recent work on the Seton family which is just from the press. After the lecture Dr. Henry R. Stiles gave some reminiscences incident upon a visit to St. Andrew's Links in Scotland, at the conclusion of which the members and friends were invited to inspect the new room which was remodelled and furnished during the summer for the use of the Society. The room is done in colonial style, and is open to members and friends from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.

At the meeting of November 10th, Mr. P. Tecumseh Sherman, son of the famous general, entertained a large gathering of the members and friends with a paper on his father's famous "March to the Sea." The address was full of historic information, and the frequent anecdotes were highly entertaining. General Whipple was in the audience, and at the request of the President gave some impromptu remarks on the subject.

The last meeting for the year 1899 was held on December 8th, at which the Chairman of the Committee on By-Laws reported that a new set of By-Laws had been drawn up and regularly adopted by the Board of Trustees. He read some of the salient features which directly concerned the members at large, and announced that under the new rules a Nominating Committee for the purpose of selecting three candidates for the office of Trustees, 1900 to 1903, was to be appointed. The Chair selected as such Committee, Messrs. H. D. Lloyd, Mandeville Mower, G. I. Herbert, Thos. T. Sherman, and H. P. Gibson. The President then introduced as the speaker of the evening the Rev. E. Walpole Warren, who read a profitable paper on the Boer situation from the standpoint of an Englishman, which was replied to by Mr. John V. L. Pruyn and the Hon. Robert B. Roosevelt, who both presented facts of interest sustaining the Boer position in the war. Amicable discussion and proper ventilation of such a subject are always a source of pleasure and profit, and the meeting was adjudged by all a most interesting one. Some of the speakers who have consented to address the Society during 1900 are, Capt. F. E. Chadwick, U. S. N., the Rev. Theo. L. Cuyler, and the Hon. Chas. Francis Adams, President of the Massachusetts Historical Society. The following is a list of those added to the membership roll since the opening of the season:—Delafield S. Alcott, Paul G. Thebaud, Gustave Anjou, Louis R. Alberger, Miss Martha T. Douglas, Archibald F. Cushman, Woodbury G. Langdon, Herbert Valentine, William M. King, David Willcox, Mrs. M. E. Dwight, Austin B. Fletcher, Francis J. Zimmerman, Luther W. Mott, Miss Alice Delano Weekes, Rev. Thomas W. Nickerson, William F. Havemeyer, John H. Flagler, and Robert DeP. Farlee.

THE NEW YORK

Genealogical and Biographical Record.

VOL. XXXI. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1900. No. 2.

A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF THE FAMILY OF LIEUTENANT RICHARD BROWNE, OF SOUTHOLD, ON THE ISLAND OF NASSAU, OR LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

BY LUCY D. AKERLY, OF "HILL TOP," NEWBURGH, N. Y.

THE English ancestors of Lieutenant Richard Browne, of Southold, have not been traced, although many theories have been put forth as to their origin. One tradition says that the first of the family in America came from Maidstone, Kent, England, where he had served as a constable. Others hold that Richard Brown, father of the subject of this sketch, sailed from London, in July, 1636, in the ship "Love," commanded by Capt. Joseph Youngs, and that his wife's name was Mary. Moore's Indexes add that he died 16 Oct., 1655, at Southold. The Town Records contain no reference whatever to this supposed Richard Brown, and Mr. Moore himself was unable to verify his authority for either the place, or the date of death.* The writer of this article being also unable to do so, has adopted a different notation for the Brown family from that used in the Tuthills of Tharston and Southold, and the Orient Cemetery Annotations in Harris' Early Burial Grounds of L. I.

The accompanying illustration furnished through the courtesy of Mr. Henry H. Vail, represents a silver cup, three and a half inches high, made in London in 1724.

It was once the property of Richard and Hannah (Hawk) Brown, whose joint initials it bears. During the American Revolution it was stolen from the Browne homestead in Southold Town by a Hessian soldier, but was restored to the family by his superior officer.

1. RICHARD[1] BROWNE, of Southold, N. Y., b. probably in England, (in 1629?), was living at Southold on 11 Feb., 1686–7. He is described as the "late deceased" on 27 April, 1688. He named his mother in a deed dated 16 Oct., 1665, implying that she was then alive.

He had a home lot in Southold, 15 March, 1659, next to that of Thomas Moore. He was afterwards the first and sole owner of the southwestern part of Oyster Ponds Lower Neck, now Orient, which included the site of the oldest cemetery there. It is difficult to compute with perfect accuracy his landed possessions in the Town, they must have comprised, however, nearly 1,000 acres.*

In 1662 he was freeman of Connecticut for Southold, and in 1675 he was the richest man in the Town. In 1683 he and his two oldest sons, Richard, Jr., and Jonathan, were assessed on £386. In 1686 Richard, Sr., had four males and four females in his family.

He was Sergeant in 1670, and Ensign at Southold 13 June, 1685. He was Lieutenant of a Foot Co. of Suffolk County Militia on 8 Oct., 1686.†

A strong friendship existed between Richard Browne, Samuel Kinge, and their brother-in-law, John Tuthill, husband of Deliverance Kinge. All three were men of sterling integrity. John Tuthill, "who for conscience sake would not take an oath," is described "as a man of great enterprise, energy and will, controlled and guided by strong common sense, honesty of purpose, and religious principle. No man probably, possessed to so great an extent the confidence of the community. Richard Brown in dying entrusted his family and estate solely in the care of John Tutthill."‡

Richard Browne had married as early as 1650–1, Hannah[1], da. of William and Dorothy (Hayne?) Kinge of Salem, Mass., b. in England in 1629. She outlived her husband. All their children were residents of the Town of Southold, their order is not known, they were:

2. i. ENSIGN[2] RICHARD, oldest son, who d. 11 July, 1701.
3. ii. JONATHAN, 2nd son, d. doubtless 19 Aug., 1710.
4. iii. WILLIAM, 3rd son, b. 23 June, 1659.
5. iv. WALTER, 4th son, letters to his widow Jane, 1 May, 1711.
   v. HANNAH, m. probably about 1678, is named in the will of Ensign Richard Brown, dated 6 July, 1701, as "my sister Hannah, the late wife of John Reeve." In the Reeve family John is considered to have been the brother of James[1] and William[1] Reeve or perhaps the son of William[1]. John d. 12 Dec. 1711–2. His will (Liber 8, p. 342, N. Y. City Wills), names "Wife Martha, children Walter, John, Elisha, Nathan, Samuel; Hannah, the now wife of Gideon Youngs, Abigail and Martha." (Nathan, Samuel, and Martha, were perhaps all children of John's 2nd wife Martha, see Census of 1698.) Issue:
      1. Hannah Reeve, d. 6 June, 1738, in her 59th year, the wife of Gideon Youngs (Gideon, Capt. Joseph), who d. in 1749.
      2. Walter Reeve, d. 1761, m. 31 May, 1742, Elizabeth Reeve, (Wm.[1]), she d. in 1767.
      3. John Reeve, Jr., b. in 1682–3, d. 10 Aug., 1727, in his 45th year.

4. Elisha Reeve, b. 1690–1, d. 13 May, 1730, in his 40th year.
5. Abigail Reeve, b. before 1698, named in her father's will.
6. Bethia Reeve, b. before 1698, not named in her father's will.*

vi. ABIGAIL, b. about 1667, d. 27 May, 1716, aged 49 years. She was the 1st wife of William[3] Kinge (Samuel[2], William[1]) of Southold, b. 10 Jan., 1661–2, m. 17 Jan., 1686–7, d. 12 May, 1740. (He m. 2nd, Susannah Crook.) Issue:

1. William[3] Kinge, b. 14 Feb., 1687–8, m. about 1709, Bathsheba[4] Bebee (Samuel[3], Samuel[2], John[2], John[2], Alexander[1]), of Plum Island, b. 16 April, 1688, d. 7 May, 1764.
2. Hannah King, b. 5 Jan. 1691.
3. David King, b. 22 Oct. 1693, drowned 26 Sept., 1749, m. 15 Sept., 1715, Hannah Beebe, sister of Bathsheba named above, b. 5 April, 1695, d. 11 Jan.. 1728–29, he m. 2nd, Deborah Glover in 1731.
4. Daniel King, b. 13 April, 1697.
5. Jonathan King. b. 10 April, 1699, m. perhaps Eliza Petty in Feb., 1722.
6. John King, b. 27 Aug. 1727, Ann, da. of John Edward, Sr., of Easthampton. Letters to Ann, widow of John King, were issued 11 June, 1740, on her husband's estate. (N. Y. City Wills.)
7. Bezaleel King, b. 27 Jan. 1703–4, d. 12 Feb., 1725.
8. Abner King, b. 22 March, 1705–6.
9. Abigail King, b. 6 June, 1709.†

vii. MARY, doubtless the youngest daughter, named by her father, 11 Feb., 1686–7, with his "other daughters already married," in his deed of trust to John Tuthill.

2. ENSIGN RICHARD[2] BROWN, (Lieut. Richard[1]), of Southold, probably born before his parents went to Long Island. The Salmon Record states that he died 11 July, 1701, in his 50th year. He was the oldest son, and inherited, like all his brothers, some of his father's land. He was Ensign of a Southold Foot Company of Militia in 1700.‡ He mentions his great Bible in his will, quoted above, dated 6 July, 1701, proved 1, Oct,, the same year.§

He married on 8 May, 1683, Dorothy[2] Kinge (Samuel[2], William[1]), b. 11 July, 1664, [she m. on 21 Aug., 1705, Samuel[2] Dayton (Robert[2], Ralph[1]), of Easthampton]. Issue: 8 children, all of whom were natives and residents of the Town of Southold:

6. i. CAPTAIN RICHARD[3], b. 6 April, 1684.

son Henry is mentioned; cousin Mr. Andrew King* of Wyrardsburg; son Robert King; eldest son William; youngest son Richard; daughters Diana and Mary Kinge; daughter Ann Lovelace.† Edmund Kiderminster of Mottingham, Kent, Gent., a brother of my wife Anne. The children of William Kinge were:

i. Anne, born 1627, married ——— Lovelace.
ii. William, born 1629.
iii. Francis, born 1632,
iv. John, born 1634.
v. Henry, born after 1634.
vi. Thomas, born after 1634.
vii. Robert, born after 1634.
viii. Richard, born after 1634.
ix. Diana.
x. Mary.

The King Family of Stouton, Wiltshire.

The parish register at Stouton, Wilts., contain many entries of the name of "King," and Johannes Kinge was rector there about 1580.

From these records the following pedigree can be made up:

1. John[1] King of Stouton, Wilts., had issue:
   i. John,[2] baptized 1607.
   ii. William,[2] baptized 21 June, 1609.
2. iii. Richard,[2] baptized 16 July, 1616.
   iv. Nicholas,[2] baptized 9 July, 1618.

2. Richard[2] King (John[1]) of Stouton, later of Albonen, North Wilts., was buried in parish church at Albonen where he has a monument reading as follows: "Here lies interred ye body of Richard King, Esq., of Upham, Wilts.; Alderman and Sheriff of the City of London. He married Martha, daughter of Edward Goddard, Esq., by whom he had 7 sons and 3 daughters: John, Richard, Nicholas, James, John, Thomas, Edward, Martha, Elizabeth and Priscilla; By second wife Mary, relict of Edward Adams, citizen of London, and daughter of John March of St. Albans, Herts, he had Edward, Rachel, Mary and Catherine. He died May 22, 1668, aged 52."

Arms: "Sable, a lion rampant between three crosslets, fitchy, or: King impaling on the dexter side gules a chevron varie (Ar & Az) between three crescents, Goddard: on the sinester side Argent on a bend three lozenges (of the first) in chief a trefoil (of the second)."

* The will of John King of Wyrardsburg, Bucks, Husbandman, dated 30 April, 1617, proved 30 Sept., 1617, mentions wife Catherine, son Andrew (under 14) two daughters, Mary and Alice. William Child, and Rafe Kinge to be overseen. Gyll's History of Wraysbury moreover gives the following pedigree: Ambrose King of Salop (or Wales), had issue. Andrew King, Lord of Manor of Wraysbury, 1642, administration on his estate July, 1659, sometime merchant tailor of London; who had issue: i. Sir Andrew King, Lord of Wraysbury, 1659, knighted 9 June, 1660. Will proved 21 May, 1679, died without issue. ii. Nathaniel King of Pentrynant, Co. Mont, will 15 May, 1672, married Alice ———, and had Nathaniel, Andrew, Mary, Martha. iii. A daughter who married Thomas Sharrowe. No relationship can be traced between John and Andrew (Ambrose) King above, but it is possible. I much doubt whether Andrew King's father was named Ambrose or came from Wales, in spite of ancient pedigree and visitation.

† The present Earl of Lovelace is a lineal descendant of Peter King, grocer of Exeter, son of Jerome King and a nephew of John Locke. The name Lovelace in above King will is a curious coincidence and also note mention of Raffe and Nicholas Locke in Bishop Robert King's will, 1557.

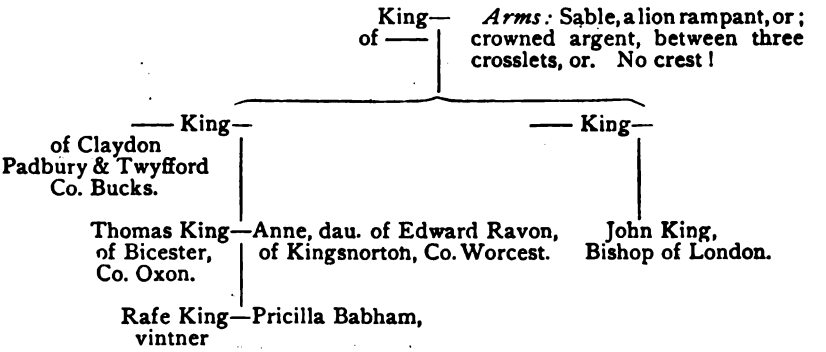
THE KING FAMILY OF STEEPLE CLEYDON, BUCKS.

In the Heralds' Visitation of London, made 1633, by Sir Henry St. George, Kt., Deputy to Sir Richard St. George, Kt., there is a pedigree signed by Raphe King, a vintner of Popes Head Alley, London. The pedigree runs as follows:



Upon the evidence of this ancient chart it would appear that Rafe King's gt. grandfather and the grandfather of Bishop John King were one and the same. On examining Bishop John King's pedigree as shown in Heralds' Visitation however, nothing can be found to substantiate the claim of Rafe King, vintner, to relationship, but on the contrary, the strongest evidence of wills, visitations, and manuscripts, indicate that no such relationship existed at least for three or four generations back of said Rafe King. It must be surmised then that Rafe King gave his pedigree to the Herald made up from tradition or upon a false claim. He by this pedigree could claim the same arms as those of the Bishop's family. A careful examination of the King wills, taken in connection with his pedigree, however, shows the searcher that Rafe King, the vintner, descended from a Cleydon family of Kings, living in the County of Buckinghamshire. There is an indication of a tradition that these Cleydon Kings were related to that John King, vintner of Bicester who was the brother of William King (John) the ancestor of Bishop John King. These Cleydon Kings can be traced as follows:

* Among other records at Stouton the following appears: "Thomas Kinge married Elizabeth Davis on 18 May, 1603, and had issue: June, baptized 6 July, 1603 (sic.).
John King, D. D., had issue: Robert, baptized 15 Apl., 1623, and Elizabeth, baptized 8 Sept., 1625."

1. John[1] King of Steeple Cleydon, Co. Bucks, died 28 Feb., 1521, leaving a will proved on 15 May, 1522. In it is mentioned Dionice his wife and the following children:

i. William,[2] eldest son. iii. Thomas.
2. ii. Walter. 3. iv. Edward.

2. Walter[2] King (John[1]) of Middle Cleydon, Co. Bucks, left a will dated 25 Jan. 1557, proved 30 April, 1558, in which he desires "to be buried in the Parish Church of Steeple Cleydon where my father and mother and other friends lie; To son Walter £4; to the four children of my daughter Agnes (three girls and the boy) £11." He also mentions a son Edward, and a daughter Margaret, and his wife Deanys, the latter being named as executrix. Deanys King, his widow, died about 1558, for in her will dated 27 Aug., 1558, and proved 5 April, 1559, she is called "widow, of Middle Cleydon." The will reads that she is to be buried in the church-yard of Middle Cleydon. Her son Edward to have the bequest made to him by her late husband. Mentions a daughter Margaret, and sons Richard and John, a daughter-in-law Agnes ——; Mary, the daughter of William, and names her son William sole executor.

The children William, Richard and John, mentioned in her will, were evidently by a first husband, and she must have been the second wife of Walter King. The children of Walter King may be grouped as follows:*

BY FIRST WIFE: BY SECOND WIFE DENYS:

i. Walter.[3] 4. iii. Edward.[3]
ii. Agnes[3] iv. Margaret.[3]

3. Edward[2] King (John[1]), yeoman, of Steeple Cleydon, owned lands at Padbury and Twifford. His will is dated 28 Jan, 1554, and was proved 11 May, 1555. He desires to be buried in the parish church of Steeple Cleydon, and names his wife Marion, executrix. Mentions his brothers-in-law Thomas and William Wicksnell, and gives his lands and tenements in Steeple Cleydon, Twyfford and Padbury to his wife Marion for life. After her death, his eldest son John to have his house in Steeple Cleydon, wherein he dwells, on condition that he pay £10 to Mary Okeley, testator's daughter. If son John die without male issue, then the same lands and house to second son Thomas and his heirs, male, with remainder to youngest son Edward and his heirs, male; then to his godson Edward Arderne, son of John Arderne of Addington, next to Anthony Arderne. To son Thomas all the lands and tenements in Twifford, now in the occupation of Walter Harris,

* There was a Thomas King of Bottle Cleydon who left a will dated 7 Feb., 1571, proved 26 Feb., 1571, in which he speaks of a wife (name not given but learned from her will to be Alice), and children John, Thomas, Edward, Isabell, and Agnes; also speaks of a brother, Edward King of East Cleydon, and a brother-in-law, John Adams of Swanbourne. The will of one Alice King of Bottle Cleydon, in East Cleydon, widow, is dated 22 Oct., 1592, and proved 26 Jan., 1595, and mentions sons John, Thomas, Edward, and daughters Isabell Watkins and Agnes Myller; mentions grandchildren Edward Watkins, son of William Watkins, Agnes Myller, daughter of William Myller, and Alice, daughter of Wm. Watkins. As yet this Thomas King cannot be linked with Steeple Cleydon branch, but he is undoubtedly a near relation and possibly a son of Thomas[2] (John[1]).

The brother Edward King of East Cleydon, mentioned in said Thomas King's will, in turn left a will dated 18 Jan., 1577, proved 31 May, 1578, in which he speaks of himself as "husbandman" and desires to be buried in the church-yard of East Cleydon; mentions his wife Isabell, and one George Gibbs, and Jane, his wife; the two elder sons of George Gibbs, and the other three children of George Gibbs.

also a messuage in Steeple Cleydon, called the monks ground, which was lately purchased of Raffe Gifford, Esq., he paying to Maryon, my wife, £5 with remainder to my son Edward, and next to Edward Arderne, then to Anthony Arderne. He mentions neighbors Margaret Wotton, Agnes King, Dorothy Penley and Deany Taylor.

The will of his wife Marion Kynge of Steeple Cleydon, widow, dated 1 Sept., 1556, proved 1558, sets out she is to be buried in the church of Steeple Cleydon, on best side of Edward Kynge, late of Steeple Cleydon, my husband, deceased. Mentions her natural brother Thomas Wycksnell, and brother William Wytsnell, (sic.); her natural sons Thomas, Edward and John King, and daughters Mary Okley and Agnes Arderne. Also daughter-in-law Agnes King, Margaret Wotton, wife of Thomas Wotton, and Mary King, daughter of Thomas King. Her son Edward to be executor. The children of Edward and Marion King were:

i. John,[8] "eldest son."
5. ii. Thomas,[8] "second son."
iii. Edward,[8] "of Steeple Cleydon and Padbury."
iv. Mary,[8] who married John Okley.
v. Agnes,[8] who married John Arderne.

By James W. T. Scott, Philadelphia.

61. Isaac B. Baxter married Miss Hester Kniffen of New York. Having been burnt out in that city he moved to Philadelphia, then the commercial metropolis of America, and in 1816 opened a hardware business, at which he made a fortune, upon which he lived retired. His children were:

71. i. Thomas Earp, born 1814; died 1874.
72. ii. Jane Kniffen, Mrs. Samuel P. Rutter, born 1817; died May 13, 1889.
73. iii. Isaac B., born July 1, 1820; died December 14, 1892.
74. iv. George Washington, born April 1, 1825; died March 4, 1866.
75. v. Mitchell, born 1830; died March 20, 1895.
76. vi. Penelope, Mrs. Edward D. Brooks, born 1832; died October 1, 1887.
77. vii. Daniel Gray, died young.

They were born in Philadelphia and died there.

52. Roger Baxter. A Ryer (Roger?) Baxter settled in Schoharie by 1730. The church register in 1732 records his marriage to Applenia Eckersen, and the birth in 1735 of their son (78) Theunis.

It is supposed they had other children, for the Stone Arabia Church Book mentions the marriage in 1767 of (79) Eckersen

Baxter and Margaretha Zimmerman, and in 1768, Roger Baxter leased land on Canada Creek near Fort Hendrick to (80) Thomas Baxter; the latter and his wife Marytge, had a son (81) Jacob, born March 8th, and baptized March 23, 1784. At Schoharie, February 9, 1746–7, Roger Baxter witnessed Peter Useelys' will and in November, 1761, sold land on Fox Creek, the deed of which was not recorded until February 20, 1771. In 1768 he lived in Canajoharie. Eckersen Baxter died prior to October, 1788.

53. Oliver Baxter migrated to Hempstead, Queens County, and in 1743 bought thirty acres on Cow Neck. In 1748, he had a leather fulling mill there. His will, dated September 23, 1761, witnessed by Thomas Dodge, William Baker and John Mitchell, June 10, 1768, made his wife Elizabeth executrix, and Adam Mott and John Mitchell executors. It mentions:

82. i. Mitchell or Robert Mitchell, schoolmaster, who married Hannah Frost, February 19, 1762.
83. ii. Mary, mentioned also in Mrs. Elizabeth Baxter Sands' will in 1759.
84. iii. Keziah, mentioned also in Mrs. Elizabeth Baxter Sands' will in 1759.
85. iv. Elizabeth.
86. v. Israel.
87. vi. John, died 1812.
88. vii. Sarah.

Mitchell was given ten acres; Mary, £40; Keziah and Elizabeth when twenty years old, £40 each; Sarah, when Elizabeth was twenty, £20; Israel when twenty, the house, etc., John when twenty-one, £60; If John was not able to earn his living it was "to be given him as long as he liveth." The widow was well provided for, and if she married again was to receive £60. She was directed to bring up John and Sarah carefully. If she did not Israel should. The Indian Negro girl was to be sold when she would fetch £60, and "the Lone Office" paid.

86. Israel Baxter born about 1751, died in Queens County in 1834. After the Revolution he married Patty Lawrence. Their descendants live at Port Washington, Queens County, N. Y. An account of how he saved his sloop from being cut out and taken away by whale-boatmen is given in Onderdonk's Revolutionary Reminiscences of Long Island.

54. Israel Baxter. We have no information about this man or his brother, 55. Peracholus Baxter.

56. Stevenson Baxter had not attained his majority in 1727. February 11, 1744, at Sleepy Hollow church, Tarrytown, Stevens Baxter (Stevenson Baxter?), born Westchester, living Philipsburg, married Margreta Besset, born Rye, living Bedford. In 1783, Stevens Baxter was granted a lot at Parrtown (St. John), New Brunswick.

12. James Baxter, born January 1, 1701, married Ann Gillain. By request the clerk of Westchester County registered in the Deeds Book the birth of their son (89) Charles, December 30, 1727. This boy and another, (90) George, are remembered in Henry Gillains' will of December 11, 1730.

In 1729, James Baxter was a freeholder and trustee of Westchester. April, 1734, in a real estate transfer to Thomas Barnes of Westchester, he calls himself of South Carolina, late of Westchester; May 31, in a power of attorney to Barnes, is of "Charlestown," S. C.

We insert here items about James Baxters who do not appear to have been connected with the preceding person. In June, 1743, Jas. (James?) Bexter and Rachel, his wife, had a son Salomon baptized at Sleepy Hollow church, Philipsburg, Tarrytown; April, 1758, James Baxter, laborer, of Cortlandt Manor, age nineteen, height five feet seven inches, grey eyes, brown complexion, enlisted in Verplanck's company of a New York regiment, and re-enlisted in 1759; April, 1760, one of this name and occupation witnessed Gilbert Hunt's will; April 13, 1775, at Westchester three hundred and twelve men protested against the action of Congress. Lewis Morris, replying said, one hundred and seventy signers were minors or persons having no right to vote; among these was James Baxter, perhaps the one to whom the Digby grant February 20, 1784, gave four hundred and ninety-six acres; January, 1788, James Baxter, junior, of Westchester, bought land of Thomas and Mary Baxter, deed recorded in 1808, Joseph Baxter was a witness. A New London, Conn., town meeting February 4, 1799, voted thanks to James Baxter for services during the yellow fever epidemic of 1798.

91. Stephen Baxter who died in Dutchess County in 1809, lived at White Plains during the Revolution. He married Elsie Brundage. They had an only child, Charles, born February 6, 1802; died May 10, 1871.

92. Charles married Sarah E. Horton, born August 8, 1804; died April 7, 1871. They lived in Johnsville, Dutchess County, and had:

93. i. Seymour, died, Delevan, Ill., about 1896.
94. ii. William Augustus, died in Dutchess County.
95. iii. Mrs. Jennie Holmes of West Newburg.
96. iv. Mrs. Waldron of Fishkill.
97. v. Mary, Mrs. Isaac La Due of Matteawan.

We insert here items about Stephen Baxters who do no not appear to have been connected with the foregoing.

98. In 1638 Stephen Baxter owned ten acres in Barbados.

99. Captain Stephen Baxter, executor of Hezekiah Roberts, April 3, 1775, and witness to Mary Honeywell's will, Westchester, May 28, 1780.

100. Stephen Baxter of Jamaica or Bedford, at Stamford, Conn., December, 1775, recanted Tory principles. He embarked for Nova Scotia, June, 1783, and is perhaps the man who obtained a grant at Parrtown, St. John, New Brunswick, that year.

101. Stephen Baxter of Bedford, and Margaret, his wife, August 19, 1777, sold real estate to Adam Seaman. The deed was not recorded until August 26, 1802.

102. Stephen Baxter, born Fairfield, Conn., in 1781, married Nancy Coach, and at the beginning of this century moved to Dutchess County, N. Y.

103. Samuel Baxter of Salem, Westchester County, in December, 1776, abandoned his house, cattle and farm of twenty-five acres, and "joined the ministerial army." A Whig committee appraised his property at £51. He went to Shelburne, Nova Scotia, in 1783, but none of his name live there now.

104. Samuel Baxter was a seller of real estate in Dutchess County in 1808.

105. Bartholomew Baxter was of Dutchess County in 1816.

106. Bartholomew Baxter was a doctor in New London, Conn., in 1852.

300. John Baxter of the Rhinebeck, Dutchess County tax lists from 1754 to 1770, was assessed at £1, at a rate from 2*d.* to 5*s.* 4*d.* Before 1765 he married Margaret Volandt, who united with the German Reformed Church in 1756, which he became a member of in 1757. Their children were:

301. i. Rebecca, born in 1765; married George Snyder.

302. ii. Catharine, married to Zechariah Thiel, February 13, 1786.

303. iii. John, married to Sarah Van Wagenen, December 29, 1799.

304. iv. A third daughter married to Traver.

William Baxter was assessed in Rhinebeck in 1755.

400. John or Francis Baxter, prior to 1700, came to America while very young and married a Scotch girl, also very young. They had a son (401) Francis, born in 1724 or 1726, who in early life was in the British navy and with Wolfe at Quebec, September 13, 1759. During the Revolution he lived near East Windsor, Conn., and served in the American army. His son (402) Levi, born 1759 at East Windsor, was father of (403) Dr. William Baxter, born Delhi, Delaware County, N. Y., 1805, who was father of (404) R. T. Baxter, born Mount Upton, Chenango County, N, Y., June 8, 1837, now living in Fishkill.

Baxtertown, Dutchess County, was founded by a Baxter, who in 1828, when his slaves became free, settled them there.

Baxter Creek is near Fort Schuyler, Westchester County, N. Y.

Morgin or Morgan Baxter, signed a petition of the the Protestants of New York to King William III., December 30, 1701. It complained that they had been calumniated and misrepresented to Earl Bellamont who had superseded them in their offices by men not so well qualified for duty, that they believed religion and liberty would be safe with His Majesty reigning, and that they were faithful and loving subjects, etc. Morgan Baxter also signed the congratulatory address to Lord Cornbury, October 2, 1702. Though one of "the chiefest inhabitants and freeholders," he signed by "his mark."

Peter Baxter an inhabitant of Westchester in 1737, is incidently mentioned in Bolton's History.

Among uncalled for letters in the Albany post office March 12, 1771, was one for David Baxter.

At the close of the Revolution fifty-five Tories, headed by Abijah Willard, tried to circumvent their brethren and secure five thousand acres apiece of the best Nova Scotia land. When found out in August, 1782, six hundred and twenty-eight Loyalists petitioned Sir Guy Carleton and Admiral Digby to prevent the first party getting more and better land than their fellow-sufferers. Among the signers were Lockart Backster, Gideon Baxter, Isaac Baxter, John Baxter, Stephen Baxter, and Solomon Baxter.

Many Loyalist Baxters settled in New Brunswick. Among them one who had two sons, Abraham and William, and perhaps other children. A great grandson, Mr. John S. Baxter of Baxter's Harbor, N. S., says they located in Sussex Vale, Kings County, N. B., and that at Norton Harbor, N. B., lives Mr. Simon Baxter, also of Loyalist descent. Some others of the surname from the United States were Joseph, whose widow died in New Brunswick in 1842; Elijah, deceased in 1852; James, grantee by the Digby grant, February 20, 1784, of four hundred and ninety-six, and William by the same instrument of two hundred and thirty-nine acres, and George, a grantee at Parrtown (St. John), N. B., in 1783. These and the Christian names Solomon and Stephen, together with Lockart, have been kept alive in Nova Scotia families. Jonathan Baxter of Philadelphia, was also a Loyalist.

John Baxter of Baychester (1898), is a son of George Baxter, who was born December 4, 1793, and died April 4, 1868.

William N., and Simon Baxter of City Island, N. Y. (1897), are grandsons of a Thomas Baxter who moved from Westchester to Ohio, and afterwards farther West.

Baxters of Argyle, Washington County, N. Y.

This family came from England, settled at Longmeadow, Mass., and moved thence to Fort Ann, N. Y. Moses, the son or grandson of Rev. Francis Baxter, was born in 1753 at Enfield, Mass. (Conn.?).

500. Moses Baxter married Comfort Chaffee, and had:
501. i. Celia, Mrs. Littlefield, born 1776; died 1864.
502. ii. Moses, born 1778; died 1814; married Ruth Ryars.
503. iii. Miriam, born 1779.

606. vi. Caroline, Mrs. F. B. Simonds, of California, born 1827.
607. vii. Gilbert, born 1829; married Emmeline Titus.

Thomas Baxter had for his second wife Delany Marion, the widow Adams.

Oneida County Baxters.

John Baxter was among the first settlers east of Hampton village. George Washington and George Clinton, in 1797 and 1799, deeded him two hundred and fifty-nine and a half acres in Westmoreland township. None of the surname now live in the neighborhood.

William Baxter was baptized at Norton, near Twycross, England, in 1696; John in 1729. Another William in 1762. The latter came to America about 1786. Joseph, born December 4, 1796, had four brothers, John, Benjamin, William and Richard, all of whom lived in Utica. John, son of Joseph, was born November 11, 1821; John R., his son, December 19, 1848. The latter's maternal grandfathers were Whigs and Continental soldiers in the American Revolution.

EDITORIAL.

THE editor for the year 1900, in resuming the editorial chair which he and S. HASTINGS GRANT jointly held some thirty years ago, when they inaugurated the present RECORD, in the form of a little 8-page Bulletin—is naturally led into reflections—some pleasant and some sad. Pleasant it has been to note that during these first three decades of our Society's life, the RECORD has been firmly maintained by the voluntary and unwavering energy and labors of successive Publication Committees and Editors (John S. Gautier, John J. Latting, S. S. Purple, Beverly R. Betts, Thomas G. Evans, Richard H. Greene); and that it has proved to be at once the strength and the best result of the Society's work; the one thing, alone of all others, which we have to show as our raison d'être. If we had done nothing else, we could point with justifiable pride to the XXX volumes of this quarterly, as one of the finest achievements of American Genealogy, second to none except it be the Register of our older contemporary, the New England Historic-Gen. Society of Boston, Mass. Sadness steals over us, as we turn its pages, and note how, one by one, some of these editors have passed beyond our ken—we recall their keen interest in the work, their frequent consultations with us, their jealous care for the interest of the RECORD, as being the very core of our Society's work—and the memory of their abilities renders us almost doubtful of our own. But, we can only do as they did, give to the work our best of loving care and labor.

In this connection, also, the editor may be pardoned, perhaps, for referring to the recent death of two genealogists (women) with whom, for many years, he has had the privilege of association in genealogical work; and whose abilities as well as the character of their work (though not directly in New York lines), entitle them to honorable mention in a magazine of this kind. On the 3d of December, 1899, Mrs. MARY S. P. GUILD of North Cambridge, Mass., passed to her final rest. She was the author of the Massachusetts Stiles Family (1892), and of the Strowbridge and Morrison Genealogy (1891); a woman tender and true in all the relations of domestic life, an active, though not prominent, worker for the emancipation and enlargement of her sex, and a "born" genealogist. On the 22d of February, 1900, died Miss RUTH T. SPERRY, of East Windsor Hill, Conn., one of the keenest and most reliable geanealogists of the day—full of good impulses and abilities, though hampered, through long years, by conditions of health, patiently borne, which rendered her perserverance in literary work really a matter of heroism. She was the editor's most valuable co-laborer in the History and Genealogies of Ancient Windsor, and he may therefore be pardoned for rendering this tribute to her worth.

OUR good friend and fellow member, Mr. Edward Myers, of White Plains, N. Y., left with us recently a curious and interesting old volume which, on examination, proved to be an English translation of that famous composition of sacred literature, The Imitation of Christ, written originally in the Latin about 1415, by Thomas à Kempis. This edition was published in London in 1698 and contains several steel plate illustrations, on the backs of which are some records of the Radfords, the principal reason for mentioning it here. It came into Mr. Myers' possession as a gift from a German watchmaker who lived in an old house in Varick Street, near King, N. Y. City, where he found it, having been left in the garret in all probability by some Radford dweller there. Further than this Mr. Myers knows nothing of its history. The volume is in a remarkably good state of preservation, and though we are chiefly concerned with the entries made on its blank pages, we cannot resist the temptation to digress a bit and quote a paragraph of the text giving a sketch of that "Minnesinger of the Love of God," Thomas à Kempis, which we do not remember ever to have seen in print:

"This Thomas was called à Kempis from a little village of that Name in the Diocese of Cologne, where he was born in the Year of our Lord 1380. His Parentage and Fortune were mean; At Thirteen Years old he began his Studies, and about Nineteen betook himself to a Monastery of Augustine Monks; About Five and twenty he took the Habit of that House and Order. There he continued for the space of Seventy Years, particularly eminent for his Piety, Humility, diligent Study of the Holy Scriptures, Austerity of Life, moving Eloquence in Discourse, and Extraordinary Zeal in Prayer. For his Person, He was of middle Stature, of a strong brown Complexion, a lively piercing Eye; and a Sight so good, that though he laboured much under other Infirmities of old Age, yet he was never reduced to the use of Spectacles. He dyed July 25, 1471. In the Ninety second Year of his Age."

Coming then to the pen and ink entries in the book, they bear evidence of having been made by a mature hand, and one on page 119 says, "Thomas Radford, his book, Jan. ye 1, 1763." The other entries are as follows, and we can only regret that there is no information given regarding the abiding place of these Radfords, and can only hope that some reader of these pages may be able to supply that information. "There is a Radford Family mentioned in Allibone's History of Yonkers," says Mr. Myers, "though I wrote to my friend Rev. David Cole of Yonkers, and I think he informed me that this Radford had moved away some time ago."

On the back of the frontispiece are these:

William Radford born May ye 26, 1753.
Hepzibah Radford born June ye 8, 1754.
Susannah Radford, born april 23, 1756.
Stephen Radford born feb. ye 14, 1760.
Elizabeth Radford born august ye 11 in 1763.
Thomas Radford born June ye 5th 1769.

On page 227, these:

Thomas Radford born April 30, 1823.
Elizth Radford born Feb. 19, 1825.
John Radford born May 28, 1826.
Henry Radford Born Jany 13/1828 (this is in pencil).

OBITUARY.

EGLESTON, THOMAS, a Life Member of this Society, since April 8, 1892, died at his residence in this city, 35 Washington Square, 15 January, 1900. Born in New York City, December 9, 1832, he graduated from Yale in 1854. and began a scientific course at the School of Mines, at Paris, from which he graduated 1860. Returning home, he was appointed 1861, to make the mineralogical and metallurgical collections of the Smithsonian Institute, a work which occupied him until 1864. In 1863, he presented to the trustees of Columbia College plans for the organization of a School of Mines, and upon the opening of that department was appointed Professor of Mineralogy and Metallurgy. In 1866, he made the agricultural and geological survey of the first 100 miles of the Union Pacific Railway; in 1868 was appointed commissioner to examine and report upon the condition of the fortifications of the U. S.; and in 1870, 1878 and 1885, in the same capacity, he examined and reported upon the U. S. Mint. In 1867, for important services rendered the Paris Exposition, he received from the French government a bronze and silver medal: and in 1873 was a juror at the Vienna Exposition. In 1874 Princeton College conferred upon him the degree of Ph.D.; and Trinity College that of LL.D. while, in 1890, he received from France the Order of the Legion of Honor. Besides being the founder of the School of Mines at Columbia, he was a founder of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, in 1871, and of the American Meteorological Society: and was an original member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, as well as of the American Society of Electrical Engineers; also of the Committee on Standard Time and Units of Measurement of the Civil Engineers; and of the Committee on Units of Measurement and Uniform methods of Testing of the Mechanical Engineers, besides being a member of numerous scientific societies and committees. His opinion and services as an expert were extensively sought, not only by the U. S. Government, but by many private corporations and enterprises, at home and abroad. His published works were: A Catalogue of Minerals, 1863; A Diagram to illustrate Crystallography, 1866; A Comparison of the English and Metric

Measures, 1868; Metallurgical Tables, 2 vols., 1869; Lectures on Mineralogy, 1876; A Catalogue of Minerals and their Synonyms, 1889–91; The Metallurgy of Gold and Silver, 2 vols., 1890. Besides these he was the author of over 100 pamphlets on various of his special studies; and he took out many metallurgical patents. To the July number of the RECORD, 1892, Dr. Egleston contributed a lengthy and very interesting biograpyh of Maj. Azariah Egleston, a patriot of the Revolution; and his latest published work (1899) was a handsome volume from the press of G. P. Putnam's Sons, John Paterson, Major-General, A Biography, a biography of his great-grandfather, Major-Gendral of the Revolutionary Army—a valuable contribution to our Revolutionary literature. Dr. Egleston was an active member of the Protestant Episcopal Church; a member of the Corporation of Trinity Church, New York; of the American Society for the Promotion of Religion and Learning; a lay vice-president of the Bible and Common Prayer Book Society, the City Mission and other religious organizations. Prof. Egleston lived a somewhat secluded, though active life, and had accumulated a considerable property. By his will, his collection of minerals was given to Columbia College, and his scientific tools, instruments, etc., to the metallurgical department of the School of Mines; the Metropolitan Museum of Art received his collection of Japanese and other ancient clocks, including one formerly belonging to Frederick the Great; $1000 was left to the town of Lenox, Mass., to care for the Paterson-Egleston monument at that place; and a similar sum to Grand Chancellerie de l'Ordre de la Legion d'Honneur de la France. A portion of books from his library were devised to Trinity Church as a lending library for any of its chapels which the Corporation may designate; and the rest of his estate, after certain personal bequests, was left to Trinity Church, the income to be used for the maintenance of its parish schools, for the teaching of children of both sexes to apply their faculties so as to earn their own living. He was buried from Trinity Church, with little ostentation, but with a full choral service which testified to the respect in which he was held; and his body is interred, beside that of his wife (who died in 1895) in the chancel of the Church.

HOPKINS, WOOLSEY, M. D., a member of this Society since 1891, died Feb. 15th, 1900, in this city, in the thirty-third year of his age. He was born at Annapolis, Va., 19th Nov., 1867, and was the son of Col. Woolsey Rogers Hopkins (who survives him, aged 85) and Mary Frances Sheldon, who died last August at their home at Shippon Point, near Stamford, Conn. Dr. Hopkins' paternal grandparents were Samuel Miles Hopkins and Sarah Elizabeth Rogers; and his maternal grandparents were the late Israel Sheldon, of Orange, N. J., and Mary Borden. He was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia University) in 1890; was married in 1891 to Helen Birdsall, of New York City, and spent nearly a year abroad, after his marriage; and since then was engaged in hospital work and private practice in this city. At the time of his death, he was assistant surgeon in out-patient department of the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, and had been, at different times, connected with the Nursery and Child's Hospital, the New York Polyclinic Hospital, and the Vanderbilt Clinic. He was a member of the Academy of Medicine, the County Medical Society, the American Laryngological, Olotogical and Rhinological Society, the West End Medical Society, the St. Nicholas Club, the N. Y. Athletic Club, the West Side Improvement Association, the Columbia College Alumni, and the N. Y. Genealogical and Biographical Society, as well as several other associations. His only published work was a revision of Dawbarn's Materia Medica, at present used as a text-book in Columbia College. Although widely known, and beloved by his circle of friends, Dr. Hopkins was in no way a prominent man; but his life, personally and professionally, was full of unobtrusive usefulness and kindness, which has endeared his memory to many.

BOYNTON, NATHANIEL AUGUSTUS, died at his residence, No. 3 East 62d Street, this city, on the 10th of February, 1900. He was a descendant, in the 8th generation, of John Boynton; who, with his brother William, emigrated in 1638, from Yorkshire, Eng., to Rowley, Mass., with the company led by Rev.

Ezekiel Rogers. Mr. Nathaniel A. Boynton was born in Mason, N. H., 12th of July, 1823, and was the eldest of the six children of Nathaniel and Eliza (Lawrence) Boynton. In 1824 the family removed to Shirley, Mass. His early education was in the common school, supplemented by a course at the Lawrence Academy, at Groton, Mass.; and continued and rounded out, during later life, by extensive foreign and home travel. His business life was commenced in Clinton, Mass.; but he soon found a larger field for his activities in Boston, where he became interested in the invention, production and sale of hot-air furnaces and other heating apparatus. About 1840 he removed to New York City. and became associated with Henry A. Richardson, in the Richardson & Boynton Co. About 1884 the Boynton Furnace Co. was organized, with Mr. Boynton as President, which office he continued to fill until his death. His first residence was in Brooklyn, where he was well known and largely identified with many of its highest local interests. He was there a trustee of the Brooklyn Children's Aid Society, a life-member of the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association, the Long Island Historical Society, the New England Society, of Brooklyn; the Congregational Club of New York, and the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. After his removal of residence to New York City, about 1881, he joined the New England Society of New York; and this Society, of which he has been a member since March, 1894. Always interested in Church work, he was, while in Brooklyn, a deacon and trustee of the South Congregational Church, under the pastorship of Rev. Dr. A. J. Lyman; and in New York, a member of the West Presbyterian Church, of which Rev. Dr. A. H. Evans is pastor. As an inventor, Mr. Boynton ranked high—and loved his work; and his name must ever be inseperably connected with the hot-air furnace system of heating. He had a broad mind, and a peculiarly genial manner; and was respected and beloved, both in the trade, and in many circles of friends. Mr. Boynton was twice married: (1) in 1845, to Asenath Bliss, of Brimfield, Mass., by whom he had three sons, George Augustus Boynton and Charles Bliss Boynton, of New York, and Frederick Lawrence Boynton, deceased. He married (2) Prudence Wilber Champlin (who survives him), daughter of Joseph and Delight and grandaughter of Jeffry Hazzard Champlin, of Rhinebeck-on-the Hudson. By this second marriage he had three daughters, Mrs. Edwin E. Dickinson and Mrs. S. A. Swenson, of this city, and Mrs. Jerrold W. Black, of Syracuse, N. Y.

QUERIES.

JOHNSTON.—John Johnston who married Eupham Scott was of Perth Amboy in 1685. He had an elder brother James, known as James Johnston of Spotswood, from an estate of that name which he owned. This James was the son and heir of Rev. William Johnstown or Johnston, of Lander, and of Lennel of Coldstream, Scotland, known as "William of Laveroc Klaw," but is, I am told erroneously confounded in Whitehead's Early History of Perth Amboy with a James, son of John Johnston of Ochiltree. Scot, in his "Model of East Jersey," gives letters from him showing that he had selected land for a plantation nine miles from Amboy and four from Piscataway. I quote from these authors at second hand, the books not being accessible to me.

1. Can any of your readers furnish me with names of the children of the James Johnston referred to, or point out where I can find them?

2. Was James Johnston, a surgeon in the Royal Navy, and of the British man-of-war Centurion, and who married Jane Nesbit, of Great Turk's Island, a son of the James Johnston referred to?

This younger James, the surgeon in the navy, had a son Doctor Lewis Johnston, very prominent in Georgia at the time of the Revolution, as member of the Council, Treasurer, Commissioner of Police, etc. Lewis, through a son John, was grandfather of a Judge Johnston of Trinidad, and through a son, William Martin, of several eminent men of Nova Scotia. I mention these facts the better to identify the subject of my enquiry.

MARSHALL,—Can any one give me information concerning the Rev. John Rutgers Marshall, a Loyalist of the Revolution, with a record of his family, if possible. I want to ascertain the connection, if any, of Samuel Marshall, born about 1757 or 1758, who came to Shelburne from New York in 1783, and later was a prominent merchant and public man at Yarmouth, N. S., where he died about April 1, 1813, aged 55. Address:

(JUDGE) A. W. SAVARY, Annapolis Royal, N. S.

MARSHALL.—James Hyde, born — ——, 1707, married 26 June, 1743, Sarah Marshall. Was she the daughter of Abiel Marshall and Margaret Hough, or of Samuel Marshall and Mary Wilton?

WILSON.—Aaron Cleveland, born 10 January, 1655, married 26 July, 1675, Dorcas Wilson. Was she the daughter of John Wilson and Hannah James, or of Joseph Wilson? DOUGLAS MERRITT, Rhinebeck, N. Y.

MCCULLEN.—One James McCullen, cooper, admitted a freeman of New York City on 7th December, 1773, married Mary Curry of New York, on 28th October, 1773, and had issue, Ann, b. 14th February, 1775; Mary, b. 15th May, 1780; James, b. 17th April, 1782; William, b. 19th July, 1784; Robert, b. 10th January, 1786; John, b. 8th September, 1788.

One Robert McCullen, cooper, admitted a freeman 24th September, 1788, married Elizabeth Cochran of New York, on 29th November, 1786, and had issue, James, b. 9th November, 1787; Elizabeth, b. 29th November, 1789; Sarah, b. 18th March, 1791; Ann, b. 3d December, 1792; Sarah, b. 2d February, 1795; Robert, b. 7th July, 1797.

The above marriages and births are all recorded in 1st and 2d Presbyterian Church registers.

One Ann McCullen (who had a brother Robert and a sister Letty), married at Trinity Church on 11th February, 1796, Captain Charles Connell, shipmaster, and had issue, Ellen Maria, b. 1798; d. 4th December, 1854, at No. 77 North Moore Street, New York City; and Maurice, who died about 1829. Captain Charles Connell is said to have been related to Daniel O'Connell, the Irish patriot, and commanded a packet ship sailing from Dublin, Ireland. He was lost at sea about 1816, and his widow, Ann (McCullen) Connell, died about 1862 at Bergen Point, N. J., in the house of people named Duggan. Ann (McCullen) Connell and Letty McCullen, her sister, lived at No. 33 West 13th Street, New York City, from 1858-1861.

One Robert McCullen (called Jr., the brother of Ann Connell and Letty McCullen) married Eve DeCamp on 8th December, 1805, at Troy, N. Y., and had issue, Mary Ann, b. 21st October, 1806; Almira, b. 6th September, 1808; Elizabeth DeCamp, b. 6th October, 1816; Juliet, b. 25th September, 1812; Catharine, b. 25th September, 1815; Sarah Coe, b. 2d February, 1817, all at Troy, N. Y. This Robert McCullen died at Troy, N. Y., about 1825, and is said to have been buried there in the Old Troy Cemetery.

One Robert McCullen, merchant, and wife Margaret, owned land in New York City in 1796, and made a Deed of Assignment to Isaac Pierson, Elias Haines, and Jeronimus Johnson, creditors, dated 6th July, 1810, in which he mentions "Martha and Edward Duggan" and "Robert McCullen, Jr.," and "Charles Connell" among his debtors. He was living in 1830, for on 8th April, 1830, he acknowledged a deed (Liber 261, page 171) and his wife Margaret was living in 1826, for she acknowledged a deed on 7th April, 1826 (Liber 201, page 340).

One James McCullen, died in New York City during 1814, aged 37 years.

One John McCullen, died in New York City during 1814, aged 30 years.

One Elizabeth McCullen, died in New York City on 11th July, 1815, aged 69 years.

Administration was granted on the estate of one James McCullen in New York City on 21st April, 1812; on another James McCullen on 29th August, 1815, and on one Elizabeth McCullen on 7th December, 1833.

Were these McCullens related, and if so, in what degree? Any information regarding the above McCullens, their descendants or heirs, will be greatly appreciated.

GEORGE AUSTIN MORRISON, JR., 43 Cedar Street, New York City.

PALMER.—Capt. John, master of ship St. Patrick, 1636; confined same year at Castle prison, Boston; later a magistrate of Westchester County, N. Y., also filled several offices of trust in Colonial government: and in 1678 appointed by the Court of Sessions of Southhampton, L. I., with other brothers to administer upon "the estate of brother Obadiah." Was he a son of William Palmer of Westchester, N. Y.? or connected with the Branford (Conn.) Palmers, or with Walter, of Stonington?

MRS. HARRIET PALMER POPPLETON,
502 Giddings Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

RENEW (RENEAU, RANNOO, RAYNO).—Peter Renew, naturalized as a British subject in London, 1682; appointed administrator on estate of Joshua Lassieur, of New York, 1681. Did he leave a family—where?

Jacques Reneau, Frenchman, agriculturist, came to America in ship Beaver, 1659. Where did he settle?

John and Susanna Rannoo, of New Rochelle, N. Y., 1710. Who were they and where did they go?

John Rayno, who settled in Elizabeth, N. J., prior to 1710, and signed the associate papers of that borough, 1728. Whom did he marry?

Who was the Isabell ———, wife of Magnus Garrett, who made his will, December 11, 1805, in New York City?

Are any records extant of the old ship Caledonia, which foundered in Perth Amboy, N. J., harbor 1715: From what port did she sail hence?

WAKEMAN RYNO, M. D., Benton Harbor, Mich.

THE following facts are desired for the pedigree of a descendant:

CARPENTER.—At the sale of the Halleran Collection, Feb. 7th, 1900, there was sold a parcel of old wills, deeds, etc., relating to the Carpenter Family; said parcel was numbered 639, and was purchased by a party giving the name of Carpenter. Will said purchaser kindly send his or her address to the undersigned and so greatly oblige, DANL. H. CARPENTER, Maplewood, N. J.

SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS.

The first meeting of the new year was held on Friday, January 12, at 8.30 o'clock, with Pres. Wilson in the Chair. Capt. French E. Chadwich of the Cruiser New York, delivered a lecture on the "Battle of Santiago," which was well attended and eagerly listened to. The speaker provided himself with a sectional map of Cuba issued by the Adjutant-General's Department to which he referred in illustration of the facts set forth in his lecture. At the conclusion of the address a recess was declared by the President for the purpose of holding an informal reception and the presentation of the members to the speaker. The Society then re-convened and proceeded to the election of three trustees for the term 1900-3, and the nominations submitted by the Committee on Nominations were unanimously elected, to wit: Dr. Samuel Smith Purple, Gen. James Grant Wilson and Samuel Putnam Avery. The reports of the various officers were then read, at the conclusion ofwhich the meeting adjourned.

The next regular monthly meeting, held on February 9th, was distinctly a Washington night. The Rev. Dr. Eliphalet N. Potter read a paper on "George Washington, The American and Man of Letters," a very interesting address, which was followed by remarks upon the subject by the Rev. Newland Maynard, Col. Asa Bird Gardiner, Col. W. de H. Washington and the President. The attendance at these two meetings was such as to tax the Hall nearly to its capacity.

The regular meeting for March was held on the evening of Friday the 9th, at which Prof. C. A. L. Totten of New Haven delivered a paper on "Chronology, Genealogy and Geography, the Three Great Lights in the Temple of History." The address was replete with historical and biblical revelations, and curious computations of time along the line of the "Genealogies of Genesis." At the conclusion of the lecture the usual refreshments were served.

The members elected since the new year began are as follows: Townsend Wandell, Chas. B. Barker, Wm. B. Aitken, Ashbel P. Fitch, David Banks, George T. Wilson, Mrs. Horace See, Hon. Levi P. Morton, Hon. William C. Whitney, William Gerry Slade, Miss Emma G. Page, George C. Heilner, Frederick P. Moore, Samuel A. Goldschmidt, Marshall C. Lefferts, Robert Sneider, R. W. Vosburg, George C. Houghton, Rev. E. N. Potter and Rev. T. E. Littell.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The Committee on Heraldry beg to announce that they are organized and ready to receive communications regarding armorials, etc. These communications should be addressed to the Committee at No. 226 West 58th Street. The Committee solicit for their inspection copies of drawings, seal designs, etc., and are ever ready to give assistance to those interested in the subject.

Volume IV., a Supplement to the Cleveland Genealogy, reviewed in our last number is now in preparation. It will contain new and old additional data, biographical sketches, illustrations and portraits, and will be thoroughly indexed. For information regarding the first three volumes the reader is referred to our advertising columns.

BOOK NOTICES.

HISTORY OF DURHAM, MAINE, WITH GENEALOGICAL NOTES. By Everett S. Stackpole. Lewiston, Me., 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 314.

Another town has risen to the occasion, for it is announced on the title page that this work is published by vote of the Town. How we wish that all the ancient hamlets of this country would go and do likewise! This history of Durham, well illustrated with views of historic landmarks and portraits of prominent citizens, rests its authority upon the town records, the church records, archives of Massachusetts, military rolls, family registers, diaries and account books, Maine wills and York deeds, and the County records at Portland. The author says its preparation has been a labor and a delight; surely the perusual of it is a delight but no labor, for the story is attractively told. It gives the origin of the town, an account of the founders and first settlers, ecclesiastical history, military records, accounts of the old landmarks and historic spots, and over 150 pages of genealogical matter, all thoroughly indexed. It is obtainable of the author at Augusta, Me.

EDWARD ANTILL, A NEW YORK MERCHANT OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, AND HIS DESCENDANTS. By William Nelson. 1899. Paterson, N. J. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 36.

Mr. Nelson is truly an indefatigable historian, for the products of his labor follow upon each other thick and fast. The present one under the above title, is a most interesting sketch of the life of a private citizen, who "never held office and never sought one," giving glimpses of the political, commercial and social influences that obtained in New York in the seventeenth century.

A GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF THE JENNINGS FAMILIES IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA. VOL. II., THE AMERICAN FAMILIES. By William Henry Jennings. Columbus, Ohio, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 819.

This splendid work is to be published in three volumes, as follows: Vol. I., The English Families; Vol. II., The American Families; Vol. III., Chart Pedigrees; and if the others are as well gotten up and contain as much matter as does this the second volume, then it is truly a monumental labor. It (Vol. II.), contains the descendants of the seven brothers who settled in the eastern part of New Jersey, and those of the other family who settled in West Jersey. In what way the two families were related the author does not know; he gives the facts as he has found them, and leaves the rest to the reader. In an appendix the author gives the allied families of Alden, Allen, Borden, Durfee, Earl, Leonard, McCabe, Mytinger, Nixon, Richard, Weaver and Westgate. The volume is the result of years of labor which really began in the early part of this century, at the time when a Jennings Association was formed, based upon the rumor that in America would be found the heirs to the great estate of William Jennens, of Acton, England. The data so collected, though unproductive of material results, finally fell into the hands of the compiler of this book, and through his energy increased a thousandfold, until at last it is all preserved upon the printed page. The edition is limited to 600 copies on heavy laid paper, printed in good type, contains many illustrations and portraits, and is thoroughly indexed. It is neatly bound in brown cloth with an attractive title in gilt lettering, and may be had of the compiler at Columbus, Ohio, at $7.50 per copy. Volume II. is published first as being of more importance to the American families. If they decide from it that they desire the other two volumes and will subscribe for them, they will be published, otherwise not. It is earnestly to be hoped that the Jennings peoples in this broad land will come forward with their moral and financial assistance, for the labors of this their family historian well merit their encouragement and support.

A NARRATIVE HISTORY OF THE TOWN OF COHASSET, MASS. By E. Victor Bigelow, Pastor of the Second Congregational Church. Published under the auspices of the Committee on Town History, 1893. 8vo, cloth, pp. 561.

Digitized by Google

There is an old adage that "too many cooks spoil the broth," and yet another which says something about two heads being better than one; and this book, the result of the combined efforts of eight men, proves that oft-times the first is as naught, and the second holds good, especially in the production of town histories. To record the traditions and reminiscences of an historic old town, to secure its documents and maps, to collect its relics and search its records, finally, to classify all these, weave from the classification a narrative of the town's history like this one, and put it in print, all in the space of four years, is an undertaking possible to a committee of several,—hardly to one individual alone. The volume before us is full of interest about that historic town where "the blue waters of Massachusetts Bay cast their white spray upon its rocky shore," and gives in detail, with very many illustrations of relics and historic places, information concerning the geological and pre-historical condition of the territory, the early settlers of the town, its colonial life and history, its share in the Indian, Revolutionary and later wars, its industries, its church history and its present condition. It is a splendid work well done, a good story well told; and from the concrete illustration of it all, we hesitate not to say that the Town of Cohasset made a wise selection of a committee on Town History, and the Committee itself another wise one in the Historian.

THE SUCCESSFUL AMERICAN, ILLUSTRATED. CONTAINING ENGRAVINGS AND SKETCHES OF PROMINENT MEN. By the Press Biographical Co., Park Row, N. Y. City. Jan., 1900.

A monthly publication we are glad to see. Like encyclopaedias, biographical dictionaries are never complete; for the new men are daily stepping into the places left vacant by the old, to take their turn at spinning the threads in the great fabric of human history. The publishers assure us in this their first number, that future issues will present facts relating to the lives and achievements of Successful Americans, and that "fulsome eulogy is to be blue-pencilled." Let them assure us as well that each completed volume will be fully indexed, and we shall proclaim it an invaluable work.

STEPHEN GATES, OF HINGHAM AND LANCASTER, MASS., AND HIS DESCENDANTS. A PRELIMINARY WORK, SUBJECT TO ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS. By Charles Otis Gates. New York. Willis McDonald & Co., 1898. 8vo, cloth, pp. 370.

The American progenitor of this family was the second son of Thomas Gates, of Norwich, Norfolk County, Eng., and settled in Hingham, Mass., moved later to Lancaster and went subsequently to Cambridge in the same state. The present volume of his descendants is a genealogical compilation pure and simple, giving page after page of births, marriages and deaths. The compiler says it is far from complete (though it seems very full), and that it is put forth that the public may have the benefit of what has already been collected, in the hope that it will bring to him much more material to be published at some future date. It is clearly printed on heavy paper in readable type, is well indexed, and very neatly bound in green cloth. Copies may be had of the publishers, or of the author, No. 45 Plaza St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

ANNALS OF YARMOUTH AND BARRINGTON, N. S., IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR. By Edmund Duval Poole. Yarmouth, N. S., 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 133.

This collection of letters, petitions, depositions, court records, etc., copied entire from the great mass of manuscripts in the Massachusetts Archives, are here put in print for the purpose of showing the condition of affairs in southern Nova Scotia during the Revolutionary War. They show conclusively that a large part of the population of that territory were in sympathy with the rebellious colonists, a condition of affairs which seems rather remarkable when one remembers that Digby, distant only about fifty miles from Yarmouth, became the abiding place for the loyalist exiles. On the other hand, many of the settlers about Yarmouth came originally from eastern Massachusetts in 1758–9, hence their kinship with the residents of the cradle of the Revolution was a natural cause for sympathy, though they were not openly disloyal to the crown. There is a fund of interesting matter in this book which we have not space to discuss; but we note especially a very full index which makes it of great value to the genealogist and student of local history. Copies may be had of Mr. Edmund D. Poole, No. 264 St. Botolph St., Boston, Mass.

JOANNES NEVIUS AND HIS DESCENDANTS, A. D. 1627–1900. By A. Van Doren Honeyman, Plainfield, N. J., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 732.

It seems as though it must have been an especially difficult matter to compile a genealogy of this family since, as the author affirms, there are on record 203 different spellings of the name, a condition of affairs due to the sins of omission and commission of registrars, clerks and officials. But the compiler has succeeded exceedingly well, for here is another volume replete with information, showing a vast deal of labor that has consumed much time. The volume in hand gives observations upon the origin of the name, the family in Spain, Italy, France, Switzerland, Germany, Russia, Sweden, Denmark, England and Holland; the Coat of Arms, the emigration to America, and finally the descendants of Joannes Nevius, who was Schepen and Third Secretary of New Amsterdam under the Dutch, and First Secretary of New York City under the English. Interspersed with the biographical sketches of the earlier members of this family the author gives much historical information of Holland towns, especially Leyden, Dutch painters, old New York streets and New Amsterdam customs, and other matters too numerous to mention. The book is well printed and handsomely bound in cloth, well indexed and generously illustrated. It reflects great credit upon the author-publisher.

A GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF THE KELLEY FAMILY, DESCENDED FROM JOSEPH KELLEY, OF NORWICH, CONN. Compiled by Hermon Alfred Kelley. Privately printed at Cleveland, Ohio, 1897. 8vo, cloth, pp. 122-xv.

Somebody picked up this book and said, "I like this, it is all that ought to be printed of any family." Certainly the volume in hand is a concise history of the Kelley family, derived as is set forth by the title given herewith, and the absence of sentences telling how some antiquated grandfather jumped over a stone wall at three score years, is truly commendable. Yet like the more voluminous publications of family history, the work of compiling this one has extended over a period of some years, and its matter has been gathered laboriously. We commend it to those readers who are interested in the history of this and the allied families, for it is certainly put together with much care, and shows, on the part of the author, a regard for accuracy and truth, such as the genealogical compiler should always seek.

DOVER, NEW HAMPSHIRE, ITS HISTORY AND INDUSTRIES. ISSUED AS AN ILLUSTRATED SOUVENIR IN COMMEMORATION OF THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF FOSTER'S DAILY DEMOCRAT. Published by Geo. J. Foster & Co., 1898. 8vo, cloth, pp. 154.

It is an enterprising New England Journal that publishes this volume, and the principal feature which we notice in its pages worthy of special commendation is the excellent illustrations, of which there are a great number. When we say the principal feature worthy of commendation, we mean that the book is well gotten up, but that the illustrations are specially noticable for their excellence. The more of such publications as come to us for perusal the better we shall like it; so, far be it from us to condemn anything historical in print, so long as it is accurate, fulfills the purpose for which it is issued and gives to the reader some new material. The book before us does all these things, and as a souvenir volume it is excellently done.

THE MAXWELL FAMILY. DESCENDANTS OF JOHN AND ANN MAXWELL, WITH APPENDIX CONTAINING SKETCH OF THE MAXWELL FAMILY AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES. Compiled by Henry D. Maxwell, Easton, Pa. 8 x 10, cloth, pp. 85.

This book treats of the New Jersey branch of the Maxwell family, descended from Thomas Maxwell, particularly mentioned by Lord Macauley as being in King James' army during the Irish Revolt in the War of 1689. We have no fault to find with the genealogical computation, which follows the scheme of personal numbers, and when we arrive at the appendix giving the historical data regarding the family, we are interested at once.

SHELTER ISLAND AND ITS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, WITH GENEALOGICAL NOTES BY THE REV. JACOB E. MALLMANN. 1899. Printed for the author. 8vo, cloth, pp. 332. Price, $4.00. Address the Author.

"Remember the former things of old," so runs the quotation from the Prophet Isaiah which heads the first chapter of this excellent work; and obeying its command, we lean back in our chair and recall:—How the Indians of the Mahansett tribe were subjected to the condition of paying tribute; how the agent of the Earl of Sterling selected this island as his own remuneration for services rendered, thinking it the best of all the territory round about; how it was subsequently sold to a syndicate of four. We recall, too, its settlement by the defeated enemies of Cromwell who found there a shelter in the New World; its colonial days so full of romance; its creditable share in the disturbances of the Revolution, and a host of other things about that "little sister island abiding securely in the protecting arms of her larger neighbor."

The Rev. Dr. Mallmann has treated all these and a vast number of other items in the history of Shelter Island with a master hand, and in a manner which leaves no doubt as to his energy, perseverance and thoroughness. It is a splendid work with undoubted literary merit. The story told is one of vast detail, and is spread upou the pages in a language both absorbing and elegant. Mindful of the importance of genealogy in the narration of local history, and how truly inseparable are these two subjects, the author has devoted one half of this work to the genealogical enumeration of the descendants of the fifteen persons who helped to found the town of Shelter Island in 1730, and of the fifteen founders of the Presbyterian church there. Among these names are the following: Havens, Sylvester, Hopkins, Bowditch, Hudson, Tuthill, Conkling, Parker, Brown, L'Hommedieu, Hall, Deering, Douglass, King, Mayo, Case, Boisseau and Sawyer. Copies of the book may be obtained of the author as above, or at the office of the Suffolk Times, Greenport, Long Island.

THURSTON GENEALOGIES. Compiled by Brown Thurston, Portland, Maine. Second edition. 8vo, cloth, pp. xvii–744.

Compilers of Family Histories seem to be actuated by different motives in the publication of their researches, some by one some by another. We have observed this carefully and have classified them into four sorts. There is the compiler who publishes his own individual ancestry with its ramifications; there is the compiler who publishes what he knows of the descendants of a certain progenitor, without regard to truth or accuracy, merely for the pleasure of saying most dignifiedly, "Our family is all written up." Oh, yes! It is all written up; but dear me! How wretchedly! Then there is the man of means, public-spirited, generous, broad-gauged, who employs the services of a competent genealogist, and puts forth a volume truthful, accurate, handsomely done. And finally, greatest of them all, is he who gives his time, his labor, his money, in the publication of a volume as complete, as accurate, as truthful as he can possibly make it, and, never satisfied, fully realizing that the genealogist's work is never done, adds to it from time to time, corrects its errors, and finally publishes a revised edition of a work which financially did not pay. Such is the author of this book. The first edition was published in 1880 and gave 12,272 Thurston descendants. The revised edition is before us, and contains much additional matter and many corrections. It gives the Arms of Thurston of England and America, the Posterity of Daniel Thurston of Newbury, John of Dedham, Edward of Rhode Island, Peter of London, Eng., Thomas of Staffordshire, Eng., Robert of Bristol, Eng., and excellent indexes of all. In addition are pedigrees of the following families: Bacon, Barnes, Boyden, Brown, Chapin, Chapman, Chute, Clark, Elliott, Emerson, Grosvenor, Jefferay, Jewell, Leland, Mitchell, Mosbaugh, Newell, Parish, Peabody, Pearson, Reed, Richardson, Rogers, Spofford, Smith, Standish, Tillson and Webster. Copies of these two books, which are so arranged that neither is complete without the other, may be obtained of the author as above, at $5.00 for the first edition, and $5.25 for the second, 25 cents to be added for postage.

A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF JOHN WINTHROP THE YOUNGER, FOUNDER OF IPSWICH, MASS., IN 1633. By Thomas Franklin Waters. Second edition. Printed for the Ipswich Historical Society, 1900. 8 x 10, cloth, pp. 78.

This neat and attractive volume from the press of John Wilson & Son, of Cambridge, is published as No. VII. of the Publications of the Ipswich Historical Society. Its purpose is best set forth in a paragraph of the Prefatory Note, thus: "It should be borne in mind that the purpose of this Sketch has merely been to glean from a variety of sources, and place on record for convenient reference, the principal events in the life of the subject from his arrival in Boston in November, 1631, to his retirement from the Massachusetts magistracy in the spring of 1650. His previous experiences in Europe, and his long public career in Connecticut, are but briefly and incidentally described." The first edition was distributed during 1899, and consisted of 350 copies. The second edition, differing from the first only in some minor typographical particulars, consisting of 300 copies, is most beautifully illustrated with a frontispiece reproduction of the "Only authentic likeness of him at any period, and still in the possession of a branch of his descendants," as well as several fac-similies of manuscripts relating to Ipswich, reproduced from the originals.

THE HISTORICAL RECORD, DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE EARLY HISTORY OF WYOMING VALLEY AND CONTIGUOUS TERRITORY, WITH NOTES AND QUERIES BIOGRAPHICAL, ANTIQUARIAN, GENEALOGICAL. Edited by F. C. Johnson. Wilkes-Barré, Pa.

The two volumes of this valuable quarterly publication, VII. and VIII., are replete with historical information. They are issued by the Wilkes-Barré Record, and are for the most reprinted articles on various topics of interest to that locality taken from the daily papers from all over. Besides these there are historical addresses and articles, written especially for this publication, making it one of extreme interest to those concerned in that part of Pennsylvania. It is now issued from time to time as a complete volume of 200 pages, at a cost of $1.50 per volume unbound, $2.00 bound.

The object of this Society is the discovery, procuring, preservation and perpetuation of whatever may relate to American Genealogy, Biography and Local History; and it aims to cover the field of genealogical and biographical research more thoroughly than has been done by the public libraries or societies devoted to one particular locality or period.

The Society was founded and incorporated in 1869. For nearly twenty years it occupied modest quarters in Mott Memorial Hall, No. 64 Madison Avenue. In October, 1888, rooms were secured in the Berkeley Lyceum, No. 23 West 44th Street, where the Society remained until May, 1896, when the present building was purchased through the generous bequest of Mrs. Elizabeth Underhill Coles and the substantial assistance of some of the members.

The Society building, No. 226 West 58th Street, is a handsome five-story structure, with an attractive entrance, and, having lately undergone extensive alterations and repairs, is admirably suited to the uses of the Society. It contains a lecture hall handsomely decorated and well lighted, heated and ventilated, with a seating capacity of one hundred and seventy-five persons; a fire-proof library specially constructed with a view to safety, light, quiet and convenience, and an attractive room for general Society purposes open to members and their friends.

The Society has, by careful and capable management, steadily improved, and has at present assets amounting to nearly $50,000.00, and a good income from dues and rentals; it is under the management of a Board of Trustees elected by the members for alternating periods of three years.

The membership of the Society, comprising a large number of our best known and prominent citizens, is made up of Annual, Life and Honorary Members. Annual Members pay an entrance fee of $5.00, and the sum of $5.00 per year dues. Life Members pay $50.00 in lieu of all dues and fees.

Persons desirous of becoming members of the Society may address the Executive Committee. Members have the right of introducing visitors to the rooms and to the privileges of the Society.

The Library has upon its shelves over four thousand volumes of Genealogy, Biography and Local History, and nearly thrice that number of pamphlets and unbound books on these subjects, as well as many manuscripts of value. It is open to members and visitors from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. on week days and holidays, and from 8 to 10 P. M. on Mondays, except during the months of August and September. In this room —the very heart of the Society—will be found that atmosphere of scholastic quiet and ready service so grateful to the student.

Regular Meetings of the Society, at which addresses of historical interest are delivered, are held on the second Friday evening of each month, except June, July, August and September.

The Society has progressed steadily in its particular sphere, and has been the means of awakening interest in many persons heretofore ignorant of or indifferent to their ancestral history; during the past decade this interest has greatly increased, and has resulted in bringing to light and preservation many records of value. Beginners in the Genealogical field will find that the Society with its collections, its "Record," and the accumulated experience of its members, offers advantages indispensable to their work.

"Those who do not treasure up the memory of their ancestors do not deserve to be remembered by posterity."—EDMUND BURKE.

THE NEW YORK

Genealogical and Biographical Record.

VOL. XXXI. NEW YORK, JULY, 1900. NO. 3.

SAMUEL BURHANS, JR.

The Board of Trustees of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, at its regular quarterly meeting, held April 17th, 1900, unanimously adopted and ordered to be spread upon its Minutes, the following expression of its sorrow, on the death of one of its members, Samuel Burhans, Jr., moved by Thomas Grier Evans, Esq., and seconded by Mr. Herbert De Nyse Lloyd:

"Mr. Burhans joined the Society in 1878 and has ever since been one of its most faithful members. Taking great interest in its welfare and advancement, he was ever-ready with hand and purse to minister to the one and to promote the other.

A deep student of Genealogy and of the early history of this State, his well-digested knowledge—the extent of which is shown in his Genealogy of the Burhans Family in America, published—was always at the service of his friends, not grudgingly, but freely and willingly, and with a genial kindness of way and word that won for him affectionate and lasting regard.

From 1879 to 1888, Mr. Burhans served as Librarian to the Society, and in 1887 was elected a member of the Board of Trustees, where his wise counsel and sound judgment have been of lasting benefit, and by each member of which, as well as by the whole Society, his loss will be severely felt.

The Board of Trustees extends its sincere sympathy to his family, and directs that a copy of this Minute be sent to them."

Mr. Burhans was born in this city, on the 26th of October, 1825, and was the son of Samuel Burhans, an old-time resident of New York, born in Paterson, N. J., January 17th, 1788—a descendant of Jacob Burhans, who first appears of record in this country, as a soldier, March 28th, 1660, and who settled at Kingston, N. Y. Our friend's mother was Mary Ann Corning, daughter of Amos Corning (associated with Samuel Stillwell, his brother-in-law, as one of New York City's early surveyors), and Aletta Burtis. She was born October 5, 1800, in the Fifth Ward of this city, and lived continuously in that ward for 82 years, and for 54 years of that time in one house, built for her by her husband, in Vestry street, in the neighborhood of old St. John's Park—and where her son, young Samuel, spent his boyhood and young manhood. It may also be mentioned that this venerable lady was a cousin to Erastus Corning of Albany, formerly President of the N. Y. Central R. R.; Wm. B. Skidmore, at one time President of the Erie R. R., and to Jarvis, the artist, who designed and executed the paintinge in the dome of the capitol at Washington. She removed to Westfield, N. J., in 1882, and kept house continually from the day of her marriage until the day of her death, April 25th, 1892.

She was, in many ways, a remarkable woman, of strong constitution, always in good health, an excellent judge of character; her heart and purse were ever open to cases of real misfortune, and her charities generally were personally administered—and she was ever active in seeking out such cases. She was not a member of any church—her religion was founded on Christ's teachings—but she was a faithful attendant of the Methodist Church; a life member of the Missionary Society, of the Asbury M. E. Church; she founded a free scholarship in the Vermont Academy at Saxon's River, Vt., and presented a bell to the M. E. Church at Westfield, as a memorial of her husband. From her it is evident that her son inherited many of the characteristics which his life displayed.

Active and alert to all that was going on about him, it does not surprise us to learn that at this period of his life, young Burhans belonged to the Volunteer Fire Department, at a time when it was an honor to be a fireman, and that he attained the position of foreman of Hose Co. No. 24. He was educated at one of the best private schools of the city, and began his business life at the age of eighteen. He soon formed a partnership with Mr. Henry Crossman (Crossman & Burhans), in a manufacturing business, with a factory in Brooklyn, and a store in White St., New York. This business proved very profitable, and continued until 1866, Mr. Crossman having withdrawn from it some years previous. After his retirement, with a comfortable fortune, from active business, Mr. Burhans devoted himself largely to acting as trustee, or executor, of the estates of his relatives, or old friends; and to a large degree without much compensation. He was also, at one time, and for many years, president of the Brooklyn City Railroad. It was in his nature to be generously though unostentatiously helpful to others not so well situated as himself; and the cause of the widow and orphan always had a special claim upon his sympathies and efforts. When we consider how scrupulously exact and honest he was in every business detail, how large his experience, and how high his sense of commercial integrity, we need hardly be told that his death, on the 2nd of April, 1900, in his 75th year, was a severe and irreparable loss to many who had learned to lean upon him for counsel and guidance, with most implicit trust. And, aside from these business cares which he bore so willingly and so patiently upon his shoulders, his natural kindness of heart was exhibited in many other acts of benefaction to the needy—which will never be known. His motto was that of the Golden Rule—"do unto others, as ye would others should do unto you."

In politics, Mr. Burhans was an old-fashioned Jeffersonian Democrat; in religious matters, he was brought up a Methodist; but in later years, leaned towards, and attended the Presbyterian form of worship.

He was twice married: (1) in 1850, to Sarah (daughter of George and Elizabeth Moody) Daggett, of Nottingham, England, who died in 1860; (2) in 1867, to Isabel (daughter of Charles W. and Rebecca Champlin Corning) Holden of Norwich, Conn., who, with their daughter, Isabel Holden Burhans, born 18th November, 1878, survive him, at his late residence, No. 52 West 88th Street, this city. Mrs. Burhans' ancestors, on both sides, were of English origin, dating back in New England to 1640.

Mr. Burhans was eminently domestic in his nature, and his associations, outside of his family, were mainly with the Holland Society, and the New York Genealogical Society, both of which have, by his death, lost a valued friend. As might be imagined, Mr. Burhans was the representative in our Board and Society, of the original Dutch element of New York's "make-up," in both City and State. He was proud of his Dutch blood, and showed forth in his own person and character, the best traits of that blood. Of him, one of his nearest friends and co-laborers in our Society work has truthfully said: "He was honest, loyal, frank, warm-hearted, a true friend and a man of sound judgment—a little obstinate in his opinions, perhaps, as all good Dutchmen are; but amenable to reason—strong in his dislikes (another Dutch trait) but ready to see and admit the good side. He was a man to be depended upon." That last sentence strikes the key-note of our departed friend's character. He was modest, reserved and silent of manner and speech; but when he spoke or acted, it was evident that heart and head were equally balanced.

It now remains to speak of Mr. Burhans as a genealogist and delver in historic mines. We have already alluded to his genealogy of his own family, an excellent specimen of genealogical work—and of typographical execution, and which cost him over $20.000 in its preparation and publication. We understand, also, that more recently he had been intending to prepare a genealogical record of his mother's family, the Cornings. But, it was in his most valuable labor in the collecting and copying of original Dutch Church records in Ulster, Sullivan and other Hudson River Counties that he exhibited most fully the true antiquarian spirit.

These records, (which it was his desire and expressed intention should ultimately become the property of this Society,) were most carefully copied, under his own direction, by persons who by their well-known accuracy and familiarity with the Dutch language, were fully qualified for the work; and, during his life were always accessible, in his office, to examination by those who were searching for family data. It will also be remembered, by those associated with him in the Society, that he took a most lively interest in the publication, in our Record, of the Records of the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City: towards the expense of which he was a constant and generous subscriber. The inestimable value to the genealogist of these record-transcripts, will be seen from a perusal of the following list—for which we are indebted to the Year-Book of the Holland Society, 1892-93, pp. 27-29:

And so, being dead, he yet speaketh to us—by his example, of time, money and personal care given for the preservation of whatever might be of help in preserving the memorials of our ancestors; and in our hearts, his memory is kept green, by the recollection of his genial nature, his unfaltering devotion to our interests, and that wisdom in counsel, by which we have so often profited.

THE "KING" FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

COMPILED BY GEORGE AUSTIN MORRISON, JR.

4. Edward[3] King (Walter,[2] John[1]) of Middle Cleydon, in his will dated 23 Feb., 1584, proved 24 April, 1585, mentions his wife Ellin to be executrix; his five elder children John, Thomas, George, Margaret and Ann; his other four children Rafe, Walter, Edward, and Elizabeth (under 21); cousin John King of Steeple Cleydon, Thomas Maie and William Shephard to be overseers. Witnesses were John Kinge, Thomas Maie, and William Barton, alias Shephard. His children were:

i. John.
ii. Thomas.
iii. George.
iv. Margaret.
v. Anne.
vi. Rafe.
vii. Walter.
ix. Elizabeth.

5. Thomas[3] Kinge (Edward,[2] John[1]) of Bysseter, yeoman, left a will dated 26 Aug., 1591 (33rd Elizabeth), and proved 22 Sept., 1591, in which he states that his body is to be buried in the church of Bysseter. He gives to his eldest son Edward half his term and lease, etc.; to son Thomas £5; to daughter Agnes £5 one year after the day of her marriage; to son John £3 6*s.* 8*d.* on the day of his marriage if he receives his stock of £10 due unto him at Edgcott or else to have £5; to son Richard £5 on day of his marriage; to daughter Elizabeth £5. The will further states "Unto Rafe my son £5 at his age of twenty-one years if his mother lives so long; if she die before that time to be paid unto him within one month after the death of his mother." His wife An is named executrix, and the overseers are "Edward Kynge my brother of Cleydon and John Lacy of Bysseter." The will mentions debts "to An my daughter £10 due unto her at the feast of St. Michael next. I wish her to have in consideration her mother-in-law and to forbear her as long as she can conveniently. I owe her more 4*s.* 8*d.* I owe unto Thomas my son 2*s.* 6*d.*" The children of Thomas King and Ann Raven (wife's maiden name is given in Visitation of London) were:

i. Edward,[3] eldest son.
ii. Thomas.
iii. John.
iv. Richard.
v. Rafe.
vi. Agnes.
vii. Elizabeth.
ix. Mary (left will date 1656).

6. Rafe[4] *King (Thomas,[3] Edward,[2] John[1]) of London, "vintner,"

* There is a will of one Rafe King, husbandman, of Swanbourne, dated 26 May, 1593, proved 17 Aug., 1593, which mentions a son William; a daughter Johan Soumer and her daughter; a son John, who is to be executor; and gives to "Rafe, the sonne of Thomas King, a black heefer with a pied calf within one week next after testators decease." This legatee is no doubt Rafe the future vintner of Popeshead Alley.

There appears to be a settlement of Kings at Swanbourne (see note on will of Thomas King of Bottle Cleydon) and as a curious fact there was a John Kinge, printer and publisher of some note in 1550-1561, who lived at Creed Lane and kept a shop in Paul's Church Yard (not calling left a will dated 4 Mar., 1666, proved 26 Nov., 1666, in which he mentions his messuage, tenement or tavern in Popeshead Alley, Lombard Street, Parish of St. Mary, Woolnoth, now in the occupation of John Sawyer, vintner. The will further mentions sons William, Gabriel and Rafe, and daughters Frances King, widow of Capt. Thomas King, and Cicely, wife of William Wigg. The witnesses were John Webb and William Wigg. He is called in Probate Act Book as "late of St. Martin's in the Field." This Rafe King married Priscilla Babham, and claimed by pedigree set out in Visitation of London, 1633–34, to be related to Bishop John King of London. This pedigree, as recorded, has been proved to be erroneous, although there may be some distant relationship to that branch of the Thame Kings which settled at Bicester. The children of Rafe King and Priscilla Babham were:

i. William.
ii. Grbriel.
iii. Rafe.
iv. Henry.
v. Cicely, who married Wm. Wigg.
vi. Frances, who married Capt. Thomas King.

The "King" Family of Watford, Herts.

The name of "King" borne by so many of the early immigrants to the Plymouth Colony in New England, is no less frequently to be found in the parish registers of smaller churches located in the County of Hertfordshire, England. Doubtless the common ancestry of the Hertfordshire Kings came from the adjacent counties of Buckinghamshire and Middlesex, and many of the London families of that name, established the younger members in trade at St. Albans and Watford. It is clearly proven that Sir John King, born at St. Albans, 5 Feb., 1628–1629, was a son of John King, M.D., and a grandson of that John Le Roy, who fled from France at the massacre of St. Bartholemew (24th August, 1572). Monsier du Roy became a merchant in London and soon anglicised his name to John King. With this exception, however, all the other King families found within the boundaries of Hertfordshire sprung from sturdy English stock. The town of Watford, and the nearby hamlets of Abbots Langley, King's Langley, Aldenham, and Hemelhempstead are of peculiar interest as from Watford came Daniel King of Lynn, Mass., and it is probable that Clement King of Marshfield, Mass., was of near kin to the Watford Kings.

For convenience the Watford "King" families may be divided into two groups as follows:

The Ralph King Family of Watford, Herts.

1. Ralph King, was a draper and was born about 1574, place unknown. He must have married about 1596, and died 1656 at Watford. In his will, dated 1 August, 1653, proved 21 Nov., 1656 (P. C. C. London, Reg^r. Berkeley, 419), he makes the following provisions: "bodie to be buryed in the church yard of Watford as were the corps of my late deare and lovinge wife;" "To my sonne John Kinge, Vicar of Abbots Langley all Perkins workes as they are now divided, into three volumes and all other my bookes of which he hath none of his owne except Hildershaw upon John which I have given to my sonne Isaack;" Gives Hildershaw on the 150 Psalms to "sonne Samuel;" Gives to sonne Isaack his concordance and meditation of prayer and thanksgiving; Gives to grandchild Ralph Manestie, Brightman upon the Revelation and some furniture; To executors "twoe volumes of worthie John Foxe;" Mentions that Ralph Manestie's Father was dead, and that he had a son and three daughters; and one daughter since dead.

States "Whereas my sonne Clement intended to make a will in writinge but the violence of his decease being so greate he desired me not to have it perfected but said he would leave all to his wife's disposinge." Mentions "a garden plott with a narrow stripp of ground late in the occupation of John Beckett and John Exton . . . four pole and a half . . . which I bought of John Sibley deceased (nephew of testator), abbuttinge upon the house of Zachery Kinge northeast which is coppie hold" the inheritance of his son John who he desires will convey it to his grandchild Samuel Kinge; Also gives his grandchild Samuel Kinge furniture, movable chests, counters, shelves, etc., in a store rented to one John Beckett; States: "Item concerning the debt my sonne Daniel Kinge now in New England oweth me, whoe hath cost me and my sonne Samuel by my estimation very neare one thousand poundes my will is my said sonne Daniel shall make upp present and speedie payments of all his ingagements by bondes of three hundred and fiftye poundes as my executors shall in their discretion thinke fitt howsoever my sonne in a letter intreates me to cancell his bondes w^ch I refuse to doe well knowinge how unwillinge my sonne Daniel is to part with his money w^ch he once getts into his handes untill it be forced from him and howsoever by his great imployments and quantity of land now in his handes he may have use for a very greate stocke and thereby at present be in debt yet in time he may come to better abillitye and made able to make good all his ingagements w^ch I leave to my executors to call for at their pleasure and what he is not able to doe at present may be sent over yearlie or otherwise as they shall thincke best. And for his more faithful performance of his ingagements I have written to my Reverend friend Mr. Wilson, Pastor of Boyston to persuade my sonne to make payments of his ingagements in a faire and speedie way as he can w^ch if he do not my advice is that he may be stricktly putt to it by all such waies and measures as my executors shall thinke fitt and be most reasonable and most advantageous to bringe in those ingagements under w^ch he nowe stands w^ch is as aforesaid 350 besides 100 pounds in vendable wares w^ch makes his whole debt out 450 pounds this sonne Daniel hath promised to send over the 100 pounds in good vendable wares ere it be long;"

Gives sonne John Kinge 100 pounds, ½ to be paid him out of estate in old England and ½ "out of that estate I have in New England;" Gives daughter Manestie £200; To grandchild Honorth Charter* 30 pounds, to be delivered to her unckle Colonell Whetham; Gives 40 shillings each to "my twoe grandchildren w^ch^ my sonne Samuel had by his last wife;

Gives 5 pounds to the poore of parish; calls sonne John Kinge "my first borne" and "a painefull preacher of God's word;" Mentions making a deed of gift of his whole estate to Major Nelle (Neil) and Isaac King as his executors; Gives "cosen Goodin† our painefull pastor" 40 shillings; To Mr. Jackson 20 shillings; To cousen Goodin's wife 20 shillings to by a ring; Names "my twoe lovinge sonnes Major Nelle and Isaack King" executors. Appoints as overseers "sonne Kinge, Vicar of Abbots Langley, my cosen Eibborne and my grandchild Ralphe Manestie" and gives them 20 shillings apiece for their pains; Says: "this is my last will I have written it with myne owne hands and hereunto fixed my hand and seale this first of August 1653."

This will was proven by Andrewe Neale at London, 21 Nov^r^., 1656, and strongly indicates that worthy Ralph was of a religious and puritanical bent of mind.

One John Sibley, a tailor of Watford, mentions in his will, proved 12 March, 1624, "Uncle Ralphe Kinge" and also an uncle Richard Blackwell of Bushey. One Richard Priest of Rislipp, Middlesex, yeoman, in December 1627 bequeathes to James, Martha, and Elizabeth, children of a Thomas Mores, deceased, 40 pounds to be paid unto "my loving friend Ralphe Kinge of Watford, draper, and laid out and employed as he shall see fit for their use." Ralphe King, draper, was appointed an executor of the will. In 1640, a letter of attorney was made by W^m^., Thomas and Robert Talmage and Richard Walker, husband of Jane Talmage, deceased, all of Boston in New England and sons and daughters of Thomas Talmage (brother of John Talmage of Newton Stacy, South^t^., husbandman (deceased), to Mr. Ralphe Kinge to receive certain sums of money from Richard Carrying and William Dowlying, overseers of the will of John Talmage, deceased, and from the executors of the will of Symon Talmage (their brother), due to them. This letter was dated 3 September, 1640.

A letter of attorney was made 26 June, 1640, by John Prior of Scituate in New England, and Daniel Prior of same, sons of Thomas Prior, late of Watford in the County of Herts., maltster, deceased, "unto Ralfe Kinge of Watford aforesaid, woolen draper," and "Launcelot Welles of the same, wheeler," to sell one messuage or tenement and orchard with appurtenances in Watford, now or late of Roger Brewer, and all their interest therein.

There is an indication that the father of Ralph King‡ was † Philip Goodwin, Vicar of Watford, 1650.

‡ On 28 June, 1585, a Ralphe King, clerk, Rector of Lawford, Co. Essex, was married to Martha Badcocke, spinster, of Rayleigh, Co. Essex, daughter of George Badcocke of same, gent., at St. Mary Magdt., Old Fish Street. Query, who was this Ralph? It is worth noting that this couple were married at same church as Major Andrew Neale, later son-in-law to Ralph King of Watford, attended.

named John, but yet nothing has been found proving that to be the fact. That Ralph must have been a man of some education is attested by the fact of his ability to write out his own will, which is admirably expressed and of good spelling, and by the books mentioned as legacies in his will I am inclined to believe that he came originally from London, and only settled at Watford early in 1600.

The children of Ralph King were as follows:

2. i. Rev. John, born 1597 (eldest sonne).
3. ii. Samuel.
   iii. Elizabeth, who married ——— Manestie and died 1656 leaving a will in which she mentions children Ralph, Sarah, Hannah.
4. iv. Isaac.
5. v. Daniel, later of Lynn, Mass.
   vi. Sarah, born 1609, and married Major Andrew Neale on 29 April, 1629, at Idelstry, Herts. He was of St. Mary Magdalen parish, Old Fish Street, London, a cloth-worker, a widower, and aged 27. Edward Neale (presumed a brother) of St. Andrews, Holborn, attested that the bride's father, Ralph Kinge of Watford, consented to the match.
6. vii. Clement, born about 1615.

By Jas. Grant Wilson.

William Alfred Jones, a corresponding member of our Society, who made many acceptable additions to its Library, and was an occasional contributor to The Record, died in Norwich, Conn., on Sunday, 6 May, 1900, in his eighty-third year. He was twice married, but had no children, and is survived by Mrs. Jones. He was a member of an old New York family, celebrated in the paternal line for legal eminence, four generations having been successively distinguished in the Colony, State, and City of New York. Two ancestors of Mr. Jones, father and son, were Judges of the Supreme Court of the Colony, and since the Revolution, his grandfather, Samuel Jones the elder, the contemporary of Hamilton, Burr, and Jay, in his day styled "the father of the New York bar;" his son Samuel, Jr., the Chief Justice and Chancellor, and David S. Jones, father of the deceased and a son of the Chancellor, a distinguished lawyer who became one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court. On the maternal side, Mr. Jones was a great grandson of Philip Livingston, one of the New York signers of the Declaration of Independence, two of whose portraits he presented to our Society.

William Alfred Jones was born in New York City, 26 June, 1817, and was graduated at Columbia College in 1836: among his classmates were Newbold Edgar, John Henry Hobart, John Jay, and James Renwick. With a single exception Mr. Jones was the last survivor of his class. He studied law with Daniel Lord, but finding the profession uncongenial he abandoned it to devote his attention to literary pursuits, adding one more to the long list of aspirants, who in early life left the law for literature. From 1851 to 1865, he was Librarian of Columbia College, and after fifteen years' acceptable service to his alma mater, resigned, moving two years later to Norwich, where he resided for more than three decades. For a score of years Mr. Jones was a constant contributor of essays and literary criticisms to New York periodicals, commencing in 1838 in Park Benjamin's (1809–1864) American Monthly, and continuing among others in Arcturus, Poe's Broadway Journal, the Democratic Review, and the American Whig Review. He was for a time associated with Dr. Francis L. Hawks in the editorship of the New York Church Record, and again with Charles Fenno Hoffman (1806–1884) the last survivor of the early contributors to the Knickerbocker Literature, in the Literary World, and also with his brother-in-law, Rev. Dr. Samuel Seabury, in editing The Churchman. The first volume issued by Mr. Jones, entitled The Analyst, A Collection of Miscellaneous Papers, appeared in 1840, followed by Literary Studies, 1847, a memorial of his father, David S. Jones, in 1849, and his final Collection of Essays, called Character and Criticisms, in two volumes, which were published in 1857, and were highly commended by Bryant, Dana, Halleck, Irving, and Simms of South Carolina, all personal friends of the accomplished writer. While Librarian of Columbia College, Mr. Jones prepared several pamphlets, the most important of which are The Library of Columbia College, 1861, and The First Century of Columbia College, 1863, and an Address on Long Island, read before the Long Island Historical Society, of which he was elected, in 1867, an honorary member. Nearly a score of years later, Mr. Jones prepared an admirable address for our Society, his interesting subject being Reminiscences of an old New Yorker.

As a critic and essayist he belonged to the school of Hazlitt and Leigh Hunt, and was more of an Eighteenth century writer than of the nearly completed Nineteenth. He had so many intimacies with prominent New Yorkers, including eminent artists, authors, and professional men, and had as a youth met so many distinguished characters, including Lafayette and DeWitt Clinton, that it is to be regretted, Mr. Jones left no memorial of them. He was a great lover of music and the drama, and could have given the world an entertaining record of all the chief actors and singers, who appeared in New York during the three-score years between 1835 and 1895. For a third of a century that he resided in Connecticut, it was his custom to make semi-annual visits of about three weeks to his native city each spring and autumn. On the occasion of his last visit to New York in April, in conversation with the writer, Mr. Jones recalled two interesting addresses to which he listened sixty years ago by Longfellow and Poe, neither being mentioned by their biographers; of his having been active with his friends Duyckinck and Cornelius Mathews in the American Copyright Club about the same period, Bryant being the President; of his attending the readings of Fanny Kemble, Thackeray and Charles Dickens, and of his having heard Jenny Lind, Rachael and Louis Kossuth. Mr. Jones also alluded to his having outlived all his contemporaries and early friends, particularly mentioning his classmates, John Jay and James Renwick, and expressed a strong presentiment that he should never see his native city again, and that the present writer would soon be called upon to pay the promised tribute to his memory.

The portrait which accompanies this article is copied from a photograph taken when its subject was in middle life. An earlier likeness of Mr. Jones was painted by his friend William S. Mount. and exhibited in the National Academy in 1854. It is a cabinet portrait now in the possession of Columbia University. Among a number of unprinted manuscripts is an elaborate article prepared by Mr. Jones on Wales and Welshmen, which it is to be regretted that he did not complete and publish. This may possibly be done hereafter by his literary executor.

THE ROOSA FAMILY OF ULSTER AND DUTCHESS COUNTIES, NEW YORK.

By Holdridge Ozro Collins, of Los Angeles, California.

The ancestor of the Roosa family in America was Albert Heymans Roosa. He landed in New Netherland in April, 1660, coming in the ship called the Spotted Cow, in company with Roeloff Swartwout and others.

The record of his arrival is found in Documentary History of New York, Vol. 3, page 56, under the chapter entitled "Early Immigrants to New Netherland, 1657–1664." The account is as follows:

"Albert Heymans, agriculturist, from Gelderland, and wife and eight children."

The wife of Albert Heymans Roosa was named Wyntje Allard or Ariens, and soon after their arrival they settled in the Esopus district at Wiltwyck, now Kingston, Ulster County, New York.

At this place, with Cornelis Barents Slecht and wife Tryntje Bos, Mathese Blanchan and wife Madeline Jorisse, Roeloff Swartwout and wife Eva Alberts Bradt de Noorman, and others, Albert Heymans Roosa and his wife Wyntje Allard participated in the first Administration of the Lord's Supper on December 25, 1660, by the Rev. Harmanus Bloem.

Roosa was a wealthy man for those days, bringing with him considerable property from Holland, and he speedily "occupied an influential position in the new settlement." In the Spring of 1661 he joined in a contract guaranteeing a salary to Domine Bloem who had been called as the regular pastor of the Dutch Church at Wiltwyck.

The following is a copy of that agreement:

The undersigned inhabitants of the settlement at the place called Esopus, promise to give our reverend minister Harmanus Bloem as salary for the first year (which salary has commenced with his arrival here, on the 5th of September, 1660) the sum of seven hundred guilders in corn, at beaver valuation, in case his farm should fail and we promise further to put the farm in good order according to contract, as soon as the land has been allotted and to raise that sum at the latest for the coming farming season. This we the undersigned, promise faithfully and truly to do.

This done the 4th of March, 1661.

"Esopus was then without any local government, and, in fact a dependency of Fort Orange. The People were dissatisfied with such a dependent position, and wanted a government of their own. About that time Roeloff Swartwout, a son of one of the original settlers, visited Holland, and through his representations, and other influences, the Amsterdam Directors of the West India Company determined to make the Esopus settlement an independent jurisdiction."

In pursuance of such a plan, they passed an order appointing Roeloff Swartwout, Schout of Esopus, his jurisdiction embracing the powers of sheriff and "the duties of presiding officer of the Court in civil actions, and the duties of prosecuting attorney in criminal proceedings."

Pursuant to the directions of Their Lords High Mightinesses of Holland, Governor Stuyvesant and his Council, at New Amsterdam on May 16, 1661, granted a charter to organize a civil government at Wiltwyck.

The order was in Dutch and it is recorded in the Wiltwyck records. The following is a translation thereof:

"May 16, 1661. Director General Petrus Stuyvesant, delegated and authorized in all matters of government relating to the public welfare of all the county of New Netherland, by power and commission from the noble Lord Directors of the privileged West India Company, observing the situation and condition of a place called the Esopus, which hath now been inhabited and settled six or seven years; hath, in consideration of the situation and population thereof, erected the locality into a village and given it the name of Wiltwyck, whereby it shall be called now and henceforward."

A copy of the Charter, etc. is to be found in Schoonmaker's History of Kingston, pages 24–28, and Appendix, pages 503–506, and in Documents relating to the History and Settlements of the Towns along the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers, above cited, at pages 196–198. See also History of the State of New York, First Period, 1609–1664, page 690. By John Romeyn Brodhead.

By this Charter Evert Pels, Cornelis Barentsen Slecht and Elbert Heymans Roose were appointed the first three Schepens, or Magistrates, who with the presiding Schout, Roeloff Swartwout completed "the Organization of the first village and first judicial tribunal in this section of the State." A copy of the oath of office of the three Schepens is given on page 196 of Documents, etc., above cited.

In 1661 Roosa was appointed one of the three Commissioners to enclose the New Village at the Esopus, called Hurley. See also The Register of New Netherland, 1626 to 1674. By E. B. O'Callaghan, L.L.D., pages 71 and 158. This volume is the "Blue Book" of the Dutch and French Huguenot Families of early New Netherland.

In 1662 a schedule of the old and newly surveyed lots in Wiltwyck with the names of their owners, was made out, and in the "List of old lots, before the place was laid out," appear the names of Evert Pels, owner of lot 2, and Jan Broersen (Dekker) owner of lot 11. In the "List of lots newly laid out," Albert Heymansen (Roosa) appears as the owner of lot 24, and Juriaen Westvael as owning lot 25. Documents, etc., page 230. History of Kingston, pages 28–29.

At the destruction of the village of Hurley, on June 7, 1663, by the Indians, two of the children of Roosa, with 43 others, women and children, were taken captive. The story of the rescue of these captives by the colonial forces under command of Captain Martin Kregier is one of the most interesting of the episodes in the history of Early New York. It may be found in Documents, etc., page 256 et seq. and page 323 et seq.; Doc. Hist., N. Y., Vol. 4, page 39 et seq., and in Bi-Centenary Re-union of the Descendants of Louis and Jaques Du Bois.

The authorities above cited contain many accounts of the acts of Roosa in the early making of Kingston, in all of which he appears as a leader and director of events.

In September, 1665, soon after New Netherland had become a Province of Great Britain, the English Governor, Richard Nicolls, visited Kingston and placed Captain Daniel Brodhead in command at that place. Owing to that officer's tyrannical conduct, and the many acts of oppression and cruelty by the English soldiers under his command, the inhabitants rose in open hostility in 1667.

In their petition to Governor Nicholls for redress, the inhabitants set forth numerous deeds of cruelty by the soldiers; eight of the items are as follows, viz:

"1. Cornelis Barentsen Sleght is beaten in his owne house by his Souldr. George Porter, and after this by the other Souldrs. forced to prison, and was by some souldrs. at his imprisonment used very hard.

3. It is happened that Capt. Broadhead, comminge at the house of Lewis Du Bois tooke an anchor of Brandy and throwed it upon the ground, because the sd. Bois Refused him Brandy without paiment, and did Likewise force this sd. Bois to give him Brandy:

4. And the sd. Bois his wife coming for hur monny at the sd. Broadheads house, he drove the said Bois his wife, with a beare knyff out of his house.

6. Albert Heymans Roos, going with his plouw yron towards the Smits, was assalted by five souldrs. whoe wounded him very much, whereupon

7. The souldiers said the sd. Albert Heymans going wifhout any Reason brought him to Imprisonment was most griviously wounded by Richard Hamer.

12. John Cornelissen Smith, going alonge the Streete was assalted & persecuted to his verry shop & was Like

13. to have been murthered by George Porter, but he was hindered in his desseyn by frans Vreeman; and the sd. George porter hath Likewise uppon the sd. day in open streete assaulted Roeloff Swartwout.

14. Cornelis Barentsen Sleght, beinge by Capt. Broadhead very ill Treated, in his owne house, was afterwards by the sd. Capt. forced to prison, and his armes by force taken out of his house, wch. still doe Remaine by the sd. Capt. Broadhead."

Governor Nicholls on April 16, 1667, appointed a Commission to enquire into their troubles, and in his letter of instructions, he says:

"Albert Heymans and Anthony D. Elba have spoken most malicious words, and I look upon them as great incendiaries and disaffected persons; if their words be proved they shall not be suffered to live in this government; if they have been actors in the late riot, pitch upon them two for ringleaders, and give order to inventory and secure their estates by the Schout and Commissaries." Documents, etc., page 407. Hist. Kingston, pages 52–57. These troubles are called the "Mutiny at Esopus" in the histories of the time.

The Commission appointed by Governor Nicholls sat at Esopus for three days. Captain Brodhead, admitting the truth of the charges against him was suspended from his command and he died three months aftewards, on July 14th, 1667, at Esopus.

Albert Heymans Roosa, Cornelis Barentsen Slecht, and two others "were found guilty of a rebellious and mutinous riot, and were taken to New York for sentence. Nicholls, by advice of his council on the 3d of May, sentenced Heymans to be banished for life out of the government, and the others for shorter terms out of Esopus, Albany and New York. All these sentences of the burghers were subsequently modified, and the offenders returned to Esopus."

A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF THE FAMILY OF LIEUTENANT RICHARD BROWNE, OF SOUTHOLD, ON THE ISLAND OF NASSAU, OR LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

By Lucy D. Akerly, of "Hill Top," Newburgh, N. Y.

5. Walter[5] Browne, of Southold. It is to be regretted that we have not fuller details of Walter, the 4th son of Lieut. Richard Browne. He was born after 1659. Letters on his estate were issued to his widow Jane, 1 May, 1711. (Liber 8, p. 48, N. Y. City Wills). Walter was perhaps a widower in 1698, living with his sons Daniel and Joseph, as all three are mentioned together in the Census of that year.*

* The parentage of Justice Joseph Brown, who d. in Southold Town, 14 Jan., 1751, has never been satisfactorily accounted for. Joseph Brown, Sr., d. 11 Dec., 1739. (Salmon Record.)

Griffin says that Justice Joseph Brown was son of Israel Brown, and both were noble hearted men. There is no evidence whatever of any Israel Brown at Southold at so early a date; nevertheless the names Selah and Jeremiah, of two of the children of Joseph Brown, lead to the belief that they might have been of Reeve, or Vail, ancestry.

Joseph Brown m. Dorothy[6] Tuthill, (John[5], John[4], Henry[3], Henry[2], John[1]). His will, Liber 17, p. 412, N. Y. City Wills, names his wife Dorothy, his das. married and unmarried, calling but one, Dorothy, by name; his sons Benjamin and Joseph, and his three youngest sons, Joshua, Selah and Jeremiah, and his brother Daniel Brown. Benjamin, named above, m. Mary Tuthill. It is doubtless his will dated 22 April, 1774, proved the 10 May, 1774, which mentions his wife Abigail, his children: Gershom, George, Israel; Mary, Jemima, Elizabeth and Bethia. (Liber 29, p. 396, N. Y. City Wills.)

Joseph Brown, Jr., b. in 1731, m. Mehitable, da. of Jeremiah Vail 4th, and his wife Elizabeth Youngs. Mehitable was b. 30th May, 1738. An account of their 18 children will be found in Griffin's Journal.

Dorothy, da. of Joseph and Dorothy Brown is supposed to have married James Brown; it is not a proven fact as yet. See Dorothy, da. of Capt. Richard Brown, No. 6.

Hannah, da. of Joseph and Dorothy Brown, is said to have married Joseph Youngs.

Abigail, da. of Joseph and Dorothy Brown, b. probably 1734-'37, was the 1st wife of John Walter Brown married on 15 May, 1699–1700, Jane Conkline, of East Hampton. Widow Jane Brown m. on 15 July, 1711–12, Daniel Edwards. Issue:

i. ELIZABETH,[5] bapt. 4 June, 1704.
ii. HANNAH, bapt. 8 Sept., 1706.
iii. JANE, bapt. 1 May, 1708–9.*
iv. WALTER, who perhaps m. 1st, Abigail, (Brown?), who d. 5 Oct., 1721; 2nd, Mary Youngs, on 12 Jan. 1723–4, who d. 14 April, 1735; and 3d, Mehitable[4] Horton, (Jonathan[3], Capt. Jonathan[2], Barnatas[1]), b. in 1712, m. on 2 Dec., 1743. A da. of Walter, Jr's., d. 20 March, 1746, æ. 9. It is possible that some of the above entries belong to Walter, son of William, No. 4, but according to the Brown Records at Orient, Walter, son of Walter, and grandson of Lieut. Richard Brown, was married three times. His son John[4] was the ancestor of Mr. Marcus B. Brown, of Orient. The said John[4] is supposed to have married Zipporah[4] Brown, da. of Richard[3] and Zipporah (Tuthill) Brown. The compiler of this Record believes that at least one generation of John's ancestry has been omitted.

6. CAPT. RICHARD[3] BROWN (Ensign Richard[2], Lieut. Richard[1]), of Southold, b. there 6 April, 1684, d. between 1765–1771, perhaps in 1770, he married on 21 Feb., 1704–5, Anna Youngs, who d. 23 Nov., 1748, æ. 65 years.†

Richard Brown was a land owner in Southold Town. His Commission of Captain of a Militia Company, in Colonel Henry Smith's Suffolk County Regiment, dated 6 June, 1740, signed by Lieutenant Governor George Clark, is in the possession of Mr. Rufus King, of Yonkers. Children of Cap. Richard and Anna (Youngs) Brown:

i. ANNA[4], b. 6 Jan., 1705–6, d. 29 Sept., 1729.
ii. A DAUGHTER, b. 18 Nov., d. 22 Nov., 1707.
10. iii. RICHARD, b. 4 Nov., 1708, d. 23 Sept., 1776.
iv. HENRY, b. 12 Jan., 1710–11. He married, doubtless, on 25 Nov., 1731, Mary, da. of Lieutenant Nathaniel and Ann Paine. Their son, Nathan Payne, d. 2 Jan., 1744–5, aged 10 years. Their daughter, Mary, d.

King, Jr[5]., of Southold, (John[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], William[1]). He was b. 18 Dec., 1727, married 13 March, 1754, d. 14 July, 1792. (See Pedigree of King, of Salem.)

According to the Chad. Brown Genealogical Memoirs, and Mallman's History of Shelter Island, Daniel Brown, (Supervisor of the Town of Shelter Island, in 1745, and thereafter,) was a descendant of the Chad. Brown family of Providence, R. I.

The entries in the Salmon Record regarding the Daniel Browns of Southold are: "Daniel Brown m. Phoebe Wiggins, 13 Sept., 1742." "Daniel Youngs Brown, drowned 14 Sept., 1750." "Daniel Brown's wife Experience, d 24 Sept., 1752." "Daniel Brown, Jr., d. 4 July, 1754."

* East Hampton Church Records.

† The only evidence we have of the parentage of Anna Youngs, is the Census of 1698. She was doubtless da. of Christopher Youngs, Sr., and granddaughter of Rev. John Youngs, of Southold, N. Y., and his 2nd wife Mary, whose father was, in all probability, Thomas Warren, of Southwold, Suffolk, Eng. The parents of Rev. John Youngs, of Long Island, Rev. Christopher, and Margaret Youngs were likewise of Southwold and Reydon, England.

Mary, wife of Christopher Youngs, Sr., mother of Anna Youngs Brown, was the daughter of Lieut. John[2] and Mary Budd, and granddaughter of Lieut. John[1] and Katherine (Brown) Budd. See the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Baird's History of Rye and the L. I. Traveler.

in May, 1743–4, aged 7 years. Henry's will, dated 14 Feb., 1774, proved 30 April, 1771, (Liber 34, p. 376, N. Y. City Wills) names his son Henry Brown, and his heirs, his son Peter Brown, and his heirs, to whom he leaves land which fell to him at the decease of his Uncle David. He also names his brother John Griffing, his sons Richard and Pain, Brown, and his daughter Anna Halliock. (See Henry Brown, No. 87, of Moore's Indexes).

v. CHRISTOPHER, b. 29 June, 1714, d. 25 Aug., 1739, buried at Orient.

vi. MEHITABLE, b. 21 Aug., 1717.

vii. PETER, M. D., b. 11 Sept., 1719, d. 4 June, 1746–7, in (2?) May, 1746, Mary King, b. 27 Jan., 1726, d. 9 April, 1766, wife of John Wiggins, Jr. Peter's will is recorded on p. 189, of Liber 16, N. Y. City Wills. Issue,1 son:

1. Peter[6], b. in 1747. His will dated 8 Dec., 1767, proved 19 March, 1770, names his "grandfather Captain Richard Brown, his Uncles Nathaniel King, and James Brown, his Cousins James, and Christopher, Brown, his brother John Wiggins, his sisters Juliana, Phoebe, and Margaret Wiggins." (Liber 27, p. 437, N. Y. City Wills).

viii. DOROTHY, named in the will of her father, Capt. Richard Brown, and in that of her brother, Dr. Peter Brown. It is probable that it was this Dorothy Brown, (and not Dorothy, da. of Joseph Brown), who m. on 15 June, 1748, James Brown, of Southold. His will, dated 13 June, 1784, proved 8 Oct., 1785, (Liber 38, p. 184, N. Y. City Wills), names "Wife Dorothy, das. Anna and Hannah, son James Brown, and grandson David Terry. Dorothy, da. of James and Dorothy Brown, d. 8 Oct., 1754, æ. 2 years, 9 months and 12 days.*

7. DAVID[5] BROWN (William[4], Lieut. Richard[1]), of Southold, b. 17 March, 1695, m., perhaps, Damaris ———, who d. 9 June, 1730, and Elizabeth Simmons, on 10 Dec., 1730. The will of David, dated 15 Sept., 1756, sworn to 12 Oct., the same year, was proved 3 Jan., 1757. (Liber 20, p. 179, N. Y. City Wills). It names his "Wife Elizabeth; brother Thomas Brown; eldest da. Mary Luce; other da., Isabel Bishop; his deceased son, Nathaniel, whose child was under age; sons David, Walter, Obadiah, and 4th son Reuben Brown, and Mary, widow of his deceased son, Peter." Of the above children, Reuben was no doubt Reuben Brown, of Upper Acquebogue, who d. 24 Feb., 1794–5, in his 61st year. He m. on 26 Sept., 1765, Eleanor Youngs, of Upper Acquebogue, who died 15 Sept., 1786, in her 50th year. They had at least two children, David, bapt. 31 July, 1768, and Elizabeth, bapt. 1 Aug., 1773.† It is possible, but by no means, proved, that David had a son William. Moore's Indexes name a son, William, but omit Walter.

8. ELIJAH[5] BROWN, (William[4], Lieut. Richard[1]), of Southold, b. 27 March, 1700, he m. on 10 Dec., 1724, Esther Curtice, who d. on 17 Oct., 1740. This Elijah, or his son Elijah, probably m. on 20 Feb., 1752, Mary Mather. The will of Elijah Brown, of Southold, was dated 14 Jan., 1775, the testator died shortly afterwards. The said will, (Liber 37,284, N. Y. City Wills), names "Wife Mary, sons Elijah, Absolom, William and David, das. Mary, Catherine, Abigail, and Esther Tournier."

William, son of Elijah, is probably the one who has hitherto been called son of David.*

The Mattituck Church Records contain the entries of the baptisms of two children of William and Sarah Brown. Elijah, bapt. 10 May, 1767, and William, bapt. 10 July, 1768. William d. in 1818, in his 51st year. His 1st wife Phobe, d. 2 April, 1807. His 2nd wife Phoebe, d. in 1822. Mr. Wm. H. Brown, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., descends from William and his 1st wife.

(The marriage of another William Brown and Margaret Munrow, both of Upper Acquebogue, is also recorded at Mattituck, as having taken place on 30 April, 1767).

9. THOMAS[5] BROWN, (William[4], Lieut. Richard[1]), of Southold, b. there 8 Nov., 1702. He probably m. Elisheba Sherry, of East Hampton, on 23 Oct., 1728. His will, dated 27 Sept., 1759, proved 28 Nov., the same year, (Liber 21, p. 464, N. Y. City Wills), names "Wife Elizeheba, sons Thomas and Samuel, and da. Jemima."

One Thomas Brown was drowned 26 March, 1749, and a Samuel Brown m. Elizabeth Howell in Nov., 1752.†

10. RICHARD[4] BROWN (Capt. Richard[3], Ensign Richard[2], Lieut. Richard[1]), of Southold, b. 4 Nov., 1708, d. 23 Sept., 1776. He m. on 24 Dec., 1730, Hannah Hawke, who d. 15 Oct., 1789, æ. about 80 years. Richard's will, Liber 34, p. 539, N. Y. City Wills, was dated 3 June, 1772, proved 1 April, 1782. Richard and Hannah were the owners of the cup, of which an illustration is given in this article. Issue of Richard and Hannah (Hawke) Brown:

BAXTER FAMILIES, GENEALOGY AND NOTES.

By James W. T. Scott, Philadelphia.

Kings County Baxters.

John Baxter of New Utrecht, a United States soldier, died intestate: letters of administration for his estate were granted in November, 1821.

At Flatlands, lived John Baxter, yeoman, and Alice his wife, who sold real estate in 1839; Garret S., who died intestate, January, 1836, and Timothy, afterwards a Brooklyn manufacturer who disposed of landed property in 1842. In 1826, Greenburg Baxter, carpenter, formerly of Brooklyn, lived in New York, and William M. Baxter with Eliza his wife, were in Williamsburg (Brooklyn, E. D.) in 1844.

Baxter Marriages in New York State.

1736, June 12, Elizabeth Baxter to William Barnet, residence not given.

1736, November 10, Ealsie Baxter to Amos Browner, residence not given.

1737, November 19, Rebecca Baxter to William Ramsey, residence not given.

1765, September 13, Phebe Baxter, spinster, to Michael Croos, of Westchester.

1770, November 14, Abigail Baxter, spinster, to John Martin, of Westchester.

1776, February 13, Thomas Baxter to Mary Palmer, spinster, of Frog's Neck.

1777, May 26, Keziah Baxter, spinster, to William Nikolls, of New York.

1780, October 7, Jonathan Baxter to Mrs. Mary Goockh, of New York.

1783, June 26, James Baxter to Mrs. Annie Williams, of New York.

1762, February 19, Mitchell Baxter to Hannah Frost, spinster, of Cow Neck, Queens County.

August 17, 1652, Elje, daughter of Thomas Baxter was baptized in the Reformed Dutch Church, New York.

The register of the old Dutch Church near Montrose, Westchester County, contains an item in 1741 about a Baxter, but whether a birth, marriage or death cannot be deciphered.

The following enlisted in New York provincial regiments raised for defence against French and Indians. The occupation laborer affixed to several names does not necessarily imply they were farm hands or earned their living at rough work. Owners of good sized tracts of land are frequently called laborers in deeds of sale and purchase in colonial times.

April 30th, 1759, Reuben Baxton (Baxter?) laborer, age thirty-five, born in Connecticut. April, 1760, William Baxter, laborer, born in America, height five feet four inches, of brown complexion. Charles Baxter, laborer, age twenty-six, born in Holland, height five feet four inches, fair complexion. August 1762, Nathan Baxter, born in Hebron, age 50, height five feet eight inches, and Simon Baxter, carpenter, age forty-six, born in Martha's Vineyard, height five feet nine inches.

The following Baxters were in American commands during the Revolution: in Crane's Westchester Regiment, Benjamin, David, John and Thomas; in Drake's Regiment, Lockard Baxter; in Delevan's Dragoon's, Isaac and Oliver; in Captain Joseph Hatch's Rangers, William; in Major John Wheelock's Independent Militia Company, Simon; in "The Line, First Regiment," Dockwood; in the Dutchess County Militia Regiment of "Minute Men," Thomas; in the Fourth Westchester County Militia (Land Bounty Rights), Pettit; in Willett's Tryon County Regiments, Aaron, Anson and Thomas. The last was prisoner in Canada from May 27, 1780, to April 19, 1783.

John, of the Fourth Westchester, was wounded in the shoulder and arm, and a prisoner from June 24, 1779, to January 9, 1780. New York pensioned him. A William Baxter enlisted for three years in the New York Line, January 1, 1777, and was discharged June 19, 1777. William Baxter of Massachusetts, April 27, 1818, at the age of 66, changed his United States pension address to Oswego, N. Y.

John and Thomas Backter (Baxter?), were in Captain Helmers' Company of Colonel Jacob Klock's Second Tryon County Regiment, which was in service from February 18th to August 18th, 1779, and March 10th to September 1st, 1780.

John Baxter of Westchester, N. Y., and Horseneck, Conn. and his Descendants.

Miss Frances Baxter, Kane, Pa., says, about 1730 John Baxter appeared at Horseneck, having probably come from Westchester. It is certain he moved to North Salem, N. Y., as early as 1740.

200. John Baxter married Mary Adams. Their children were:

201. i. Sarah or Mary, born March 11, 1730 or 1734; died June, 1802; married to Abraham Smith of North Salem.

202. ii. Pettit, born Horseneck, Conn., December 16, 1732; died February 5, 1805 or 1809, at North Salem.

203. iii. Thomas, born Horseneck, April 22, 1739; died February 20, 1809, at North Salem.

204. iv. Nathaniel, born 1751; died June 27, 1803, at North Salem.

205. v. Stebbins, born 1754; died February 28, 1820.

206. vi. Austin, no record.

207. vii. Patty, Mrs. Abraham Gilbert of Ridgefield.

208. viii. Huldah, Mrs. Quick of North Salem.

209. ix. Ann Jane, Mrs. June of North Salem.

202. Pettit Baxter, married Sarah Brush, born November 9, 1738; died February 5, 1823, at North Salem. Their children, all born in North Salem, were:

210. i. John, born September 24, 1760; died Friendship, N. Y., November 28, 1841.

A CORNELL CORNER.

CONTRIBUTED BY REV. JOHN CORNELL, OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

The following are some inscriptions copied from the tombstones now standing in the Cornell Homestead Burial Plot at Portsmouth, R. I.:

In memory of Catherine Cornell wife of Stephen B. Cornell, who died April 4, 1840, in the 70th year of her age.

In memory of Stephen B. Cornell who died July 17, 1840, in the 69th year of his year.

Hannah Coggeshall, died aged 82 years, 9 months & 5 days.

Sacred to the memory of John Wyatt of Virginia, died August 23rd, 1806, in the 55th year of his age.

In memory of Lydia P. Albro, who died Nov. 8, 1841, aged 48 years.

Sacred to the memory of Ann, wife of Samuel Coggeshall, who died May 19, 1808, in the 38th year of her age.

In memory of Samuel Coggeshall, born Aug. 16, 1774, died June 29, 1855.

In memory of Deliverance, ye daughter of George Cornell, Esq., & Abigal, his wife, died May ye 21st, 1740, aged 2 yrs. & 4 mo.

Sacred to the memory of Jonathan Cornell, who departed this life Sep. 2d, 1809, in the 75th year of his age.

Sacred to the memory of Oliver Cornell, who died Jan. 10 ———

In memory of Miss Sarah Brownel, who died Feb. 14, 1806, in the 67 year of her age.

As will be seen, the oldest monument is 1740, and the inscription is still very distinct. This stone is of slate, which, though seemingly the most perishable, is really the most enduring, remaining when the stone, marble and even granite perish in this climate. There are the stumps and remains of other tombstones in this family burial plot, and some still standing on which the inscriptions are entirely effaced. We have good reason to suppose that the Emigrant was buried in this place, for the Quaker Records state that Rebecca, his wife, was buried by her husband "in their own ground." This Cornell homestead was a grant to Thomas Cornell, Feb. 4, 1646, and earlier than that of Cornell's Neck in Westchester County by Governor Kieft, which was dated July 14, 1646. This Thomas does not seem to have remained there long for he was driven away by the Indians, and returned to his former home in Portsmouth, where he lived, died and was buried. It may be of interest to know that he came from Essex Co., England, to Boston about 1636, and in 1640 to Portsmouth, R. I., closely following the Roger Williams and Ann Hutchingson exodus. In fact the place next to his was "laid out to Edward Hutchingson," a son of Ann Hutchingson. This Cornell homestead, which is about six miles from Newport, has been in the family ever since, and is now owned by the Rev. John Cornell, eighth in descent from Thomas.

EDITORIAL.

THERE seem to be, at last, evidences of a definite and systematic movement looking to the establishment of a universal system of genealogical notation; for word comes to us from the New England Historic-Genealogical Society that its officers have asked the co-operation of similar institutions in effecting the reform. When students of genealogy, and others making searches in the musty records of dead ancestors, are forced to flounder about in the mazes of a complicated system of notation; when Librarians are repeatedly asked to lay aside their duties and go to the assistance of a bewildered reader, who has given up in utter despair the mathematical problem of such a system of notation; when reviewers of books find themselves called upon to censure the authors for attempting to foist upon the genealogical public new, absurd and perplexing systems of notation;—when these things obtain simply because compilers, new in the field, inexperienced in the work of editing such data, hold up their inventive genius to the admiration of the world and cry with a loud voice that theirs is the best scheme yet invented, it is certainly high time that a SYSTEM TRUST be formed which will make it impossible for the compiler to use anything but the accepted form of notation, and disastrous to the publishers who will print anything else. Let us, then, "get right down to business," put our heads together and formulate some plan which will effect the reform and establish, once for all, a UNIVERSAL SYSTEM OF GENEALOGICAL NOTATION. We suggest, that since the plan observed in the pages of the Register and the Record has been found to be the most easily followed, the clearest, simplest and already most used, this system be established as the standard; and that all the publishers be invited to co-operate in this good work.

The time has long since passed when there can be any excuse for a continuation of this evil—which still, to some degree, seriously detracts from the usefulness of what, in other respects would be considered good and valuable genealogical work. No man, setting himself to the making of a new article of goods, etc., would do so without first making a full and careful investigation of such similar goods, etc., as had already been manufactured in the same line; so as to study their weak points and their strong points, and thus be able to judge in what respects he may compete with and excel them. And so with an author, he must study the best models, if he wishes to consult the comfort and approbation of those who read his pages. In these days of numerous public libraries in which genealogical works can be consulted—there is absolutely, we repeat it, no excuse, for ignorance on the part of any author, as to the best existing form of genealogical notation. Any librarian will promptly direct him to safe and excellent models.

OBITUARY.

ALLING, ASA ALLING, Esq., a member of this Society since April 9th, 1897, died in this city April 14th, 1900, aged 38 years. He derived his ancestry from Roger Alling, who, imbibing Puritanical principles, emigrated to Holland, and thence, in 1637, to Massachusetts. He was the son of James Alling, or Allen, of Hempstead, Oxfordshire, England. The next year after his arrival in New England, Roger removed to the New Haven Colony, whence, in 1639, he was one of the "free planters" who signed the New Haven Compact; and became, prominent in that Colony as its Treasurer, and as a Church Officer and Magistrate. He died in 1679, leaving several sons, one of whom, Caleb Alling, married Thankful Mix, and had a son Asa (first of that name) born in 1723: and who removed to what is now Dutchess Co., N. Y., and became the founder of that branch of the family known as the Hudson River Allings, in contra-distinction to the New Jersey and Connecticut branches. He, also, had a son Asa (second of that name) who was known, during the Revolutionary period, as Capt. Alling, and who married Jemima Purdy, Westchester Co., N. Y. One of their sons, Judge Asa (third of that name) married Cornelia Sackett, in 1815; and their son, J. Sackett Alling, became a leading merchant in this city. He married Annie E. Bertine, daughter of Pierre Bertine (or Berton) a Hugenot emigre, who came first to South Carolina, and thence to Westchester Co., N. Y. These were the parents of our late fellow member, Asa Alling Alling. Born May 4, 1862, in New York City, he received his preliminary education at the Chappaqua Mountain Institute, Westchester Co., and entered Cornell University, from which he graduated P.B. in 1883. He was prominent in college life, one of the founders and first editors of the Cornell Daily News: "Ivy Orator" of his class, (the highest of Cornell honors) and winner of the Woodford ($100) prize for oratory. After leaving college, he passed two years in the Law School of Columbia College, and graduated LL.B. in 1885, being called to the bar in the same year. He at first practiced with Daniel W. Guernsey and Platt, Gerard and Bowers. During his two years of law study, he delivered in various places, lectures on Alexander Hamilton, Daniel Webster, and other eminent Americans: and also contributed largely to the literary press. In 1889, he organized, with Thaddeus D. Kenneson and Thomas C. T. Crain, the law firm Kenneson, Crain & Alling, of which he was a member at the time of his death. He made a specialty of corporation and financial law, having organized and acted as counsel for a number of large financial corporations, and was the legal adviser of several banks, trust and insurance companies, etc. He also took an active part in politics. Mr. Alling married, June 20th, 1894, Louise Floyd (dau. of George Hervey and Julia Leary Floyd) Smith, of New York City. Her mother was a daughter of Geo. W. Floyd and Jane Mitchell Seely. Mr. Alling left no children. He was a man of genial nature, kind-hearted, charitable, winning in manner and popular with all his acquaintances. His home life was happy; and, as a host, none could entertain more courteously. In social and club life he was a favorite. He was a Governor of the Democratic Club, and Chairman of its House Committee; a member of the Executive Committee of the Business Mens' Democratic Club; a member also of the Metropolitan Club, and of the Country, Riverside, Pontiac and Dutchess Co. Clubs; of the Bar Association, the Manhattan Club, the Reform Club; the West End Association (and chairman of one of its committees); of the N. Y. Historical Society, the New England Society, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Delta Phi, the Business Mens' Sound Money League, Beta Theta Phi, Cornell University Alumni, etc.

GREENWOOD, LANGDON, born in N. Y. City, 9 August, 1840; entered the Grammar School of Columbia College September, 1845; took his B.A. degree at Columbia, 1861; married, March 15, 1866, Hellen Annette, (second daughter of Thomas Jones and Sarah E. Smith) Snyder, of New York, who died April 1, 1872, at Genoa, Italy, aged 29, leaving a son, Langdon, Jr., born 13 March, 1867, and now of New York City. Mrs. H. A. Greenwood's mother was the daughter and heir of David Sidney and Evelina Smith, and grand-daughter of Arthur and Grace (Ver Veelen) Smith; her father was a son of Peter and Sarah (Jones) Snyder, and grandson of Henry and Sarah (Cowless) Snyder; Henry Snyder died 1793, and his widow married Anthony Steenback. Mr. Langdon Greenwood married (2) 19 June, 1877, Ann Maud, second daughter of Capt. James Hand, by his second wife Anne E. Risley. She was born in Philadelphia, 4 November, 1852. Mr. Hand was a shipping merchant; removed from Philadelphia to New York (1846) and resided in Brooklyn. He was connected with the Clyde Line of steamers. His father, Ezra Hand, was from Cape May, N. J. Capt. James Hand died in Brooklyn, in 1879, aged 79. Mr. Langdon Greenwood was a resident of New York City, though he died at Atlantic City, N. J., 25 January, 1900. He was never actively engaged in business; was quite literary in his tastes and a great lover of books. He joined this Society in 1892. His ancestral history is to be found in the Sons of the Revolution Hand Book, and on pp. 31–34 of H. Whittemore's Heroes of the Revolution and their Descendants.

KING.—MAJOR RUFUS KING, died at his home in New York City, March 18, 1900. He belonged to a family prominent in public life: his grandfather, Charles King, was for many years President of Columbia College; and his great grandfather, Rufus King, was United States Senator from New York, and, for eight years, Minister at the Court of St. James.

William King, first Governor of Maine; John Alsop King, Governor of the State of New York, and James Gore King, Member of Congress from New York, were also of this family.

Major Rufus King, the subject of this memoir, was a descendant of John[1] and Mary (Stowell) King, of Boston, Mass.; through Richard[2] and Mary (Black) King, of Scarborough, Me.; Rufus[3] and Mary (Alsop) King, of Jamaica, L. I.; Charles[4] and Eliza (Gracie) King, and William Gracie[5] and Adeline (McKee) King, of New York City.

Rufus[6] King, son of William Gracie King, just mentioned, was born in New York City, March 21, 1838. At the age of nineteen he entered the U. S. Coast Survey and remained in the service until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the New York, Seventh Regiment. While on duty in Washington, he received a commission in the regular army as second Lieutenant of the Fourth Artillery, and in 1861 was made first Lieutenant; in 1862, he was brevetted Captain for gallant conduct at White Oak Swamp, Va., where he saved his battery by taking it over a burning bridge; this brave act was also recognized by Congress, later on, in awarding him a medal of honor.

In 1869, he received a commission as Captain of the Fourth Artillery, and remained in the army until January 1, 1871, when he was mustered out with the rank of Brevet-Major.

On leaving the service, Major King engaged in business pursuits and, at the time of his death, was established in New York City as Solicitor of Patents.

In 1867, he married Maria, daughter of Chancellor Williamson, of New Jersey; she survives him with two daughters, Elizabeth Williamson and Mary.

Major King was an Aide-de-Camp on the Staff of Gen. Robert S. Green, of New Jersey, with the rank of Colonel; he was also a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, Lafayette Post, G. A. R., and the Society of American Wars. Funeral Services were held in Trinity Church, Elizabeth, N. J., Rev. John Atkinson officiating.

MARIE ADELAIDE SHIPLEY, née Brown, a corresponding member of our Society, died after a long but painless illness, at Cherbres-sur Vevey, Switzerland, 19 April, 1900. She was born in New York City in 1843, and received a good education with a view to devoting her time to literary pursuits. For the past two decades she resided in Europe, occupying herself chiefly in carrying on investigations in regard to the discovery of the New World. Previous to her departure from this country Mrs. Shipley delivered an admirable address before our Society, her subject being the Norse Discovery of America. She married in 1889 John B. Shipley, an English writer, and they at the same time became literary partners, pursuing their historical work together.

After rendering eminent services to American literature by translating from the Swedish many historical and other romances and poems, by Mme. Schwartz, Z. Topelius and J. L. Runeberg, Mrs. Shipley gave herself up entirely to her favorite study, namely, the Norse-Icelandic Discovery of America, and its rediscovery by the Cabots for England (they finding North America in 1497, whereas Columbus only touched the Southern continent in 1498, on his third voyage)—the Cabot discovery being a consequence of the Norse one, and leading in its turn to the subsequent colonization of North America by the English, and thus to the establishment of the United States and of Canada, and preventing the New World from falling entirely into the hands of Spain. Mrs. Shipley's published works were as follows:

Translations: Several of the best novels of Mme. Schwartz, the popular Swedish authoress. The celebrated series of historical romances entitled "The Surgeon's Stories," by Z. Topelius, the Sir Walter Scott of Finland, dealing with Swedish and Finnish history from the Thirty Years' War onward. The fine romantic poem "Nadeschda," by J. L. Runeberg, another Finnish author; several other poems by the same including the national song, "Our Country;" besides tales for children, and songs by various authors. (All these translated from the Swedish language into English, and published in this country. "Nadeschda" was issued in England by Elliot Stock).

Original Works: The Icelandic Discoverers of America (London, 1887). By Marie A. Brown.

The English Rediscovery and Colonization of America, by John B. and Marie A. Shipley, London, Elliot Stock, published 1891.

The Norse Colonization in America, by the Light of the Vatican Finds. Privately printed, Keller, Lucerne, 1899. By Marie A. Shipley. J. G. W.

QUERIES.

BARNARD-LIVINGSTON.—Richard Montgomery Livingston, b. Mar. 13, 1773, son of Richard Livingston and Elizabeth Rencour of Stillwater, New York, formerly of Montreal, Canada, married about 1798, Mary Barnard, and had eight children, John, Stephen, Richard M., jr., Henrietta E., Pamelia, Mariette and Edmund (twins), and Edward Bayard.

Any information of above Mary Barnard's parentage and ancestry is desired. It is said that she was a niece of Gilbert Belcher, who it is thought lived in Connecticut. The Belcher Genealogy gives Andrew Belcher married at Hartford, Connecticut, 1670, Sarah Gilbert; their grandson, Jonathan Belcher, an early settler at Halifax, became Chief-Justice and Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, he had a son Gilbert J. Belcher, b. 1759, d. 1763.

FRANK BARNARD KING, Albany, New York.

BEMUS.—Wanted to know the ancestry of Jotham Bemus, of "Bemis Heights," N. Y., born 1738, and his wife, Tryphena (Moore) Bemus, who was of Scotch descent? Thought to have moved from Connecticut to Bemis Heights, N. Y.

KELLOGG.—Wanted to know the ancestry of Philinda Kellogg, born 1794, and married Dr. Aaron D. Palcher, of Hooseck Falls, N. Y.? Thought to be daughter of Joseph Kellogg.

PATCHIN.—Wanted to know the ancestry of Chloe, wife of Thaddeus Patchen, of New Lebanon, N. Y. She was born 1760?

POST.—Wanted to know the ancestry of Absolom Post, born Pittstown, Putnam Co., N. Y., November 29, 1776, and Anna (Schofield) Post, his wife, born at New Rochelle, N. Y., July 12, 1771? Absolom's father thought to be a Revolutionary soldier.

GARREBRANT.—Wanted, the genealogy of Jacob Garrebrant, who married Catarina Earl. Catarina Earl was born August 28, 1737. Their children were: Tryntie, baptized 1760 in New York; Jacob, baptized 1762 in New York; Greitie, baptized 1765 in New York; Myndert, baptized 1783 in Newark, N. J. Tryntie was brought up by her aunt, Tryntie Garrebrant Mabee, of Tappan, and married David P. Haring; Jacob married Catherine Halloway; Greitie married 1st, —— Neafie; 2d, Jacob Haring.

Winfield gives a Jacob Garrebrant, born 1717, son of Mindert and Tryntie Van Winkle Garrebrant, but no record of a daughter Tryntie. Is this the right one, if not, was he a descendant of Peter and Chrystyntie Van Ripen Garrebrant, or who was he? MAJOR T. H. BARTHOFF, Southern Pines, N. C.

I AM anxious to obtain any information concerning the history of the Dutch church which was located in colonial times near what is now the village of North Petersburgh, N. Y. The building used by the church was a log house which stood at the four corners about a mile east of the present village. This was the most easterly church upon the "Hoosick Patent," and from what information I can obtain, I believe it was established about 1760, and for a period of thirty or forty years it was used for the purposes of worship by the Dutch settlers. A few years after 1800, the building was used for a school; then decay rendered it untenantable, and about 1825 it was destroyed. There was a burying ground in connection with this church, traces of which are still visible.

In seeking for information about this church, I am anxious to locate, if possible, the marriage records and the register of baptisms. It is probable that these books have been preserved, and that they are to be found among the descendants of the family of either, one of the last deacons, or the last pastor of the church. In attempting to discover these records, this suggestion may be of aid to searchers. Additional information will be given to those who write me.

MARINE SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.—On page 189 of the RECORD for July, 1899, there is a reference to a Marine Society of New York, 1794. Can any one tell me where the records of this society are to be found?

CATHARINE T. R. MATTHEWS, Croton-on-Hudson, N. Y.

REED (RIDT, RIED).—In the Records of the old Dutch Church of Clarkstown, as published by Rev. David Cole, in his History of Rockland County, N. Y., appear the following births of children of Peter Reed (Ridt, Ried,) and Maria Crom (Krom): Maria, "In 1765;" Catherine, March 25, 1767; Margaret, Feb. 26, 1770; John, Nov. 21, 1772; Peter, Jan. 15, 1777, and Daniel, Aug. 5, 1779.

In a record taken from a Family Bible in possession of a descendant of Daniel, the above dates are given without difference, except that birth of John is stated as of Dec. 18, 1772. It gives dates of birth of the Father, Peter, Oct. 8, 1735, and the Mother Mary (Maria), Nov. 6, 1735. It gives dates of death of John, July 20, 1810, and Peter, Jr., as of Feb. 14, 1803.

It also mentions a daughter Jane, as born Sept. 1, 1774, and dying as wife of James Armstrong, Oct. 14, 1806. It would seem probable from this that all the family with above exception were living at latest date mentioned, 1810. To complete record of the family the following data is desired:

1st. Dates of death of father Peter, and mother Maria (or Mary).

Digitized by Google

2d. Did the daughter Catherine marry, if so, who, and were there descendants?

3d. Did the son Peter marry, if so who, and were there descendants?

4th. Did the daughter Jane, wife of James Armstrong, leave a family, and are there any descendants living.

The original records have been examined and no mention is made of birth or baptism of Jane, but this may have been caused by the father and mother living temporarily elsewhere. Any information given will be much appreciated. Please address, T. A. WRIGHT, 150 Bleecker St., New York.

WANTED.—The blazon of the arms of

1. Robert Livingston, 1st Lord of Livingston Manor.
2. Col. Nicholas Bayard.
3. Major Dirck Wessels Ten Broeck.
4. Johannes de Peyster.
5. James Alexander, father of Lord Stirling.
6. Governor John Reading, of New Jersey.
7. Rutger Jacobsen Van Schoenderwoert.
8. Dr. Gerard Beekman.
9. Roeloff Martense Schenck, of Long Island.
10. Col. John Neilson, of New Jersey, in 1776.
11. Catherine Stevens, who married in 1755, Thomas Grant.
12. Dr. Saml. Johnson, President of King's (now Columbia) College.

Information is also sought as to the authentic royal descent of any of the ascendants of Robt. Livingston, before mentioned.

IN our last issue we omitted to mention that the frontispiece, a view of Southold, Long Island, was loaned to the RECORD by Mrs. George Wilson Smith, of New York. Mrs. Smith, who has long been interested in Southold genealogies, and is a member of the Committee on Research, representing Suffolk Co., N. Y., has had several views of landmarks taken at her own expense, and has kindly submitted them to our Publication Committee for use in the RECORD. We take this opportunity of correcting our error, and making due acknowledgment to Mrs. Smith for her kindness and courtesy.

THE following we are advised is now in preparation, and soon to be issued: "The de Forests of New Netherland;" otherwise, "The de Forests of Avesnes" (France). A Genealogical History, extending from Fourteen hundred and ninety-four, to Eighteen hundred and forty. Arms of related families, such as the de Forests of Quartdeville, the du Fossets of Mons, and the de Resteaus of Hainaut. Publication in the autumn of 1900.

SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS.

A REGULAR monthly meeting of the Society was held on the evening of April 13th, at which the Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, an Honorary member of the Society, delivered an address under the title of "Some Memories of People worth Remembering." Dr. Cuyler spoke in a reminiscent vein, and gave some personal recollections of Carlyle, Dickens, Wordsworth, Gladstone and Lincoln. At the conclusion of the address, the following were elected to membership in the Society: J. Irving Holcomb, Mrs. Simon Baruch, Mrs. George Latham, Winchester Fitch, Charles B. Benson, Dr. Brandreth Symonds, George H. Gaston, George B. Woodward, Chas. D. Brewster, John C. Calhoun, Hermann H. Cammann, George Chapman, H. C. Duval, Jonathan Dwight, Walter Geer, Frank S. Gerrish, George O. Gordon, Jos. R. Guernsey, Henry J. Hardenbergh, Frank B. Keech, Rev. A. C. Kimber, J. Burling Lawrence, Wm. V. Lawrence, Wm. H. Lefferts, Lloyd Phoenix, William Rockefeller, Wm. Saloman, and Abel I. Smith.

The last regular meeting of the season of 1899–1900 was held on Friday evening, May 11th, when the Rev. Eliphalet Nott Potter read a tribute to the memory of Cornelius Vanderbilt, a late Vice-President of this Society. Dr. Potter was listened to with much interest, and was followed by Mrs. Lizzie P. Evans-Hansell, who read a paper entitled, "Family Record." The members newly elected at this meeting were: Edward S. Rawson, Edson Bradley, Henry E. Meeker, Cecil Jerome Allen, and Louis F. Bishop, M.D.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE. Edited and published by Arthur Hastings Grant, No. 41 Church St., Montclair, N. J. Terms, $1.00 per year.

This bi-monthly magazine is published as a supplement to the Genealogical History of the Descendants of Matthew Grant, of Windsor, Conn., which was compiled and published by the author of this magazine in 1898. Two numbers are already issued, February and April, which contain much additional matter of interest and importance, making it necessary for one who owns the bound volume, to obtain the magazine if he wishes to have this history complete to date. The February number is devoted almost wholly to additional facts relating to "Clan A;" the April number, to "Clan B." Both contain several additional views and portraits.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD, AND HIS SON, MAJOR WILLIAM BRADFORD. By James Shepard, New Britain, Conn., 1900. 8vo., cloth, pp. 104. Price by mail, $2.10. Address the author at New Britain, Conn.

"A valuable book for all interested in Pilgrim history, of special interest to all Bradford descendants, and believed to be the only volume ever published devoted to the life of Bradford." The narrative, which has been carefully compiled, begins with a sketch of Bradford's birthplace, continues through his early life in Holland, the emigration to America, depicts his character, his life work, and his sojourn in the Plymouth Colony. It is interestingly told, marginal reference to authorities is given without stint, and the whole is well illustrated with half-tone and line engravings. The edition is limited and the book is printed upon heavy paper, and contains a complete index of persons. It is full of interest and is of much value to the historian and the student of genealogy; for if there was one person among the Mayflower "Signers" in whose character and history we are interested, whether a lineal descendant or not, that one was Governor William Bradford.

OLD FAMILIES OF NORWICH, CONN., MDCLX TO MDCCC. Compiled by Mary E. Perkins. Genealogies, Volume I., Part 1. Quarto pamphlet. Yearly subscription, $3.00, single pamphlets, $1.00. Address Miss Mary E. Perkins, 148 Pequot Ave., Norwich, Conn.

The compiler of this valuable work, announces in her preface, that this is the first of a quarterly series of alternate genealogical and historical pamphlets, which will contain the history of houses, lands, and families of Norwich, Conn., from 1660 to 1800. The historic pamphlets will be profusely illustrated with views of houses, copies of portraits and miniatures, and many maps. She also announces that revolutionary and colonial claims will be given, and that the issue of numbers will be monthly, instead of quarterly, if the subscriptions warrant. The present number contains the genealogies of the families of Adgate, Backus, Baldwin and Bingham. The work is certainly a great undertaking, and we are pleased that it has fallen to Miss Perkins to do it, for we remember well her valuable contribution to the genealogical world in the volume entitled "Old Houses of the Antient Town of Norwich," published in 1895. We thought she had covered the ground pretty well in the 620 pages of this work, but this indefatigable historian offers us more of the same good sort, and we hope the genealogical public will give their earnest support.

A HISTORY OF THE ALLERTON FAMILY IN THE UNITED STATES, 1585 TO 1885, AND A GENEALOGY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF ISAAC ALLERTON, "MAYFLOWER PILGRIM." By Walter S. Allerton. Revised and enlarged by Horace True Currier. Published by Samuel Waters Allerton, Chicago, Ill., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 149.

This work is published for the purpose—a worthy one—of giving to the public additional facts and a few corrections to the matter set forth by Mr. Walter S. Allerton in his History of the Allerton Family published in 1888. The compilation of statistics regarding this family were begun many years ago by Mr. Mead Allerton of Wayne County, New York, at whose death the data collected fell into the hands of Mr. Walter S. Allerton, and, together with matter he had collected, was published by him as stated above. This has since been revised and corrected, and brought down to date by Mr. Currier, which completed data is now published under the above title. The arrangement of the families has been somewhat changed, the print is closer, the portraits are brought down to present generations, and though the pages are less in number the matter is greater.

CENTENNIAL HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE TOWN OF FAYETTE, SENECA COUNTY, NEW YORK. Prepared by Diedrich Willers. Geneva, N. Y., 1900. 8vo, paper cover, pp. 157.

Fayette, now a township of about 300 inhabitants, found its inception in the old town of Washington, Cayuga County, March 14, 1800, which became the town of Fayette, April 6, 1808. It is 7½ miles south-west of Waterloo, where, 100 years ago the Cayuga Indians roamed unmolested through its forests. This interesting sketch of the town grew from data collected at odd intervals, and reached its final proportions upon the earnest request of the Trustees of the Waterloo Library and Historical Society, that Mr. Willers make regular and systematic collection of historic detail regarding the town, for publication upon its centennial anniversary, March 14, 1900. Mr. Willers has succeeded admirably and his research has brought from him the pathetic wail that some one had not undertaken the work long before, while those were alive who could give the information which was never put in print or script. We hear this wail often; we wail it ourselves—often; we resolve not again to procrastinate; we are glad in the knowledge that much more is being done in this line than ever before; but there is a great labor yet ahead of us. This sketch gives besides the history of the town, items of Indian history connected with the locality, early births in the town, church history, division of the lands, the early settlers, biographical sketches of prominent citizens, lists of officers, etc.

A COLLECTION OF FAMILY RECORDS FROM BARTHOLOMEW, BOTSFORD AND WINSTON LINES OF GENEALOGY, as the compiler received her name from these families. By Mrs. J. Almeron Pond, of Bristol, Conn. Hartford, 1899. 12mo, pamphlet, pp. 60.

The writer of this little pamphlet (whose full name as derived from her ancestors is Sarah Annis Winston Pond), has treated the subject with a freshness and humor which interests without detracting from its dignity. The lines give the individual ancestry of Sarah Bartholomew, Annis Botsford and Alanson Winston, together with data relating to some allied families. Copies may be obtained of the compiler at 50 cents each.

MEMOIRS OF FREDERICK CLEVELAND; THE STORY OF HIS LIFE, SUFFERING AND PATIENT SERVICE, by his wife. Albany, N. Y., 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 266.

Here is the story of a young man who ran away from Yale College after one year's study there, roamed all over the frontier in quest of fortune, engaged his services as a clerk in a small town of Louisiana until the Conscription Act drove him to his northern home, spent the last years of his life in the service of his Maker, and died loving and loved, a patient father, a thoughtful husband, a thorough Christian. The vicissitudes of life in the fifties and sixties are always of interest; and the story as set forth in this book is intensely so.

MEMORIAL OF ROBERT STANTON WILLIAMS, 1828–1899. Privately printed, 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 58.

Robert Stanton Williams was a resident of Utica, N. Y., whose forceful character, a heritage from Puritan Ancestors, served him in his battles to make a success of life, even though the sphere of action was confined to "an inland town." The sketch under consideration is a reprint from Dr. Bagg's "Memorial History of Utica," to which have been added a few notices from local newspapers, and some "resolutions of respect and appreciation." It was a simple life well spent, in which the greatest ambition was to be known as a consistent Christian rather than "a prominent citizen."

SOURCES OF HISTORY OF REVOLUTIONARY EVENTS IN NEW JERSEY. By Wm. Nelson. Paterson, N. J., 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 12.

Mr. Nelson's busy pen is again at work. The present product gives in lists devoted to the counties of the state the titles of works which contain information upon the progress of the Revolution in New Jersey. The edition is limited to 100 copies.

GENEALOGY OF THE PARSONS-HOAR FAMILY; THE FAMILY OF LEWIS B. PARSONS, (second). St. Louis, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 109.

This pamphlet, published by the author who has "passed the grand climacteric of four-score years," and issued for private circulation among the members of the immediate family, is the result of researches begun in 1843 and continued at intervals to the present day. It gives the Parsons line of descent from the family of Cornet Joseph Parsons of Springfield, and the Hoar line, from Charles Hoar, Senior, of Gloucester, England. To these genealogical data the compiler has added recollections and tributes to his father, Lewis Baldwin Parsons, and a short treatise on Rail and River Transportation in the Civil War, by Gen. Lewis B. Parsons, who was in charge of the same.

KIMBALL FAMILY NEWS, Vol. III., No. 5, May, 1900. Issued monthly by G. F. Kimball, Topeka, Kansas. Terms, one dollar per year.

A convenient and satisfactory method of publishing a family history when a proper index accompanies each completed volume. The present number contains Record of John Kimball, page 408 of Family History, (supplemental).

THE PEASLEES AND OTHERS OF HAVERHILL AND VICINITY. By E. A. Kimball, Haverhill, Mass., 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 72. Cloth, $1.50; paper, $1.00.

A neat volume, well illustrated and fully indexed. The subject matter relates the incidents connected with the history of the early settlers and their homes in the easterly part of Haverhill, and serves as an historical sketch of the early Peaslee families of Haverhill and Salisbury, and of other early families and homes at or near Rocks Village. There is much matter of general interest to the student of history, relating to the customs that obtained in the places mentioned during colonial times.

ADDENDA. NAF-NEFF HISTORY, REGARDING THE ORIGIN AND MEANING OF THE NAME NEFF. By Elizabeth Clifford Neff. Cleveland, Ohio, 1899. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 35.

This little pamphlet by the author of The Naf-Neff History, puplished in 1888, gives additional facts regarding the origin of the name, from Rudolph Neff, of Pennsylvania, together with the Revolutionary records of Captain Rudolph Neff, Ensign Aaron Scout and Major Thomas Smith, Jr. Copies may be had of Miss Neff, who has them on sale at No. 361 Russel Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

RESIDENTS IN LITCHFIELD, CONN., 1720–1800. By George C. Woodruff. Hartford, Conn., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 267.

This is a Genealogical Register of the inhabitants of the Town of Litchfield, from the settlement of the Town in 1720 to the year 1800, collected from the reecords of the Town, probate records of wills, and compared with other records of births, marriages and deaths, for correction. It was originally compiled by Mr. George C. Woodruff, and came into the possession of Mr. George Morris Woodruff, who has generously had the matter set up in type that the public may have the benefit of the information. The arrangement is that of the encyclopædia, and the information given is both genealogical and biographical. Copies may be had of J. Wolcott Wheeler, West St., Litchfield, Conn., at $2.00 each. It is clearly printed in large type on glazed paper, and neatly bound in green cloth.

THE IPSWICH EMERSONS, A.D., 1636–1900. A genealogy of the descendants of Thomas Emerson, of Ipswich, Mass., with some account of his English ancestry. By Benjamin Kendall Emerson, assisted by Capt. Geo. A. Gordon, Secretary, New England Historic-Genealogical Society. Illustrated. Printed for private circulation. Boston. Press of David Clapp & Son, MCM. 8vo, cloth, pp. 537.

The perfection of genealogical publications. A sample of a family history which we unhesitatingly hold up to future compilers and say, "Go thou and do likewise." Excellent paper, clear type, black ink, serviceable and artistic binding, choice illustrations; comprehensive subject matter, lucid arrangement of genealogies, copious biographical data, complete index; what more can we say of this book? When such a work bears upon its title page the name of such an authority as the Secretary of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, it serves as a signal to the hyper-critical to shoulder one another in careful examination; a challenge to find therein errors and poor taste. The result in this case can be but one: a pleasant satisfaction in the knowledge that a standard has been put forth for future genealogists to follow. It is hardly necessary to say that the system of genealogical notation pursued by the compiler of this work is that known as the "Record-and-Register Plan," and that it is earnestly to be hoped that this system will soon become universally established; to the end that future compilers will not dare to fly in the face of the established order of things, that publishers of genealogies will refuse to print anything else. We cannot commend this book too highly. Some of the contents are: The Emerson Arms, with plates; the name, the Emersons in England, the English ancestry of Thomas Emerson of Ipswich, the Emersons in America, nine generations; supplement containing corrections and later matter; 58 pages of index, 18 illustrations, 28 portraits. Aside from all this is the interest which centers around the history of this illustrious family, gathered by the author of this work in a scholarly manner, presented to the public in such an attractive form.

THE ANCESTRY AND THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN PRATT, OF HARTFORD, CONN. Compiled and published by Charles B. Whittelsey, by authority of Walter W. Pratt. Hartford Press, The Case, Lockwood and Brainard Co., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 204.

Another good book, carefully compiled and neatly put together. We notice that the author has here put in practice an improvement on the Record-and-Register Plan of notation which was suggested in this magazine a short time ago; namely, the insertion of the personal number instead of the generation number where the line of ancestry is given in first names in parenthesis after the name of the subject of the paragraph. To illustrate, 315, Manoah, (Manoah,[188] Daniel,[65] Jonathan,[19] John,[5] John,[1]), wherein the succession of names indicates succeeding generations, and the use of the personal number facilitates the finding of them, while the insertion of the generation number instead is simply tautological. The foundation of this work is "The Pratt Family," by the Rev. F. W. Chapman, 1864, which is here revised, completed and brought down to date. Not that this is a revised edition of Mr. Chapman's work, it simply takes up the brother-branch where he left it off to continue the elder line. It is nicely done, printed on good paper and neatly bound. The title gives the contents; there is no attempt made to discover the origin of the name, nor is there a lengthy treatise upon the probable location of the family in England. This is a genealogy pure and simple, and must be of great value to the descendants of John Pratt.

ANCESTRAL LINE OF STEPHEN MOTT WRIGHT, FROM NICHOLAS WRIGHT, THE COLONIAL ANCESTOR. Compiled by Henry Whittemore. The Lotus Press, New York, (1899).

This is a reprint of a valuable contribution, "The Heroes of the Revolution and their Descendants," written by Mr. Henry Whittemore, with some additions and corrections, making a brief but valuable contribution to the genealogical records of an interesting family that has been active and prominent since Nicholas Wright came to Saugus, now Sales, Mass., in 1636. The work is handsomely printed and bound in flexible leather, and an engraved portrait of Mr. Wright is inserted as a frontispiece. One particularly valuable feature is a copy of an old engraving showing the engagement between the privateer "Greyhound" and two French Vessels during "King George's War," 1744-48. The surgeon of the expedition was Dr. Thomas Wright, whose descendants still possess the original engraving. WINCHESTER FITCH.

THE NEW YORK

Genealogical and Biographical Record.

VOL. XXXI. NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1900. No. 4.

NOTES OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE BOQUET VALLEY IN ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., WRITTEN BY ASA POST IN 1804.

TO EDITOR OF N. Y. GEN. AND BIOG. RECORD:

The inclosed "Notes" concerning the settlement of Boquet Valley in Elizabethtown, N. Y., are not without interest, and the printed copy is rare, and hence as valuable as manuscript. The writer Dr. Asa Post was born in 1767 at Saybrook, Ct., and died at Elizabethtown, N. Y., 1860, aged 93. He went to Vermont when he was about 25, and was then supposed to be in consumption. He remained awhile at Vergennes, but soon went to Panton where he married, Mary, daughter of Jedediah Holcombe and Mary Holcombe, daughter of Dea. Azariah Holcumbe of Granby, Ct. They went, about 1804, to Elizabethtown, N. Y., had issue; and his grandson was Almond Post who in 1854 lived on farm of his grandfather. Dr. Post had a medical licence from Connecticut. In connection with Dr. Alexander Morse, a native of Dorset, Vt., they were the principal physicians of the County of Essex.

Yours,

WM. FREDERICK HOLCOMBE, M.D.,

20 August, 1900. 78 Lexington Ave., N. Y.

MR. HENRY R. NOBLE:

Some time since, you asked me if I could give a brief history of the first settlement of the Boquet valley; if I could, you wished I would do it. I told you I thought I could; but did not think at that time, that I should ever undertake it. But lately I have thought that a brief narrative of the first settlement of this valley, would be interesting to many of the present inhabitants, and especially to the rising generation.

I have concluded to make a simple statement of facts, so far as I am able; perhaps I may err as to dates, for I have no written data, but rely wholly on memory; I was then living at Panton, but was acquainted with all the first settlers; they depended on me as a physician for seven or eight years; until Dr. Morse came to the valley.

To commence my narrative; I must premise, as an introduction, some things that took place some years prior to the settlement of the Boquet valley. A company of gentlemen, to the number of eight or ten, made a contract with the State Government to cut a road from Schroon Lake through to Plattsburgh; and to receive in payment land on the route to said road, where they saw fit to lay it out; at a low price, provided they get on a certain number of settlers in a limited time.

Capt. Platt Rogers, being one of the company, was appointed agent or rather Superintendent to look out and cut the road. (The above, was the common report.)

Digitized by Google

The road was cut through, and lots of land surveyed, for the company, some in Schroon, some in the valley, and some in the town of Lewis. I think the job was completed in 1789. After the completion of the above job, Capt. Rogers purchased a farm at Bason Harbor, where he afterwards resided.

At this time there were but three towns within the present bounds of Essex County; Ticonderoga, Crown Point and Willsboro, (then including Essex), and here and there, a few scattering settlers on the Lake-shore; there was not a house or settlement between Young's bay and Grog-harbor.

A short distance from the Lake-shore commenced a vast wilderness, extending west to Lake Ontario, and the extent north and south, I cannot tell; inhabited only by wild beasts, and occupied as hunting ground by the Indians; and that this valley was anciently their hunting ground is evident from the many stone spikes made to point their arrows, which have been found in our plains.

In the summer of the year 1791, Eliphalet Lamb and a Mr. Goszard, two small traders living in Panton, heard that the French in Canada, would exchange French horses for young cattle, head for head, they purchased a small drove between twenty and thirty head, two years old and some yearlings, and drove them into Canada, and made the exchange as they expected; on returning to Plattsburgh, they concluded to return in Roger's newly cut road; they drove on until they came to lot No. 5 in the valley, the flat now occupied by Ira Wakefield, and Edward Hendee, here they concluded from the appearance of the mountains, that they were past the place where they meant to turn out to go to Grog-harbor ferry; they left their horses on the flat, went back to the top of Raven-hill, to discover the whereabouts they were; they then went back and drove their horses through the woods to Panton.

Lamb and Goszard were greatly excited by the beautiful appearance of the valley of Boquet and reported in Panton, that they had seen the handsomest tract of land in the world; the garden of Eden could not be higher extolled than they extolled the valley of Boquet; the timber was principally butternut and sugar maple; and a sprinkling of other timber, and many large pines; the soil of the intervale was of a chocolate color, and looked good enough to eat, the soil of upland was in color a light Spanish brown, very different from its appearance at the present day; and the beautiful river with its gravel bottom, and pure water as clear as crystal and abounding with trout the most delicious pan-fish.

Six or eight men in Panton were much excited by the report of the drovers, and came over to examine for themselves; when they came to see the beautiful valley, they were satisfied with the report, that it was all true; they went immediately to Capt. Rogers and bargained for lots of land in the valley, for one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre, and agreed to get on as many settlers as they could. Captain Rogers told them the company wanted to sell their land, for they were under obligation to the State to get on a certain number of settlers by a given time. They looked out a passage, marked the trees, and cut a foot path from Noah Ferris' bay, (now Cole's bay), across the hills, and by Little Pond to lot No. 8, in the valley, now owned by Horatio Deming, a distance of ten miles, all a wilderness.

Early in March, 1792, two or three families moved into the valley; men and women walked on snow-shoes, the snow being three feet deep on the high land; one woman more resolute than common, it was said, carried sixty weight on her back, the ten miles, and walked on snow-shoes.

They built little sheds to live in while they made maple sugar; as the spring opened more settlers came on, and the next year a number of families came from other places. The first settlers, especially the first year, suffered much hardship from their destitude circumstances; they had to bring their provisions from Panton principally, and most of them on their backs; I think there was but one horse in the valley the first summer; Noah Ferris had a canoe, nearly as large as a whale-boat, commonly called Noah's Ark, in which he ferried people across the Lake with their provision, &c. In the course of the summer (1792), Benjamin Holcombe, Esq., purchased a steel mill, in the form of a coffee mill, but much larger, by which they ground their grain, for one or two years, (but it made very coarse bread), until E. Bishop got his gristmill ready to run. We will now look at their habitations; they are made of logs, some of them hewed down a little inside, the spaces between chinked in with ground moss, the roof made of spruce bark, so laid as to shed rain, the floors were basswood split plank, their chairs were basswood plank with three or four legs, the tables were of the same material with longer legs. But the people appeared cheerful and happy under their trials and hardships; the prospect ahead, the anticipated prosperity, was a source of encouragement to persevere in industry and frugality; all their crops looked promising, success seemed to follow their efforts, and they expected a competent living in a short future. I think it was in fall of 1792 the inhabitants mustered strength enough to cut out a sled path from what is now called Fisher bridge to Northwest Bay, so they could now pass with loaded teams each way; their teaming business was all done with sleds and sleighs; for there was not a wheel carriage in the valley for two or three years.

After they had cut out a road to Northwest bay, and the Ice on the Lake became sound, they brought in by sleighing the house furniture they had left in Panton, such as chairs, tables, chests, &c. In the course of that winter and spring, a large number of families moved into the valley, so that most of the lots were taken up.

Elijah Bishop, a mechanic of all trades, moved into the valley in the spring of 1793; he built a saw-mill first and then a grist-mill, which were a great accommodation to the inhabitants; they could now obtain boards and plank for their floors, and other uses; and have good flour, by having their grain ground fine and bolted, and making a material change in the article of bread.

I will now endeavor to tell the names of the first settlers on each lot; beginning at the south end of the valley: Jedediah Holcomb* settled on the south hundred acres of lot No. 2, now owned by Reuben Nichols. (These are 200 acre lots up to No. 8) Jonah Hanchet took up the north 100, now owned by Randal Reed. Walter Buck took the south fifty acres of lot No. 3, now owned by Luke Rice. Mr. Buck took the next 50 acres. Sampson Smith took the north 100, now owned by Stewart Smith. Heman Finney took the north 100 acres of lot No. 4, now owned by John Saunders, Jr., and Joel Finney took the south 100, now owned by John Saunders, Jr. Benjamin Holcomb, Esq., took lots No. 5 and 6 and gave up the north half of No. 5 to Elijah Bishop to build mills on the falls, where the mills and forge now stand. The land now owned by Lucius Bishop. The forge and mills now owned by Putnam & Co.

The south half of No. 5 now owned principally by Edward Hendee. The remainder of No. 6 owned by Ira Wakefield excepting the south 50 acres sold to John Saunders, Sr. Wareham Barber took the south 100 acres of No. 7, the same which I have since occupied. Almond Holcomb took the next 50 acres now owned by Jonathan Post. Nathan Lewis took the north 50 acres of No. 7 and the whole of lot No. 8, now owned by Horatio Deming. Then comes three 300 acre lots No. 5, 6 and 7, Hesekiah Phelps took the south 100 of No. 5, now owned by William Deming; Ira Phelps took the next 50 acres, now owned by Jacob Deyoe. William Kellogg took the north 150 acres, now owned by Jonathan and Dana Wakefield. Gardner Simonds took the south 100 acres of lot No. 6, now owned by William E. Marshall. Joseph Durand took the middle 100 acres, now owned by Erastus and J. Lobdell.

Reuben Peck took the north 100 acres, now owned by Alfred Ames. Noah Davis took the south 100 acres of lot No. 7, and Isaac Knapp the middle 100, both belong now to Levi D. Brown. The north 100 acres now owned by Oliver Abel. Then comes 200 acre lots again. Sylvanus Lobdell took the south 100 acres of lot No. 9, now owned by Mrs. Abel. Peter Fish took the north 100 acres of No. 9, now owned by Oliver Abel. Lot No. 10 lies principally east of the river unsettled, but occupied by neighboring farmers. Capt. Rogers wanted the Gristmill and possessions of Noah Ferris at Cole's Bay; he gave Ferris two lots No. 11 and 12 in the valley, containing 400 acres of land, for his possessions at Cole's bay. Lot No. 13 was taken by Jonas Gibbs, and his sons; now owned I believe principally by Judge Hand. After Noah Ferris had obtained a deed of the 400 acres of land, he moved into the valley, and built a log house near the west line of lot No. 11; and was said, or thought to be the most forehanded man in the valley, owning 400 acres of land, and free from debt; he lived here but a few years, for his land went from him, piece after piece, and piece after piece, from under his hand and seal;

* Jedediah Holcombe died in the Revolutionary War, his wife was Mary, daughter of Dea. Azariah Holcombe and Hannah Loomis of Granby, Ct.

Digitized by Google

until he had not a foot of land left, of the 400 acres, to stand on; he then went and settled down on land belonging to the State, lying directly east, and adjoining lot No. 11, where he lived a few years, and where he died.

Here are three 200 acre lots abreast, running east and west; the middle lot No. 12 contains nearly the whole ground, on which the entire village now stands, both on the plain, and on the branch, with all the public buildings. The above account shows how liable we are to a change of circumstances.

I think proper to state here a distressing calamity which took place in the early settlement of the valley; after Mr. Peck had been in the valley about two years, he had the misfortune to have his house, and every thing he had in it, burnt up; and yet more distressing was the calamity, two of his children burnt to death in it. The circumstances as I understood were these; they were about going to a neighbor's on an evening visit, they had three children, a little girl about nine years old and two boys younger; they put the children to bed, thought they would be safer than to be up; and went away to make their evening visit; some time the latter part of the evening the little girl waked up, and saw the house was in flames all around them, she hurried the boys into the street, thinking they were then safe, but the boys, supposed not to be sufficiently awake, ran back into the house, and were immediately surrounded by the flames and fell to the floor, she dare not go in to rescue them. At the funeral of the burnt children, Benjamin Holcomb, Esq., a man of generous spirit, and some influence, proposed that the whole neighborhood turn out and help Mr. Peck build a house, they all said amen; and went to work, and within a week Mr. Peck had a comfortable little framed house to move into; and their friends, connections and a generous public, contributed to their necessaries and conveniences, for housekeeping again. It is a common remark, that the inhabitants of a new settlement are very friendly to each other.

I will relate a little of the industry of the first settlers; for three or four years they made a good deal of maple sugar. Nathan Lewis told me, he made between seventeen and eighteen hundred weight one season, and made a large payment for his land with it, to Capt. Rogers; who took all kinds of produce of the settlers in payment for land. They raised good crops of Rye, Oats, Indian Corn, Potatoes, &c. But wheat did not do so well, where there was spruce turf, it would grow about two feet high, and begin to head out and then dry up. On newly cleared land they raised sometimes a good crop of Corn, that did not cost in labor over one shilling a bushel.

Thus, I have given in a plain and simple manner a brief and true Narrative of the first discovery and settlement, of the valley of Boquet.

THE "KING" FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

COMPILED BY GEORGE AUSTIN MORRISON, JR.

2. John King (Ralph[1]), born 1597, died 16 September, 1679. He was Vicar of Abbots Langley, a small parish about four miles from Watford, and the eldest son of worthy Ralph King of Watford. He compounded for the living on 16 November, 1626, and it is fair to assume that he graduated from Oxford or Cambridge about 1620. In the First Fruits Composition Book, the sureties on his bond at compounding were Ralph* Kinge of St. Mildreds, Bread Street, London, grocer, and Richard Spencer† of St. Margarets, Friday Street, haberdasher. It may be assumed that Ralphe Kinge, grocer, was related in some degree.

John King married Elizabeth Hicks (or Hith) at Watford, 6 Feb., 1624. He and his wife are buried in Abbots Langley Church and the following inscription is on the stone.

"The bodies of the Rev. John King, Minister of the Parish near 53 years, who departed this life the 16th of September, aged eighty-nine years and of Elizabeth his wife who departed this life the 22d of May, 1672, aged sixty-six years." The names of following children of Rev. John King appear on the church register at Abbots Langly, all of whom died young:

i. John. ii. Elizabeth.
iii. Elizabeth.

13. Samuel King (Ralph[1]) of London, died 1651. He was of the parish of Christ Church and died between 17 Dec., 1651, and 21 Jan'y, 1652. He married twice, his second wife being Mary, daughter of John Wilmer and sister of Nathaniel Wilmer. In his will he mentions sons Ralph and Samuel, and daughters Elizabeth and Mary King; also a brother Isaac Kinge and Andrew Neale. Also a kinsman Richard Elborne. Mentions messuage and tenements in Watford and lands at Nowell, Bedfordshire. His children were as follows. By his first wife who died and was buried at Watford on 24 July, 1646, he had:

i. Ralphe, baptised 1637, Dec. 14, at Watford.

* This Ralph King was, I believe, a son of Nicholas King of Kings Langley, a hamlet near Watford, and a brother of Francis King of Watford.

† In the Administration's Acts Book for 1638 (P. C. C.), is found an administration granted on 14 Feb., 1638-39, to one John Gearinge, principal creditor of Ralph Kinge of St. Mildreds, Bread Street, London, deceased. On the margin of the page is written, "Error! The parish should be St. Bridgets near Fleet Street."

It must be noted that in the will of one Andrew Kynge of Great Chesham, Bucks., Gent., dated 20 Jan'y, 1616, proved 26 Nov., 1617, mention is made of a wife Anne; sons Samuel, Peregrine, Nathaniel and Jacob Kynge; daughters Godsgrace Grover, and her son Andrew Grover: and John Gearinge of London, grocer, and Richard Spencer of London, haberdasher.

There can be little doubt but that this Andrew Kynge was of kin to Ralph Kinge the grocer of London, and to Rev. John King, son of Ralph Kinge of Watford, but as yet the line of relationship remains undisclosed.

ii. Samuel, baptised 1639, Jan. 31, at Watford.
iii. Hannah, baptised 1640, Feb. 11, at Watford, died young.

BY SECOND WIFE:

7. iv. Mary.
v. Elizabeth.

4. Isaac King (Ralph[1]); nothing has been gathered about him except that his children as mentioned in his father's will were:
Joseph.
Martha.

5. Daniel King (Ralph[1]) of Salem, and Lynn, Mass., was born about 1602. His name appears in Salem Court Records as early as 1644, and as his wife's name appears therein in 1642, it is probable that he was in New England as early as 1640. He married Elizabeth Guy of Chepping Wicombe, and died 27 May, 1672. His wife died 26 Feb., 1677–78. There is ground to believe that he owned land at Beaconfield, Co. Bucks., England, as his son Daniel speaks of himself in 1653 as of said place. The children of Daniel* and Elizabeth (Guy) King were as follows:
i. Daniel, born about 1636.
ii. Hannah, who married John Blaney of Lynn, Mass., on 11 July, 1660.
iii. Ralph, born about 1639.
iv. Elizabeth, who married Thaddeus Redding.
v. Sarah, who married Ezekiel Needham, son of Edward Needham on 27 Oct., 1669.

6. Clement King (Ralph[1]), born about 1615, and died before 1653. He married 8 Oct., 1639, Mary Raynor of St. Sepulchres, widow, aged 29, at St. Faiths. He was of St. Giles parish, Cripplegate, London, and is called citizen and dyer, bachelor, aged 24. If he had children their names are unknown. It is possible that he had a son Clement, who might have emigrated to New England, and may be identical with that Clement King of Marshfield, who removed to Providence, R. I., in 1688, and became the ancestor of the Rhode Island Kings. The name is an uncommon one and it is hoped that further research among the London registers will disclose more concerning him.

7. Mary Kinge (Samuel,[2] Ralph[1]) of Abbots Langley, Herts, spinster, left a will dated 29 June, 1683, the provisions of which are as follows: to be buried in the church of Abbots Langley; To my cousin Joseph Kinge, son of my uncle Isaac Kinge, deceased, that messuage (copyhold) called Rathway in Tring and Wigginton. Mentions Martha Kinge, sister of Joseph Kinge; a brother Henry Proctor. Cousins Edward Pierce and Anne Pierce, son and daughter of cousin Edward Pierce, the elder, minister. Cousin Greenhill†, widow of my cousin William Greenhill, the elder, Esquire: Cousin Thomas Greenhill and his wife.

* Daniel Kinge of Lynn, and his descendants have been admirably traced out by Mr. Rufus King of Yonkers, N. Y., the greatest authority on "King" data in this country, and to whom the compiler owes a heavy debt of thanks for kind offices rendered.

† Doubtless the Greenhills of Greenhill, Middlesex. A curious fact is stated concerning this family in the Stow Mss. (British Museum Add. Mss.), vol. 9, p. 70: "Thomas Greenhill, calling himself 30th child and 7th son of William Greenhill in Middlesex, by his only wife Elizabeth, daughter of William Dwight of London, was allowed (inter alios) to have the paternal crest (a demi-griphon) powdered with 39 mullets, or, 1 September, 1698."

Mentions cousin Ralph Neale and his wife; cousin Sarah Neale, daughter of cousin Samuel Neale; cousin John Holding and his wife; cousin Martin Perryor (Pryor) and his wife; cousins Daniel Richardson and Patrick Richardson; cousin Halsey and his wife; cousin Anne Pierce; cousin John and Mary Holding, children of said cousin John Holding. Names cousin Joseph King as executor.

The many relationships set out in this will should afford some clue, but as yet it has been sought in vain.

THE NICHOLAS KING FAMILY OF KINGS LANGLEY, HERTS.

1. Nicholas Kynge, yeoman of Kings Langley, a small village about eight miles from Watford, died about 1600 leaving a will dated 19 December, 1599, proved 10 May, 1601. In said will he mentions a wife Dennys, and names his son Nicholas executor; gives to son James "one-half of the mill I hold by lease from the Queen, he paying one-half of the rent;" to son Raffe £40 in three years; to son Henry £40 in seven years; to son Tymothy £40 at twenty-one years of age; to daughters Sara and Elizabeth King £20 each at the day of their marriage, or when they attain twenty-one years of age; mentions a son-in-law Nicholas Carter. The sum of his inventory was £238 11*s.* 2*d.*

I believe that this Nicholas King was an uncle of Ralph King of Watford, draper, and base my opinion upon a careful examination of the several King wills following.

He was probably a son of one John King. The children of Nicholas and Dennys (or Dionice) King were:

i. Nicholas.
2. ii. *John.
3. iii. James.
4. iv. Ralph.
v. *Henry.
5. vi. *Francis.
vii. Timothy.
6. viii. *Robert.
ix. Sara†.
x. Elizabeth†.
xi. A daughter, who married Nicholas Carter.

2. John King (Nicholas[1]) of Aldenham, near Watford, called "John Kynge the elder" of Radlett, left a will dated 1 Sept., 1616, proved 9 Sept., 1616, in which he mentions a wife Agnes; sons Nicholas, John, Edward, Thomas; daughters Joane, Grace, and Elizabeth.

These children are grouped as follows:

i. Nicholas.
ii. John.
v. Joane.
vi. Grace.

---

* It will be noted that I have given Nicholas King four sons not mentioned in his will. The reason for this is as follows: James King (Nicholas) in his will mentions brothers Nicholas and JOHN. The will of Thomas Bigg (1623) of Kings Langley, mentions his "brother-in-laws Francis King of Watford, mercer, and John King of Kings Langley, yeoman." The will of Robert Kinge of Kings Langley (1627), yeoman, mentions brother Ralphe King. The will of John Besowth (1641) who was father-in-law to Francis (Nicholas) King of Watford, mentions Henry Kinge of Hemelhempstead, near Watford. I have accordingly placed John, Francis, and Robert all as sons of Nicholas Kinge although not mentioned in their father's will. This sometimes occurs when the sons receive their portion of their inheritance during the father's lifetime. The matter is obscure however, and it is to be hoped that further research may clear up the problem.

† One of these married Thomas Bigg of Watford, yeoman, for in his will Oct., 1623, he speaks of brother-in-laws Francis Kinge of Watford, mercer, and John Kinge of Kings Langley, yeoman.

iii. Edward.
iv. *Thomas.
vii. Elizabeth.

3. James Kynge (Nicholas[1]) of Kings Langley, died in February, 1615–16, leaving a will in which he mentions sons James, John, Timothy, and Nicholas; also mentions his brothers Nicholas and John Kynge. His children may thus be grouped:

i. Nicholas.
ii. James.
iii. John.
iv. Timothy.

4. Ralph Kynge (Nicholas[1]) of St. Mildred's, Bread Street, London, grocer, died before February, 1638–9, and administration was granted to John Gearinge, his principal creditor, of his estate on 14 Feb., 1638–39. This might indicate that he never had married or left issue, but further search of the London registers must be made to confirm this.

Henry Kynge (Nicholas[1]) was of Hemelhempstead, near Watford.

5. Francis Kynge (Nicholas[1]) of Watford, mercer, died and left a will dated 25 March, 1630, proved 9 April, 1630, in which he mentions a wife Mary, with child; sons Zachary, Francis, John, and Jeremy; father-in-law John Besouth; a daughter, the wife of John Edlyn; a brother Ralphe Kinge of London (undoubtedly "the grocer"); a cousin Ralphe Kinge, whom he appoints one of his overseers (probably worthy Ralphe Kinge, draper of Watford); speaks of a messuage called the Viance at Cobham, Kent Co. His father-in-law John Besoweth (sic.) of Aguells in the parish of Hemelhempstead, Herts., yeoman, left a will dated 17 June, 1641, proved 11 March, 1642, in which he mentions his daughter Mary Kinge, alias Prince, and grandchildren John Kinge, alias Prince, Jeremy Kinge, alias Prince, Josias Kinge, alias Prince, Nicholas Kinge, alias Prince; Francis Kinge and Mary Kinge. Mention is also made of Henry Kinge of Hemelhempstead, mercer, and he speaks of a messuage at Wickham† (Wicombe), Bucks. What the words "alias Prince" mean in this will is a puzzle. Could it be that Francis Kynge, mercer, was at one time called Prince. It is curious that the names Kynge and Prince each suggest ancestry of some dignity, if not royalty, and the lion which constantly appears in the King family arms as "king of beasts," has generally been granted in heraldry to persons of importance and authority. It must be noted that Francis Kynge does not mention his son Nicholas in his will, although his father-in-law, John Besouth speaks of him as a grandchild. There is some strange reason why Nicholas King, the father of Francis,

* There was a Thomas Kinge of Kings Langley, yeoman, who left a will dated 6 Nov., 1624, proved 10 Dec., 1624, in which he mentions a wife Joane; a son Charles; a sister's daughter Elizabeth Grinell; and money now in the hands of George Deacon. He is without doubt nearly related to the Kings Langley "Kings," but how, I have been unable to determine.

† A John Kinge of Chipping Wickham, draper, left a will dated 6 Nov., 1653, proved 29 May, 1654, in which he mentions a wife Sarah; son John, and daughters Dorothy and Mary, all minors; a brother Nicholas Kinge, and Lewis Gibbs. His widow re-married, and as Sarah Fisher of Chepping Wicombe (sic.), widow, left a will dated 22 Nov., 1660, proved 3 Jan., 1660–61, in which she mentions a son John Kinge; a daughter Dorothy Kinge; brothers-in-law Nicholas Kinge and John Turner of Hempstead (Hemelhempstead), and Thomas Turner; sisters Ruth Harding, Elizabeth Taylor, and Jane Gibbs. As yet I cannot place this John Kinge, but he may be a son of John (Nicholas). The wife of Daniel[2] King (Ralph[1]) of Lynn, Mass., Elizabeth Guy, came from Wicombe, and the Guy family are all of that place.

omitted to mention this son Francis in his will, and Francis, the son in turn omitted to mention in his will his son Nicholas (doubtless named after his father). Was there a family quarrel?

On 21 May, Anno 16 Reg. James I., the estate called Bushey was conveyed to Ellis Wynne and Francis Kinge.

The children of Francis and Mary (Besouth) Kinge were:

i. Nicholas.
7. ii. Francis.
8. iii. Zachary.
iv. John.
9. v. Jeremy.
vi. Josias.
vii. Mary.
viii. A daughter, who married John Edlyn.

6. Robert Kynge (Nicholas[1]) of Kings Langley, yeoman, died about Sept., 1627, leaving a will dated 7 Aug., 1627, proved Oct., 1627, in which he mentions a wife Alice; a brother Ralphe Kinge, the latter to be overseer and to have for his pains two bushels of wheat. His children were:

i. Martha, born about 1599, married 13 June, 1621, Richard Tayler of Christ Church, chandler, bachelor, about 25, son of Richard Tayler of Edgeworth, Middlesex, yeoman. The consent of Robert Kinge of Langley, Herts., father of bride, yeoman, was attested to by William Woodehouse of Christ Church, grocer. The marriage took place at Bridewell Chapel.

7. Francis Kinge (Francis,[2] Nicholas[1]) of the Manor of Aignell, Cashoe, Herts., married Sarah, daughter of ——— Cotton of Turnors Hall, in the parish of Harding, Gent. His issue were:

i. Francis, who married Anne, daughter of William Cotton of Lincolns Inn.
ii. Thomas, who married Sarah, widow of Charles Day, in the town of Cambridge.
iii. John.
iv., v., vi. Three daughters, names unknown.

8. Zachary Kinge (Francis,[2] Nicholas[1]) of Watford, Herts, was a draper, and born 1604. He married on 18 Aug., 1631, as a bachelor, aged 27, one Helen Hall of Bovingdon, aged 21, daughter of Alice Hall of the same place, widow, at St. Magnus. The following children appear upon the Watford register:

i. Zachary, baptized 25 April, 1638; died and buried 21 Dec., 1638.
ii. Zachary, baptized 14 May, 1639; died and buried 19 July, 1639.
iii. Elizabeth, baptized 17 June, 1640; died and buried 4 Dec., 1649.
iv. Hannah, baptized 1 Aug., 1641.
v. Francis, baptized 13 Aug., 1642.
vi. Elizabeth, baptized 19 April, 1644.
vii. Ruth, baptized 3 May, 1645.
viii. Thomas, baptized 18 June, 1646.
ix. Ann, baptized 1 Dec., 1648.
x. Jeremiah, baptized 10 Nov., 1652.

9. Jeremy Kinge (Francis,[2] Nicholas[1]) of Watford, Herts. He married Sarah ———, and had issue:

THE ANDREW KING FAMILY OF WRAYSBURY, BUCKS.

There seems to be a strong probability that this family was related to the "Kings" of Iver, Bucks, for the will of William Kinge of Harmondsworth, Middlesex, Gent., and also of Iver, Bucks (1652), mentions "Cousin Andrew Kinge* of Wyrardisburg." It must also be kept in mind that there was an Andrew King of Great Chesham, Bucks, Gent., who left a will dated 20 Jan., 1616, proved 26 Nov., 1617, in which he mentions wife Anne; sons Samuel, Peregrine, Nathaniel and Jacob Kynge (sic.); daughters Godsgrace Grover, and her son Andrew Grover. He further mentions John Gearinge of London, grocer, and Richard Spencer of London, haberdasher, two worthies who figured in the records of Ralph Kinge (Nicholas) of London, grocer, and Rev. John Kinge (Ralph Kinge of Watford, draper) of Abbots Langley. The little known about these Wyrardisburg Kings is contained in Gyll's History of Wraysbury, and the Herald's Visitation, and is as follows:

1. i. Ambrose Kinge from Salop or Wales, had a son:
2. i. Andrew.

2. Andrew Kinge (Ambrose[1]). called Gent., was a merchant tailor of London. On 22 Feb., 1641–42, he acquired the Manor of Wyrardisburg, Stoke Hundred, Co. Bucks, and was called Lord of the Manor. He died about June, 1659, and administration was granted on his estate July, 1659. His children were:

3. i. Sir Andrew.
4. ii. Nathaniel.
iii. A daughter, who married Thomas Sharowe of Wyrardisburg, a son of John Sharowe, citizen and merchant tailor, who was formerly Lord of the Manor. He died and left a will proved 4 March, 1648, but left no issue.

3. Sir Andrew Kinge (Andrew,[2] Ambrose[1]) married in 1636. Knighted 9 June, 1660, and died without issue him surviving, leaving a will proved 21 May, 1679, in which he puts his estate in trust to William Oakley of Salop, his cousin Thomas Powney, John Needham†, and Thomas Edwards, Gent., of London, for sale for the benefit of his nephew Nathaniel Kinge. In 1659 he was a tenant of Ankerwycke House at Wraysbury.

He married Mary, widow of John Sharowe (Lord of Manor and father of that Thomas Sharowe who married the daughter of Andrew Kinge). She was a daughter of James Parker. He had issue:

i. A son, born at Wraysbury, 17 Aug., 1641, but died soon afterwards.

* The will of one John Kinge of Wyrardisburg, Bucks, husbandsman, dated 30 April, 1617, proved 30 Sept., 1617, mentions wife Christian (a puritanical name); son Andrew under 14 years; daughters Mary and Alice. Names William Child and Rafe King to be overseers.

† It is to be noted that Sarah Kinge, a daughter of Daniel (Ralph) King of Lynn, Mass., married one Ezekiel Needham on 27 Oct., 1659, in New England, and in her husband's will the fact is set out that he had two brothers living in England.

4. Nathaniel Kinge (Andrew,[3] Ambrose[2]) of Pentrynant, Co. Mont, left a will proved 15 May, 1672, in which he mentions a wife Alice and the following children:

i. Andrew.
ii. Nathaniel, heir to his uncle Sir Andrew Kinge.
iii. Mary.
iv. Martha.

By James W. T. Scott, Philadelphia.

Kings County Baxters.

210. John Baxter was an American soldier in the Revolution. He married Dorcas Whitlock, born Danbury, Ct., June 4, 1766; died Friendship, N. Y., April 25, 1839. Their children were:

219. i. Sarah, born Oct. 28, 1787; died Portland, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., September, 1838. She married first, Abijah Heddin, who died a soldier at Sackett's Harbor in 1814; and second, Daniel Taber.
220. ii. Dorcas, Mrs. David Kinne, born April 22, 1789; died Weedsport, N. Y., in 1841.

203. Thomas Baxter, Aug. 7, 1765, married Hannah Barnum; born Danbury, Ct., March 10, 1743. Their children all born in North Salem, Westchester County, N. Y., were:

231. i. Hannah, born July 6, 1766.
232. ii. Thomas, born Dec. 24, 1767.
233. iii. Abigail, born November 22. 1769.
234. iv. Martha, born December 21, 1771.
235. v. Rebecca, born October 10, 1774.
236. vi. Betsey, born October 28, 1776; died March 2, 1814; unmarried.
237. vii. Samuel Barnum, born Augusl 16, 1779; died May 1, 1845.
238. viii. Ezra, born February 6, 1782.
239. ix. Esther, born October 23, 1784.

232. Thomas Baxter, had:

240. i. Stebbins, of Reading, Ct.

In recent years Mr. Butler, undertaker, has made the following interments in Westchester, N. Y.: March 29th, 1854, Frederick Baxter, age sixty-eight; April 14th, 1868, George Baxter, age seventy-four; August, 1873, Stephen Baxter, age sixty-three; March 16th, 1875, Hannah Baxter, age ninety years and ten months, and 1897, Mervin R. Baxter, age seventy-four.

Some Rhode Island Baxters.

In 1663 Captain George Baxter brought the new charter from England and was voted £25 for his services. In 1735 Thomas Baxter of Newport, and in 1760 Robert Baxter of Scituate, at Newport, were admitted as freemen. The census of 1774 names a Thomas in Scituate, a William in Johnston and a William in Newport.

Some time ago there was an inquiry in the Genealogical Record as to what became of Thomas Baxter the pirate. The compiler of the Baxter Memorial on page 33 says, it is thought he settled finally at Yarmouth, or Barnstable, Mass. April 6th, 1654, a fine was imposed upon Thomas Baxter the rover, of Rhode Island, by Connecticut. Perhaps his wife was Temperance Gorham mentioned in the "Wast Book."

Bucks County, Pa., Baxters.

In has been stated that one Baxter family settled in Bucks County, Pa., and took up land from Penn. The name is not in the list of inhabitants of 1687 but in 1737. Hugh Baxter of Nockamixon Township was an owner of real estate. His will made September 13, probated December 15, 1757, made his wife Elizabeth executrix and brother Thomas executor. It names daughters Hannah, Elizabeth and Mary, two sons, not of age, John and Thomas, and his mother Elizabeth Baxter.

James Baxter of Plumstead Township, sailed from Philadelphia in a privateer which was never heard from. In September, 1760, his wife Martha, called widow in the petition, asked Bucks County Orphan's Court for directions concerning his property. There was only one child, an infant.

Martha Baxter, spinster, of Plumstead Township, August 8, 1769, for £84 lawful money of Pennsylvania, mortgaged real estate, and paid the indebtedness February 2, 1776.

In 1772 William Baxter, silversmith, bought twenty and three-quarters acres in Warwick. In 1775 he and Daniel Baxter of Tinicum signed association. Lieutenant-Colonel Baxter sent part of a military company to Newtown, Bucks County, to disperse "Toreys" who attempted to hold an election, October 1, 1776. The expenses of this expedition, £6, s. 0, d. 4, were paid Captain Thomas Weir, October 29th, by the Pennsylvania Committee of Safety. October 23d William Baxter was commissioned Colonel of the Flying Camp of Bucks and Northampton Counties, and as such was killed by a Brittish officer in the Battle of Fort Washington, Saturday, November 16, 1776. His unlettered tombstone was shown the writer in 1894, near the lookout in Fort George, One hundred and ninety-second street and Tenth avenue, New York.

The Sons and Daughters of the Revolution could perform a worthy act if they would, by removing his remains to a more suitable resting place, as they are now in a beer garden.

At many sessions of the Orphan's Court his widow was an applicant for pension money, and finally Pennsylvania granted her a half-pay pension of £84, s. 7, d. 6 a year.

In 1779, letters of administration were taken out by the relict and Robert Robinson of Bedminster and Garvin McGrady of Warwick, penalty fixed at £1000 (?) The appraisement of personal property amounted to £33, s. 10, d. 7.

Paper endorsed "Inventory of the Estate of Col. Wm. Baxter, filed Oct. 12, 1779"

In Bucks County Orphans' Court, June 13, 1785, Jane, Robert and Sarah, children of William Baxter, deceased, having arrived at the age of fourteen, petitioned for permission to choose a guardian and that the court should appoint one for Mary, Daniel, William and John.

Elizabeth Baxter, femme sole, of Abingdon, Montgomery County, (adjoining Bucks) sold the Warwick Township land in 1794 for £130 United States money.

December 20, 1781, letters of administration for the estate of John Baxter were granted. Penalty £20.

August 18, 1787, widow Martha Baxter of Plumstead, made a will probated February 22, 1788, mentioning daughters Ann Howard, Mary Fetherby, Mary Comble and Martha, "son" John Cook, grand-daughter Mary Dunn, and grand-son William Cook. The latter was to have a bible bought for him at a cost not exceeding ten shillings.

The name of Robert Baxter is found in real estate transactions in 1791 and 1813.

This surname appears to have died out in Bucks County. There has been no entries of it in the records for a great many years.

A William Baxter, ensign in the Continental Line, Sixth Pennsylvania, became supernumerary June 21, 1778, and was paid $240 for actual service. Edmund, Thomas, Alexander and James, were privates in the Continental army; the last drew two hundred acres of "donation lands."

At Christ Church, Philadelphia, William, son of William and Catherine Baxter, born March 22d, was baptized October 9, 1726; and the following persons were licensed to marry at dates mentioned. Their nuptials were solemnized by Presbyterian, Lutheran and Episcopal clergymen.

1729, Martha Baxter and Henry Gay.
1760, James Baxter and Ann Brown.
1762, Nancy Baxter and Richard James.
1770, John Baxter and Eleanor Tape.
1788, Joseph Baxter and Mary Wharton.

Baxters of Fulton County, Ohio.

This family is descended from Daniel Baxter, a weaver, who came from Ireland when twenty-five years old, married in New Jersey a Miss Cook (it is thought), lived in Greene County, Pa., in 1778–80 and died there in 1808, having had eight children: Esther, Pacey, Nancy, Rebecca, Daniel, Samuel, John and James W. The last named born in Greene County, Pa., in 1808, died in Fulton County, Ohio, in 1855, and was father of Samuel B. Baxter, now of Fayette, Ohio.

In April, 1664, John Baxter had head rights in Lower Norfolk, Virginia. From 1744 to 1770, William Baxter, from Virginia, managed the iron work at Principio and North East, Maryland, for an English company. His daughter Elizabeth married Thomas Jones of Baltimore, and had two daughters, Mrs. Major Beall and Mrs. Josiah Dollam. One descendant, Mr. J. F. Blandy, resided in Prescott, Arizona, in 1894.

John Baxter of Baltimore town, May 2d, 1776, resigned a lieutenancy in the fourth company of regulars levied for the defence of the province of Maryland, telling the Committee of Safety he had obtained a position where he would be of more service to the American cause and could make more money.

The thanks of the compiler are due the many ladies and gentlemen who have furnished genealogies and Baxter items, especially to Misses Frances Baxter, Kane, Pa., Mattie J. Baxter, Newburg, N. Y., and Helen W. Reynolds, Poughkeepsie, and Messrs. John B. Koetteritz, Little Falls, and R. T. Baxter, Fishkill, N. Y.

THE COREY FAMILY OF SOUTHAMPTON, AND SOUTHOLD, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

WRITTEN ALSO CORE, CORY, CORRY, CORRIE, ETC.

BY LUCY D. AKERLY, OF NEWBURGH, N. Y.

THE Corey family are stated to have been of Pict or Scandanavian origin, deriving their name from "Cori," a Roman fort at Annandale, in the Shire of Dumfries, Scotland.

We also find Karre in Holingshed's copy of the Roll of Battel Abbey, in the reign of William the Conqueror, of England.*

This indicates that the family is an ancient one, whatever its origin.

The word corrie, or correi, is Gaelic, meaning a bowl-shaped hollow on a hill side, in which game usually lies.

Mr. E. F. Corey, a decendant of William Corey, of Portsmouth, R. I., has concluded after years of research, "That all the Coreys in America sprang from the same source, probably not from one man, but from several brothers, or relatives, who reached this country at, or near Boston, from which place they, or their descendants, migrated through Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, crossing from the latter state to Long Island."

The surname Corrie, Corry and Cory, with mention of its heraldic insignia, is found in Burke's Peerage, his Landed Gentry and Commoners, as well as in his Encyclopedia of Heraldry.

The accompanying illustration is the coat-armor granted to the Corey family of London in 1612. "Sable, on a chevron between three griffin's heads erased or, as many estoiles gules. Crest—out of a ducal coronet a griffin's head between two wings or, each wing charged with three estoiles in pale, gules." The same arms were borne by the Coreys of Braemerton, Norfolk County, England. The original of this illustration is an old print once owned by Mr. Corrie, of Sag Harbor, L. I., who brought a pitcher from London in 1799 engraved with the family arms.

As John Corey of Long Island is said to have been a Quaker, it is unlikely that he used coat-armor, even if entitled to it.

1. JOHN COREY, of Southampton and Southold, N. Y., is first mentioned at Southampton on the 7 March, 1644, as a Whale Commissioner for his district. He received a grant of land the following day.†

It is uncertain in what part of the British Isles his immediate forefathers dwelt, nor is there, apparently any proof of the tradition that he was a son of Giles Corey, who was at Salem, Mass., in 1649, when he, Giles, was put to death for witchcraft in September, 1692, being then nearly 77 years of age.*

From a deed dated the 11 Oct., 1660, (Southold Town Record, I., 195), it would seem that John Jr.; one of the sons of the first John Corey, was then of age, and so born as early as 1639. Assuming that John, the father, was at least from 22 to 25 years older than his son, we find that John Corey, Sr., and Giles Corey were very nearly the same age.

On the 8 Oct., 1649, John Corey was a resident of the Town of Southold, as he and Ann Corey witness a deed there on that date.

In 1659 he refused to take the oath of allegiance at New Haven, but did so in May, 1660. "Goodman" Corey was made Freeman of Connecticut, in 1662.†

John Corey owned at different times several home lots in Southold Town. Moore's Indexes state that he was objected to by some of his neighbors as a Quaker, which might account for his frequent change of residence. William Salmon gave him land at Hashamomack "for his neighborhood," where he lived for a time deserting the same after Salmon's death, but returning to Hashamomack where he died after the 6 July, 1680. It is an error to suppose that he died as late as 1697, as his estate was inventoried on the 7 Mch., 1686, it amounted to £43-3-6. His will names sons John, Jacob, Abram, Isaac, and das. Sarah, Hannah and Abigail. (Sessions Book).

He m. Ann ———, possibly about 1638, before coming to Long Island. It is probable that she was the mother of all his children, and that none of them save John Jr., were of age in 1660.‡

Margaret Corey, probably John's 2nd wife, is mentioned in Howell's History of Southampton. According to Moore's Indexes, her family consisted in 1686, of one male and two females. Children of the first John Corey, order unknown.

2. i. JOHN,[2] of Huntington, L. I. (See above).
3. ii. ABRAHAM, who d. 10 Sept., 1702.
4. iii. ISAAC, who d. 8 Mch., 1702.
5. iv. JACOB, who d. 15 Feb., 1705-6.
   v. SARAH, who m. Nathaniel, son of Richard Williams, of Huntington.
   vi. JOHANAH, or Hannah, who m. Richard, son of Thomas Brush, of Huntington. Hannah, da. of Hannah, is named in the will of John Cory, before mentioned. Johanah Brush witnessed a deed on 13 Jan., 1699. (Huntington Town Records, II., 238).

      The Town Records, also give, I., p. 345, the following children for Richard Brush, but omit their mother's name:

      1. "Esther[3] Brush, b. 2 April, 1670.

2. Richard Brush, b. 23 Sept., 1673.
3. Thomas Brush, b. 13 Jan., 1675–6.
4. Mary Brush, b. 31 March, 1677–8.
5. Robert Brush, b. 30 June, 1685.
6. Benjamin Brush, b. 20 Oct., 1682."*

vii. ABIGAIL, who married John Sammis, Samons or Samways, about 1672. "John is believed to have come to Huntington among the earliest settlers, by way of Southold." Both he and Nathaniel Williams were, in 1672, part owners of number one of the ten farms, besides holding other property in Huntington.

John Sammis m. 2nd, the widow of John Corey, neé Mary Cornish. (See below).

The will of John Sammis, dated 28 Nov., 1693, proved 3 Jan., 1693–4, names his wife Mary, his daughter-in-law, Martha Corey (i. e., step-daughter), his children John, Silas, Deborah, David, Isaac, Jeremiah and Hannah. (Jeremiah and Hannah were probably children of Mary Cornish). John Sammis also mentions his brothers-in-law Abraham, and and Isaac, Corey; Richard Brush and Nathaniel Williams. (Pelletreau's Early L. I. Wills).

The Sammis, Williams and Brush families are still flourishing at Huntington, but the surname Corey is no longer found there. Issue of John and Abigail (Corey) Sammis:

1. "John" Sammis, b. 13 Sept., 1673, at Huntington.
2. Silas Sammis, b. 2 Nov., 1676.
3. Deborah Sammis, b. 13 Nov., 1678.
4. David Sammis, b. 4 Oct., 1681.
5. Isaac Sammis, b. 14 Nov., 1683–4."†

2. JOHN[2] COREY, of Huntington, son of John[1] Corey, of Southold, from which place the former went to Huntington, perhaps as early as 1659.

He bought a home lot there, on 7 July, 1663, and was granted land in 1668, 1681 and 1682. He was, at one time, one of the owners of number nine of the ten farms, and afterwards of number ten.

He is said to have been a Quaker, and was a man of considerable importance at Huntington, being Recorder, Town Clerk, Arbitrator, etc.

The inventory of his estate amounting to £82 and 10 shillings was dated 25 Jan., 1685–6. (See Huntington Town Records, and the Suffolk County History).

John Corey married at Huntington, on 15 Dec., 1667, Mary Cornish, who m. 2d, John Sammis (see above); she survived both of her husbands, and is mentioned on 9 April, 1696, by her son John Corey, as then living.

A Joseph Corey is mentioned in Thompson's History of Long Island, as a resident of Huntington about 1666. No such man being found in the early Records of the Town, Joseph may safely be considered as a misprint for John.

Issue of John and Mary (Cornish) Corey, from the Town Records of Huntington, I., 376:

i. MARY,[3] b. 20 Oct., 1668, she doubtless married Samuel Smith, on 14 Feb., 1688–9, and had issue:
Samuel[4] Smith, b. 30 Jan., 1689–90.
ii. ABIGAIL, b. 13 Nov., 1670.
iii. ELIZABETH, b. 9 Jan., 1672.
iv. JOHN, b. 3 Feb., 1674. He was at Huntington as late as 1696. In 1700 he was of Elizabethtown, N. J., where he died in Dec., 1723, his wife, Patience, died in 1722.*
v. MARTHA, b. 17 Feb., 1677. John Sammis in his will, quoted above, calls her his "daughter-in-law Martha Corey," on 28 Nov., 1693.
vi. ELNATHAN, b. 1 June, 1679.
vii. THOMAS, b. 21 Sept., 1681. He settled in Stamford, Conn., about 1720.†
viii. ABRAHAM, b. 28 Oct., 1683, living at Huntington, 9 April, 1696.

3. ABRAHAM[2] COREY (John[1]), of Southold, b. perhaps about 1641. He was a landholder in the Town of Southold, and Savage says that he was Freeman of Connecticut in 1662, and married in the same year. "Goodman" Corey, Freeman of Connecticut in 1662 was much more likely to have been John Corey, Sr., than his son, Abraham; while 1662 seems too early for the marriage date of Margaret Christophers, as she was apparently not a resident of New London till 1665.

On the 28 June, 1680, Abraham acquits his father John Corey, of all debts; Abraham was Constable in 1681, was rated on £76 in 1683, and in 1686 had four males and four females in his family.

He married Margaret, da. of Jeffrey Christophers of New London, Conn. The latter gave his house in New London to his da. Margaret Corey on the 8 July, 1700, he being at the time a resident of Southold.‡

Margaret Corey bought land 22 Aug., 1705. (See Southold Town Records, I., 188, 167; II., 23, 115).

Abraham Corey's will (Pelletreau's Early Long Island Wills, p. 256), dated 19 May, 1701–2, proved the 14 Oct., the same year, names his wife, Margaret, his "nephew Patience Mayhew" (evidently a member of his household, and daughter of John Mayhew), and the children below. The Census of 1698 omits Eliza-‡ Jeffrey, and his brother Christopher, Christophers, were mariners engaged in the exchange trade with Barbadoes. They settled in New London about 1665.

Jeffrey was born about 1621, at "Chofton Ferris," probably Cherston Ferrers, near Dartmouth, Devonshire, England. His wife's name is not known. His children were probably not natives of this country. His son, Jeffrey, Jr., died 17 May, 1690. His sisters were Margaret Corey; Ioanna, wife of John Mayhew, of New London, and the wife of a Mr. Parker, or Packer, of Southold." beth, she having been married before that date. The order of the children is not known; they were:

6. i. ABRAHAM,[5] called eldest son in his father's will.
   ii. JOHN, called 2nd son in his father's will. He may have died on 2 May, 1717, or he may have married Dorothy Hobart, and have died in 1754. (See John, the supposed son of Jacob Corey).
   iii. ELIZABETH, doubtless born in 1681, d. 11 April, 1751, in her 71st year. She married 1st, Colonel Samuel[5] Hutchinson (Matthias[4]), who d. 9 Jan., 1737, in his 65th year. Elizabeth married 2nd, Mr. John[4] Budd (John,[3] Lieut. John,[2] Lieut. John[1]), b. in 1686–7, d. 20 Feb., 1752–3. She was his second wife. Issue by 1st husband:
      1. Samuel[4] Hutchinson. See Census of 1698.
      2. Elijah Hutchinson, called "grandson" in the will of Abraham Corey, before mentioned.*
      3. Benjamin Hutchinson (perhaps).
   iv. MARY, her surname was Corey in 1698. In May, 1702, she was the wife of William Bradley, he being her 2nd husband.
   v. DOROTHY, unmarried in May, 1702.

OLD GRAVEYARD INSCRIPTIONS FROM COLUMBIA AND RENSSELAER COUNTIES, NEW YORK.

L. HASBROUCK VON SAHLER.

The following inscriptions were copied under my personal direction, in a small graveyard, located on the extreme eastern border of Austerlitz, Columbia County. It is on a hillside, commanding an extensive view of the Berkshire Hills, and is so far from the out of the way road, that a stranger would have difficulty in finding it. Although many of our best known names are represented there, it is in a most neglected condition, and I was obliged to have a workman dig up some of the stones, to read them. Many are buried without marked headstones, and a few stones have simply initials. Several of the inscribed ones are broken. Unfortunately the fate of small public, and private graveyards in this country is a disgrace to the owners of the surrounding lands, or of the farms on which they are located. The same can frequently be said of the old parts of some of the larger ones. If each town, or locality, or individual owners, would take a proper interest in the last resting-place of earlier

THE ROOSA FAMILY OF ULSTER AND DUTCHESS COUNTIES, NEW YORK.

By Holdridge Ozro Collins, of Los Angeles, California.

Governor Francis Lovelace restored Roosa to favor, and in 1669 appointed him and Louis Du Bois two of the Overseers for Hurley, called New Dorp, or New Village. "In 1673 he was confirmed as one of the officers at Esopus by Governor Anthony Colve, and described as "Captain Albert Heymans, who had been prominent in the riot of 1667."

The records state that in 1669 "Albert Heymensen peticond to sett up a Brewhouse and tanffatts in Hurley," and an order was made granting permission.

His name appears with that of his son Arien Albertson Roosa and those of Jacob Jansen Van Etten, Jan Jansen Van Etten, Tho. Quick, Roeloff Swartwout, Mattys Blanchan, Louys Du Bois and others, to the petition to Sir Edmund Andros, Governor of New York, praying that he would assist them in procuring a minister for Esopus "that can preache bothe Inglish and Dutche, wch. will bee most fitting for this place, it being in its Minority."

Documents, etc., pages 543–4. Doc. Hist., N. Y., Vol. 3, page 965.

Albert Heymans Roosa served in the military forces of the Colony as mustering officer and in other capacities, and on April 5, 1670, at the military rendezvous held at Marbletown, he was present as Sergeant of Captain Henry Pawling's Company at which also appeared his son Arie Roosa as private, and in 1673 Albert was Captain of a company recruited from Hurley and Marbletown. See Second Annual Report of the State Historian of New York, pages 378–379, 384. See also, same volume, pages 185, 191, 198, 201, 204–7, 266, 276, 285, 287, 290, 294, 298 and 427 for accounts of Albert and his son Captain Arie Roosa.

Albert Heymans Roosa died at Hurley on February 27, 1679. In 1685 his widow, Wyntje Allard secured a grant of 320 acres at Hurley.

He had the following children, viz.:

i. Arie or Aria, born in Holland; married at Kingston, Maria Pels, daughter of the Schepin Evert Pels.

The proofs of this marriage are found in the records of the old Dutch Church of Kingston. These records were translated by Rev. Roswell Randall Hoes, a Chaplain, U. S. N., and printed 1891 by The De Vinne Press of New York. The volume is entitled "Baptismal and Marriage Registers of the Old Dutch Church at Kingston," etc. On page 12 of that Volume, No. 196, Ary Heymansse Rosa and Marya Pels attend at the baptism of their child Evert; on page 16, No. 264, Ary Rosa and Maria Pels appear at the baptism of their child Weyntie; on page 24, No. 426, Ary Rosa and Maria Pels attend at the baptism of their child Engeltie; on page 30, No. 544, Arian Rose Alberson and Maria Ever Pels appear at the baptism of their child Annetje; on page 42, No. 785, Arien Roos and wife Maria Pels appear at the baptism of their child Arien; on page 54, No. 1056, Ariaan Roosa and wife Mary Pels appear at the baptism of their child Mary.

In the records the name of Arie Roosa is indifferently spelled Aria, Ariaan, Arien, Roosa, Roos, Rose, etc.

The mother of Maria Pels was Jannetje Symens, and the record of her marriage to Evert Pels appears on page 2, No. 10, and page 4, No. 55, of said Hoes' Register.

ii. Heyman, married Margriet Rosevelt.
iii. Jan, married Hellegond Williams.
iv. Ikee, married Roeloff Kierstede.
v. Maritje, married Jansen.
vi. Neeltien, married Hendric Paeldin, 1676. Banns, Nov. 3.
vii. Jannetje, married Matys Ten Eyck, Nov. 16, 1679.
viii. Aert.
ix. Annatje.
x. Guert, died June 15, 1664. The record reads as follows, viz.: "Hic filius obiit ante baptismum."

Arie Roosa came from Holland with his father Albert Heymans Roosa and mother Wyntje Allard on the "Spotted Cow."

His name, spelled Arrie Roos, is found on "A Rool of the Names and Surnames of them that haue takin the oath of allegiance in ye County of Vlstr. by ordr. of His Excely; Ye Governor; ye ffirst day of Septembr Anno Qe: Domini 1689" and also upon "A List of the ffreeholders within the County of Ulster, 1728. The ffreeholders for the Town of Kingston, Vizt." In this latter list his name is spelled Aldert Ariese Roosa. Doc. Hist., N. Y., Vol. 1, pages 279 and 281; Vol. 3, pages 969–970. In the former list appear also the names of Abraham Du Bois, Thomas Quick, Cornelis Slecht, Jan Elting, Jan Van Vliet, Jacob Van Etten, Jan Van Etten his son, Roeloff Swartwout and Thomas Swartwout his son, Benjamin Provoost, Louis Du Bois, Johannes Westbroeck, Jan Broersen Dekker and Evert Pels.

The "New York Army List for 1700" embraces the following, viz.:

"PROVINCE OF NEW YORK.

List of ye present officers of ye Militia in his Matys. Province of New York in America Commissionated by his Excel. Richd. Earle of Bellmont. Capt. Generall & Govr. in Chief in & over his Matys. said Province &c. vizt."

. . . . . .

"Of the Regiment of Militia in ye Counties of Ulster & Dutchess. Jacob Rutsen Lieut. Col.

. . . . . .

Of another Foot Compa. in ye said Countys: Aria Rose, Captain; John Rose, Lieut.; Aria Gerrutse, Ensigne. Doc. Hist., N. Y., Vol. 1, pages 357, 363.

Second Annual Report N. Y. Historian, pages 419, 427.

In 1686 Arie Roosa, Jan Eltinge, Gerrit Aartsen, Hendrik Kip and Jacob Kip were granted a large tract of land in Dutchess County. This grant is called the "Arie Roosa Patent," and it embraced about one thousand and five hundred acres, opposite Rondout Creek, near Kingston and extending along the bank of the Hudson river.

Arie Roosa settled upon this grant and lived there his remaining life, and many of his descendants are now found in Dutchess County, prosperous farmers and merchants.

By his wife Maria Pels he had the following children, viz.:

ii. Evert, baptized Oct. 26, 1679.

iii. Weyntie, baptized June 4, 1682.

iv. Engeltie, baptized Sep. 3, 1685.

v. Annetje, baptized Dec. 22, 1687.

vi. Arien, baptized June 3, 1694.

vii. Mary, baptized Aug. 28, 1698.

1789.

On February 28, 1789, the legislature ordered the Military Tract to be surveyed and subdivided. A method of distributing the land by lot to the holders of the military claims was prescribed. Under this law the survey was begun under Surveyor-general Simeon Dewitt, and partly completed before the close of the year. The evident intention of the state to fulfill its obligations probably accounts for the increased number of claim transfers in this year. None of the claims were located during the year, however.

Abby, Samuel; of 3rd Regt., deceased intestate before July 20, 1789, on which date his claim is sold by his lawful and sole heir, John Abby of Cheshire, N. H.

EDITORIAL.

THE EDITOR, being also Necrologist of the Society, avails himself of the editorial space accorded him in the RECORD, to state his grievances and air his views relative to obituaries of deceased members.

It has been the custom of the RECORD to present in its pages, brief, but carefully prepared obituary notices of those members of the Society who, from time to time, are taken from our companionship by the hand of death. This acknowledgment of the mutual relations and interest which existed between them and ourselves, during life, is a matter of respect due to them, and of self-respect, also, for ourselves as a Society. And, it would seem, naturally, that when, after a member's death, the family or relatives of the deceased are officially approached with a request for such data of the deceased's life, as would enable its Necrologist to prepare an accurate and fitting obituary—the least they could do would be to bestir themselves and promptly comply with the request;—especially as their work is facilitated by a carefully prepared printed circular giving the points on which information is desired. But, the experience of the present Necrologist is that he has found the greatest difficulty and delay in securing replies to these circular, from those who should be (naturally) most interested in seeing their loved ones thus honored.

It may be that the general prevalence, now-a-days, of biographical works, with high-sounding and enticing titles, which try to inveigle people of any note into investing in a "steel-plate portrait" and so many pages of biography, at any price from $150 to $500, has tended to make people look askance at any request for a biography; but a moment's reflection should reassure any one who knows aught of this Society and its objects, that "there is no money" in the humble request for such biographical data as it needs in perpetuating the memory of its deceased members—and, if these few words should happen to meet the eye of any living member, or his family, we trust they will be remembered when the occasion arrives.

With the beginning of the present year, however, the Necrologist, with permission of the Board of Trustees, adopted a new scheme to secure his ends. Instead of disturbing the family of a deceased member, and putting them to the trouble of raking up all these little matters concerning his life (which, we admit, is not always easily done) he has prepared a new form of Genealogical Inquiries, which is mailed by the Treasurer to each new member, in the same envelope which contains the notification of his election—and which shall be filled out as fully as possible, by the member himself, and returned to the Treasurer, with the check for his initiation fees and dues. Thus the Post-Mortem enquiry, is changed to an Ante-Mortem affair, to be answered by the man himself (who can answer it better?) and which is filed away as a reliable document, against time of need, in the Society's archives.

We shall be pleased now, after this exordium, to see the new (and old) members of the Society "tumbling over themselves" in their eagerness to file their auto-biographies with the Society, for the benefit of The Necrologist.

OBITUARY.

CODDINGTON, GILBERT SMITH, for eight years a life member of our Society, was born in the City of New York, 9 Oct., 1834, and received his education in his native city and in Europe. During the Civil War he supported the Government at his own expense, commanding in 1862, the 20th New York Battery of Artillery. Captain Coddington inherited a fortune, in 1856, from his father, Jonathan Inslee Coddington, who was a prominent merchant of this city, and for many years Postmaster of New York, never engaged in any business, spending much of his time in foreign travel. Like his eldest brother, he possessed what old Fuller quaintly called a "handsome man-case," rejoicing in perfect health, combined with great physical strength. In early and middle age, he was remarkable for his ability to raise heavy dumb-bells, beyond the power of ordinary athletes, and for his skill in the use of boxing gloves, few amateurs being able to cope with him. He was among the most amiable and generous of men, his purse being always open to the needy and unfortunate. In 1880, he married Amelia N. Stillwell, daughter of Silas N. Stillwell, a lawyer of New York, and the author of the Stillwell Act. Captain Coddington was the youngest, and last survivor, of fourteen children. Of his ten brothers the eldest, who bore his father's name, was a well known figure in the fashionable life of his day, possessing a superb physique, standing six feet six inches. Another brother, David, was also a successful lawyer. His oration at the grave of Jefferson, in Virginia, in 1851, his eloquent eulogy of Lincoln, delivered in Charleston, S. C., in May, 1865, with many other speeches was issued in an octavo volume during the following year. For several years before his death in his native city, July 16, 1900, at the age of sixty-five, Captain Coddington spent most of his time at his country seat on the Hyde Park road above Poughkeepsie, where he enjoyed improving his estate and dispensing a generous hospitality. He was buried by the side of his wife, who died in 1891, in his private vault in Trinity Cemetery. They had no children. The portrait which appears as a frontispiece to this number of the RECORD, is copied from a photograph taken several years ago. J. G. W.

HASELL, BENTLY DOUGLASS, a Life Member of this Society since 1875, and a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., died 29 May, 1900. Mr. Hasell was a quiet member of the Society, and, perhaps, but little known among us. But, that he was an enthusiastic genealogist is evident from the very full and beautifully prepared genealogy of his family, and summary of his own business life which he prepared in 1889, and which has been kindly placed at our disposal by his son. He was born in Charleston, S. C., Feb. 27, 1829, and was the son of Bentley Hasell and his wife Catharine De Nully Cruger: at age of 15, entered Trinity College, Hartford, Ct., and after leaving College (1848), chose the profession of a civil engineer. His busy life may thus be epitomized. He was engaged on the fellowing public works, among others, viz.: the N. Y. & Erie R. R.; the U. S. Dry Dock at the Brooklyn Navy Yard; the Mich. Southern & Northern Ind. R. R. (now the Lake Shore R. R.); Chief Engineer of the Quincy & Toledo R. R. (now a part of the Wabash system); Chief Engineer and Gen. M'g'r of the New Orleans, Jackson & Great Northern R. R. (now the Southern Division of the Illinois Central); the same on the Memphis & Ohio R. R. (now a part of the Louisville and Nashville R. R. system): and President of the Charleston & Savannah R. R. He also organized and was for fourteen years Gen'l Agent of the Great Southern Freight and Passenger Line, comprising steamers running from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, to Charleston, S. C., and thence by rail to the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico. In Dec., 1886, he established the Railway Commission House of B. D. Hasell & Co., No. 66 Pine St., New York City. He was also President of the Hasell Perfected Railway Signal Co., which ownes and controls what is said to be the most perfect and complete Automatic Block Signal System in existence.

Mr. Hasell, was for seventeen years a member of the Union Club; a life member of the N. Y. Genealogical and Biographical Society, of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and of the Down Town Association (social club). Mr. Hasell married, July 8, 1852, Hannah (dau. of Judge Jesse) Morgan, who died May 1, 1875, leaving (of four children) only one son surviving—Lewis Cruger Hasell, b. 13 Aug., 1858, dry goods and cotton commission merchant in New York City, who resides at Greenwich, Ct., and who married, April 22, 1884, Mary Mason (dau. of Mason Renshaw) Jones (bap. Wm. Henry Jones), and his first wife, Lydia Haight, granddaughter of Isaac Jones, President of the Chemical Bank of New York, and his wife Mary Mason, who was the daughter of John Mason, founder of said bank.

The papers which have been laid before us in regard to our deceased friend's ancestry, etc., are of great interest, as showing connection between certain prominent families of South Carolina and New York City, and we hope, at some future time, to be able to present them to the readers of the RECORD.

HUNTINGTON, COLLIS P., a member of this Society since 14 Dec., 1888, died at his summer home, "Pine Knot Camp," in the Adirondacks, 14 August, 1900. Born in Haminton, Litchfield Co., Conn., 1821. He commenced to earn his own living at the age of 14, peddled goods of various kinds until he was 24 years old, when he settled at Oneonta, N. Y., in the hardware business. In 1849 he was one of the first to go to the Pacific Coast, taking with him a miscellaneous consignment of goods, mostly hardware, which he sold at the fabulous prices of those earlier California days. He opened a hardware store in San Francisco, in company with Mark Hopkins, thus founding the firm then, and still known as Huntington & Hopkins, though for several years he had not been connected with it. Then in company with Leland Stanford and Charles Crocker, Mr. Huntington, in 1860, planned and started the Central Pacific Railroad, extending from San Francisco, to Ogden, Utah, a distance of 1359 miles. From this, Mr. Huntington proceeded to carry out his conception of a great trans-continental line of railway connecting the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, which was ultimately accomplished by the construction and consolidation of lines which connected San Francisco with Galveston, on the Mexican Gulf, and with New Orleans, west of the Mississippi, and the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio Southwestern R. R., east of that river, which completed the connection with the Atlantic. In all this gigantic enterprise, and others which grew out of, or were connected with it, Mr. Huntington developed colossal business ability, and became, despite many reverses, a multi-millionaire and a power in the land—his wealth, at the time of his death, being (conservatively) estimated at from $45,000,000 to $65,000,000. He was the personification of intense work, integrity, and energy. He left a widow, two sons and an adopted daughter, the Countess Hasfelt.

BOOK NOTICES.

A GENEALOGICAL NARRATIVE OF THE DANIEL HAIGHT FAMILY. By his grandson, Canniff Haight. Toronto, 1899. Small quarto, pamphlet, pp. 71.

Daniel Haight, the youngest son of Joseph, a Quaker of Dutchess Co., New York, migrated with the U. E. Loyalists after the Revolution to what is now Adolphustown, Province of Upper Canada. He was twice married, first to Mary Moore, by whom he had one son, and second to Mary Dorland, by whom he had ten children. The family history previous to the emigration to Canada, has been recorded in David W. Hoyt's "Genealogical History of the Hoyt-Haight Families," and the intent of this pamphlet is to record the genealogy and biography of the Canadian branch. Daniel Haight was the first of the name in Canada, but took with him a nephew, Joel Haight by name, who also married into the Dorland family, and settled on a farm adjoining Daniel's. Four grandchildren of the elder Haight, born prior to his death are now living, of whom the author is the only one who had personal knowledge of him. When a boy, Mr. Canniff Haight lived with his father in the old homestead, and there saw the grandfather daily. So it is that no one, perhaps, is better qualified to give accurate description and personal recollections of those early scenes than the writer of this narrative. To record the struggles in the forest wilderness in establishing a new home, to describe the early life as he knew it from the tongues of men who lived it, to gather together the data of ancestral history for the benefit of posterity,—these are pleasurable tasks to the compiler, and in this instance they result in a most interesting narrative. The Quakers were indeed peaceable men; and when persecution was the reward of consistent opposition to bloodshed and the courage of their convictions, they left their old abiding-places, and sought new homes in the peace of the forest wilderness. Mr. Haight has handled the subject in a most interesting fashion, and through his pen pictures we see the principals live, and toil, and lay the foundations of a new community. The book is neatly printed on good paper with bold type, and a sketch of the old homestead, inserted as a frontispiece, gives added interest to the whole.

THE HARLEIAN SOCIETY HAS JUST ISSUED TO ITS MEMBERS "THE VISITATION OF KENT IN 1619," taken by John Philipot, Rouge Dragon, Marshal and Deputy to William Camden, Clarenceux. The work, which was due in 1898, and forms Volume XLII. of the Society's publications, has been unavoidably delayed by the ill-health of the Editor, Robert Hovenden, Esq., F.S.A. It makes a very valuable issue.

The Society has also issued to its members for 1899 and 1900 the two first volumes of "MUSGRAVE'S OBITUARY," edited by Sir George J. Armytage, Bart. Vol. III. is in the press, and Vols. IV. to VI. are in the transcriber's hands. The work is a copy of the "General Nomenclator and Obituary," prior to 1800, compiled by Sir William Musgrave, 6th Bart., in twenty-three manuscript volumes, now in the British Museum. Only those entries have been extracted which relate to British families.

NORTH AMERICAN NOTES AND QUERIES. A MONTHLY JOURNAL OF INTER-COMMUNICATION. Published at Quebec, Canada.

Two numbers of volume one of this new and interesting magazine are already issued, June and July, 1900. Its purposes are devoted to literature, history, biography, bibliography, archaeology, ethnography, folk-lore, numismatics, philately, curiosa and general information. Covering so wide a field of investigation it maintains an interest for all, and takes at once a prominent place among the periodicals of this continent. It aims to bring forth from its contributors odds and ends of literary and historical intelligence which "have long been laid away in yellow-edged bundles, portly portfolios, or dust-covered pigeon holes," and "to be to the North American people what the London Notes and Queries is to Englishmen all over the world." Each number will contain two or three historical papers, a series of notes, queries and replies, a bibliographical index of the publications of the month, books wanted by book-lovers and book-sellers, engravings, historical portraits and biographical sketches. With such a prospectus, and two very interesting numbers to start with, we hail with pleasure this new publication, and gladly place it on our shelf. Subscriptions may be had at $3.00 per annum, by addressing Raoul Renault, Quebec, Canada.

THE KIMBALL FAMILY NEWS. JUNE, 1900. Published by G. F. Kimball, Topeka, Kansas. Terms, $1.00 per annum.

The continued supplement to the Kimball Family History, Vol. III., No. 6, contains some random information relative to various members of the family, personal mention, and other items of interest.

GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE. VOL. I., No. 4, AUG., 1900. Edited and published by Arthur Hastings Grant, No. 41 Church St., Montclair, N. J. Terms, $1.00 per annum, issued bi-monthly. Single numbers are not sold.

Another periodical supplement to an already published genealogy. We have noticed earlier numbers in these columns. The present installment continues the data relative to "Clan D" and "Clan F," and is generously illustrated.

PUBLIC PAPERS OF GEORGE CLINTON, FIRST GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK' 1777-1795, 1801-1804. VOL. II. Published by the State of New York. Albany' 1900. 8vo., cloth, pp. 879.

Published as Appendix "N" Third Annual Report of the State Historian, this is Vol. II. of the War of the Revolution Series, so ably edited by Mr. Hastings. It continues the story of the Revolution, so far as it relates to the State of New York, and for this purpose the manuscript collection of the State, has been carefully annotated and examined. One does not gather from a hasty survey of this book a realization of the immense labor involved in collecting and arranging the data, or of the historical knowledge and insight necessary to its compilation. A careful perusal of its pages, however, reveals the extent of the researches involved, and the value of the foot notes inserted in explanation of the text. Mr. Hastings has brought his department into a most satisfactory condition, and the demand for his reports attests their value.

FAMILY RECORDS OF SOME OF THE DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT FRANCIS OF WETHERSFIELD, CONN. APRIL, 1900. Compiled by Carrie E. Chatfield, Minneapolis, Minn.

This family remained in Wethersfield for six generations, but whence came the progenitor, Robert Francis, has not been established. By his wife, Joan, he had four daughters and three sons. Of these, this pamphlet traces the descendants of the second son John, who married Mercy Chittenden, for four generations.

MEMORIAL OF AMOS PERRY. OBITUARY SKETCH BY CLARENCE S. BRIGHAM. Printed for the R. I. Historical Soc., 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 6.

Amos Perry, Secretary of the Rhode Island Historical Society, died August 10, 1899. Of New England extraction he was born in South Natick, Mass., in 1812, graduated from Harvard College in 1837, and moved then to Providence, R. I., where he spent the remainder of his days, except while Diplomatic and Consular Agent at Tunis, which charge he assumed in 1862, and held for over five years. His executive ability availed the Historical Society much at a time when, like many others, it was suffering from narcosis, and in honor of his memory, a memorial meeting was held by the Society in October last.

THE SEYMOUR FAMILY. By Tyler Seymour Morris. Chicago, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet.

A reprint from the Morris Genealogy, containing the families of Richard 1, Richard 2, Ebenezer 3, Stephen 4, Gideon 5, Salmon 6, and the ancestors of the Hon. Horatio Seymour.

ANDREW BENTON, 1620–1683. A SKETCH. By Josiah Henry Benton, Jr Privately printed. The Merrymount Press, Boston, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp 30. 250 copies printed on laid paper.

This sketch is the first part of a book soon to be printed, giving an account of Andrew Benton and his descendants in the author's line. It is printed separately now, because of interest to all his descendants. Andrew Benton was born in England in 1620, and died in Hartford in 1683, where his tombstone is still standing in the "Old Center Burying Ground." He settled probably at Watertown, Mass., moved thence to New Haven, Conn., later to Milford, and in 1666 to Hartford. This sketch, excellently printed and illustrated, is based upon record investigations made by Mr. Chas. F. Martin of Hartford, and its assertions are fortified by many references to authorities. It is compiled in excellent taste and good judgment.

NEW ENGLAND COX FAMILIES. A SERIES OF GENEALOGICAL PAPERS TO BE ISSUED AT 25 CENTS EACH. By Rev. John H. Cox, of Lexington, Mass. Nos. 3, 4, 5.

We have already referred in these columns to this serial, and its convenient method of genealogical publication. The present numbers form pages 17 to 40 of the Cox Genealogy, and give the descendants of Thomas Cox, son of William I., of Pemaquid, Robert Cox, of Marblehead, and some miscellaneous ancestors of Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Copies may be had of the compiler.

WILLIAM PRESTON JOHNSON. A CHARACTER SKETCH. By Rev. Jacob Cooper. 8vo, pamphlet. n. d.

This sketch of Col. Johnston, Aide and Confidential Secretary to Jefferson Davis, is prepared for the Class of 1852 in Yale University, of which Mr. Johnston was a member. The son of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston and Henrietta Preston, he was born in 1831 at Louisville, Ky., entered the profession of the law at that place, and in 1883 became the President of Tulane University, which office he held until his death in July, 1899. The sketch is compiled by one who knew him well and loved him dearly; and its details of a life so crowded with labor and experience are written by a masterly hand, impelled by motives of the highest esteem.

THE NORTH CAROLINA HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER. Published quarterly by J. R. B. Hathaway, Edenton, North Carolina. $3.00 per annum; single copies, $1.00.

The genealogical spirit is truly rising in our southern states. This publication, which began in January, 1900, has now issued two numbers, and bids fair to be a literary success. Our publications relative to Carolina genealogy are sparse, and this is a welcome addition. The two numbers already issued contain abstract of land grants for Chowan County, wills probated prior to 1760, abstract of conveyances in Chowan County and the town of Edenton, Court Records in 1670;—marriage bonds Chowan County, the first church built in North Carolina, the Littlejohn family, the earliest Baptist congregation organized in the State, and other miscellaneous matters of historical interest. The columns are open to receive, collate and preserve the history of the State, and for genealogical queries. Each issue will contain 160 pages of historical lore.

IN MEMORY OF CHARLES JANEWAY STILLÉ. 8vo, pamphlet. Philadelphia, 1900.

Proceedings of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania on the death of Dr. Stillé, late President of the Society, at a meeting held May 21, 1900. At this special memorial meeting, Prof. Robert E. Thompson read a paper on the life, character and services of Dr. Stillé, which is here put in type. His services in the field of Pennsylvania history were invaluable; and while the State has lost a useful citizen, the Society has lost a valued servant.

FAMILY RECORDS, LAMB, SAVORY, HARRIMAN. By Fred W. Lamb, a descendant. Augustine Caldwell, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 24.

This pamphlet is devoted to the descendants of Isaac Lamb, The Savory Genealogy, which has been taken from "The Savory Families of America," by Judge A. W. Savory, of Annapolis, Nova Scotia, and the history of the Harriman family from Fullonton's "History of Raymond, N. H.," with notes and corrections by the collector.

VOL. XXXII. NEW YORK, JANUARY, 1901. No. 1.

SAMUEL SMITH PURPLE, M.D.

This Society mourns the loss of a venerable associate, whose services from its first organization until the day of his death, have been invaluable; and whose personality was ever welcome and helpful. SAMUEL SMITH PURPLE, M.D., the eldest son of Dea. Lyman Smith Purple and his wife Minerva (second daughter of Dr. James) Sheffield, was born in Lebanon, Madison Co., N. Y., on the 24th of June, 1822. He was seventh in descent from Edward and Hannah (Ackley) Purple, who settled in Haddam, Conn., 1674; and, more remotely, of Christopher Purple (1580 to 1605), who emigrated from the Co. Essex, England. His father, Dea. Purple, was a shoemaker and tanner.

The subject of our sketch received his early education, between the ages of five to sixteen years, at the district school of his native village, and—in some autobiographical memoranda which he has left—remarks, that during this period of his life, no remarkable development of character appeared, except "such a strong propensity to continued fishing and hunting," that it came to be an accepted opinion in the family, that "Sam would never be good for anything else." From thirteen to sixteen years, his winters were spent at school, and his summers in assisting his father in the shoemaker's shop, or in the tannery. In the spring of 1836, the family removed to Earlville, Chenango, Co., N. Y., where until, his death in May, 1839, the father kept a boot and shoe store. After this event, young Samuel, as the eldest son, succeeded to the business and superintendence of the shop, a part of the time still working on the bench, and thus supporting his mother and two younger brothers, for several years.

But, while faithful to the duties and responsibilities thus Providentially imposed upon him, he secretly nurtured an ambition for some higher calling than that of being a follower of St. Crispin; he longed to be a doctor. In this, there might, perhaps, have been some "heredity," for his maternal grandfather and an uncle, as well as a more remote relative, were physicians. Be that as it may, however, the boy made up his mind to study medicine, and in the summer of 1841, commenced his preparatory reading under the guidance of David Ransom, M.D., the leading physician of the village. It is strongly indicative of the natural reticence of the man, that, for some time, this fact was entirely unknown to his family. It first revealed itself, when, one day, at the family meal, he mildly contested a statement made by his grandfather, Dr. Sheffield, who was then visiting them. His mother warmly rebuked him, saying: "Why, Samuel, what do you know about medicine?" He quietly replied: "Mother, I have been studying medicine for some time!" He also used to relate, in later life, the scene which ensued when his good mother first discovered, inside of an old box-sofa, which had stood for a long time in his chamber, a skeleton which he had obtained (perhaps a loan from his preceptor), to study from, and the indignation with which she ordered it out of the house. His new studies, he says in his notes, interfered but little with his trade, as he formed the habit of rising at 4 A. M., and studying until 7 o'clock, when he repaired to the shop; and, while engaged at his work during the day, took every opportunity of reviewing his morning studies. He adds, "I never allowed myself to read in the evening;" and he admits that sometimes, he found that his studies had somewhat interfered with his regular business.

The condition of his father's estate proved to be such that it required over three years diligent labor by this faithful son, to free it from incumbrance, so as to secure a small village homestead for his mother and brothers. At last, however, it was accomplished, and he was free to follow the bent of his inclinations. In the early part of 1842, his preceptor secured from the Censors of the State Medical Society, the privilege of a free course of lectures at the Geneva Medical College; and, in order to procure the means of defraying his personal expenses while attending lectures, he worked during June, July, August and September, at farm work. On the 1st of October of that year, with barely enough money, in his pocket to live upon during the ensuing four months, he left home for Geneva. In February, 1843, he returned home and took up his trade, as before, pursuing his morning readings and his mental "reviews" during work hours. Evidently, the boy was in earnest, and so, in the ensuing summer, Dr. W. D. Purple, a distant relative, and a member of the Board of Censors of the State Medical Society, secured for him the privilege of the beneficiary foundation of the Medical Department of the University of the City of New York—i. e., free tickets for a full course of lectures in that institution, upon the payment merely of the $25 matriculation fee. The summer of 1843 was spent as the previous one had been; and his second course of lectures, thus hardly earned, and attended through circumstances of self-denial and strictest economy, were absorbed and assimilated with the greatest delight by this earnest student, who, in March, 1844, received from the venerable Prof. Valentine Mott, the distinguished head of one of the most brilliant medical faculties which ever graced an American institution, the diploma entitling him to the title, rights and immunities of a Doctor of Medicine.

After graduation, a few weeks spent at home in Earlville, gave him time to decide the momentous question which confronts every budding physician—where to settle in practice? His choice fell upon New York City, and for that place he set out, in the early days of May, 1844, with, as he says, "$25 and a very poor wardrobe." As economy was nececssary, he made an arrangement with a canalboat captain, by which he "worked his passage," on the Erie Canal, to Utica. His journey from that point to this city left him on arrival here with but $17.50 in hand—and then the struggle began. In the few notes which he has left, he says: "The struggles and trials through which I passed during the first three or four years, will ever remain a secret in my bosom. . . . If it had not been for one or two warm friends, I could not have succeeded in the task I had undertaken. It was not until five years had elapsed that I was enabled to pay my expenses and liquidate the obligations necessarily incurred up to that time." And the memory of some of those early friends, corroborates his statement. But he had indomitable grit, and not a moment was wasted. His Art was his mistress, and he wooed her insistently.

"It is probable," says Dr. Stephen Smith, who was at this time a student with him, "that he was induced to settle in this city by the Rev. William W. Everts, pastor of the Laight Street Baptist Church, who was his former townsman in Earlville, and to whom as well as his worthy wife, the young doctor was in many ways indebted, in these trying days.

"He soon became connected with the New York Dispensary, the oldest and largest dispensary in the city, and remained one of its physicians from 1846–1849; and was attached to the New York Lying-In-Asylum (with which he had been connected during his student days), as district physician. He located in Hudson Street (No. 183), near Varick, and rapidly acquired a practice in that vicinity. Though his progress was slow in securing a better class of families (as is that of physicians who begin their professional lives in New York without the prestige of wealth, and the aid of a large circle of helpful friends), yet his devotion to his patients, his success in their treatment, and his kindly gentle manner won for him, in time, a lucrative business. During this early period he became acquainted with Prof. Charles A. Lee, editor of the New York Journal of Medicine, who also held professorships in the Medical College at Pittsfield, Mass., and in the Medical College at Geneva, N. Y. These duties which required Prof. Lee to spend much time out of the city, led him to select Dr. Purple as an assistant editor. In 1848, Prof. Lee, owing to the pressure of other duties, resigned the editorship of the Journal, and Dr. Purple became his successor. He continued in that position until 1857, when he retired to devote himself entirely to practice. During the period of his management of the Journal, it became the leading medical periodical of this country."

In 1846, also, he was elected a member of the New York Pathological Society; in 1847, became one of the constituent members of the New York Academy of Medicine. Concerning his connection with this institution, another old professional friend, Dr. Ellsworth Eliot, says: "No one did more to promote the prosperity of the Academy than Dr. Purple. Of its now famous library, he was the founder [by a donation of 4,000 volumes], and to it he gave books and pamphlets, many of them of great rarity and value, by the thousands. At his death, also, the Academy library became the recipient of an immense and perfectly unique collection of American medical magazine literature from the earliest times in this country—which he had with wonderful perseverance and diligence gathered together—the special pastime of his life. In recognition of his valuable services, making him a benefactor, and confering upon him every other honor from the lowest to the highest, the Academy voted to erect a tablet in one of its halls to him." Of this institution, Dr. Purple was Vice-President in 1872, and, after three years' services as such, was elected President in 1875; and again re-elected in 1877.

He held the position of Ward Physician during the Cholera Epidemic of 1849; in 1852; became a constituent member of the Medical Society of the State of New York; in 1853, was chosen a corresponding member of the Epidemiological Society of London; from 1867–1871, was President of the Alumni Association of the Medical Department of the University, City of New York; and in 1862, was an Examining Surgeon in the New York State Drafts. He was also a physician in several of our charitable institutions; for many years a Trustee of the New York Veterinary College; and a Life Member of the Society for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Medical Men.

"Though he never gained renown," says Dr. Eliot, "as a contributor to Scientific Medicine, his record is that of one who served the medical profession and the public most faithfully and usefully. . . . To advance the interests of the medical profession, and to promote its honor, the efforts of Dr. Purple were unceasing. His integrity, urbanity, intelligence, and obliging disposition, gave him a highly reputable standing among many who resorted to him for information and assistance. Dr. Purple was eminently conservative. He looked upon those who were instrumental in doing away with the "Code of Ethics" of the medical profession, with as little favor as the High Calvinists regard the so-called Higher Criticism."

From the old-fashioned house, and quiet surroundings in Hudson street, where he had so long lived with his mother and brothers (for he never married), he removed, about 1865—following, as was necessary, the upward trend of the city's population—to No. 36 West 22d street, where amid his beloved books, still practicing, though in more leisurely fashion than in the old "down-town" days; caring for, and cared for by, the family of his deceased brother, he passed his later years until death came to him, September 29th, 1900, in his 79th year.

As a physician, Dr. Purple was, as has already been said, conservative; he held to the best and loftiest traditions of the profession; in the sick-room his dignity, his quietness of manner and movement; his voice modulated in low tones—and, above all, the touch of sympathy which brings comfort amid distress and anxiety—were characteristic of the man. Benevolence shone in his face and lightened the woes of many whose names still stand and always will stand on the debit side of his ledgers until before the Great White Throne in Heaven, "every man's account shall be rendered."

While but a boy of twelve or thirteen, Dr. Purple joined the Baptist Church in Earlville. When he settled in this city he joined, of course, the Laight Street Baptist Church, of which his old friend, Rev. Mr. Everts was pastor. Some dissension afterwards arose in this church, which disrupted its congregation, and which, though he maintained his position, and came out of it unscathed, yet so affected him that he never afterwards joined any church organization.

And now we must say a word concerning him as a life member of our Society. Dr. Purple was not one of our constituent members, at the meeting of February 27th, 1869; but his name stands upon our records as the first of the five members added at the succeeding meeting of March 7th, and he was one of the eight who signed the Certificate of Incorporation, on the 16th day of the same month. And, from that time to this, it would be difficult to find upon our roll of membership, one who has been more intimately and continuously connected than he, with the work and interests of the Society. He was a Trustee from 1869–1900, inclusive; Second Vice-President from 1888–1893; First Vice-President from 1893–1900; Treasurer, 1869–1877; a member of our Publication Committee from 1872 until his death; Editor of the RECORD from 1874–1886.

In all these relations he rendered us most faithful and loving service. Especially, in connection with the work of the Publication Committee he was our main-stay, and it was due, we think, to his suggestion, that the Society received from the late S. Whitney Phoenix, Esq., the means for copying and publishing the Baptismal and Marriage Records of the First Reformed Dutch Church of this city—a most invaluable treasury of material for the New York genealogist—and to the accuracy of which, in printed form, Dr. Purple (who was a most inexorable proof-reader) devoted his untiring personal oversight, from the beginning of its appearance in our quarterly, down to the very last week of his life. He was also engaged, with his brother Edwin R. Purple, in the preparation of other New York Dutch family genealogies, some of which were published in our RECORD, and some in private form: Genealogical Memorials of William Bradford, the Printer, Quarto, pp. 8, 1873. Contributions to the History of Ancient Families of New Amsterdam and New York. By Edwin R. Purple, with a Biographical Sketch of the Author; and Additions and Emendations to the Work. By Samuel S. Purple, M.D. Quarto, pp. 138, 1881. A Memoir of the Life and Writings of Hon. Teunis G. Bergen (with Pedigree), 1881. By Samuel S. Purple, M.D. Quarto, pp. 8. A Brief Memoir of Abram Du Bois, M.D. (with Pedigree.) By Samuel S. Purple, M.D. Quarto, pp. 8, 1893.

Among his papers since his death, have been found extensive manuscript collections for the genealogies of the Purple, Sheffield, Close, Lynch, Fones and Gardner families. Dr. Purple from an early date in his career, began the collecting of works on American local history and genealogy, at a time when there were comparatively few collectors in these lines, and had acquired, even as far back as 1870, a library of such books which ranked as one of the completest in the State. This library of Americana will soon be put upon the market at auction. Many of these books are very rare. A number of years ago he secured a volume containing as many as five of the earliest books printed in New York by William Bradford, this city's first printer. Notable among the five rarities are Keith's Truth Advanced, New York, 1694, and Maule's New England's Persecutors Mauled, no place or date, but printed in New York in 1697. His judgment was very keen, and his "luck" very noticeable; his patience and intimate knowledge of books often made him the happy owner of a rare volume, which another man might have not found.

Among his effects, also, was found a great collection of material, both in manuscript notes and printed form, rare portraits, etc., which the Doctor had brought together in preparation for a History of the New York Academy of Medicine—and which he had hoped to make his magnum opus. It is to be hoped that his professional brethren will see to it that this design is ultimately carried out to completion.

Singular modesty and reticence as to himself, his labors and his plans, concealed from his friends and associates, both in the profession and in our Society, the value and importance of his life-work; it is only now, when death has removed him from the spheres of his activity, that we fully appreciate the value of what he has done. We remember his quiet ways, his few, but always helpful words, his gentle measured speech, and the interest that spoke so plainly from his eyes, as we "took sweet council together" in our Society and Committee meetings; and we are thankful to have been so long permitted the companionship and friendship of so true a man, and so wise a counsellor.

THE FIELDS OF STOCKBRIDGE AND NEW YORK. A DISTINGUISHED FAMILY OF ANCIENT AND NOBLE ANCESTRY.

By L. Hasbrouck von Sahler, Genealogist.

The English ancestor, Hubertus de la Feld, went over to England from Normandy, with William the Conqueror, in 1066. He was of the family of the Counts de la Feld, who lived in the Chateau de la Feld, at Colmar, on the Rhine, in Alsace, who traced their ancestry to the sixth century, and who had lived there since that time. One of the family entertained in the eleventh century, Pope Leo the Ninth, and his court, on their way to the consecration of the Cathedral of Strasburg, of which the family were benefactors, and several are resting there in the chantries that they founded. In the third year of William the Conqueror, Hubertus de la Feld held lands in Lancashire, undoubtedly granted for military services, and in the twelfth year of Henry the First, John de la Feld owned lands in the same county. Up to the time of Richard the Second, the de la Felds were numerous, but after his reign the name began to be changed. Owing to the feeling resulting from the wars with France, the prefixes were either compounded, with the surname Delafeld-Delafield, or left off, as Feld-Field. The first of the family in America was Zachariah Field, a son of John Field, and grandson of John Field the noted astronomer, who was the first to introduce the Copernican system into England. Zachariah Field was born at the old home at Ardsley, in Yorkshire, about 1600, and came to this country about 1632, arriving at Boston. He first lived at Dorchester, but remained only a few years. As early as 1639, he removed through the wilderness to Hartford, becoming one of the first settlers on the Connecticut river, and acquiring large tracts of land, portions of which are now in the center of the city. His home was on Sentinel Hill. Owing to the dissentions that arose in the church after the death, in 1647, of the Rev. Thomas Hooker, a number of the settlers purchased in 1658, from the Monotuck Indians, a territory about five miles square, north of Mount Holyoke, and during the next two years sixty proprietors, and their families, took possession. Over forty settled at Hadley, and thirteen in that part of Hadley now Hatfield, and at Northampton. Zachariah Field settled at the latter place, probably in the first year of the settlement. In January, 1661, he and five others were appointed a committee "to lay out a tract of land on the west side of the Connecticut river for house lots." This was at Hatfield, and he received a grant of land, and removed there, where he died in 1666, leaving the homestead to his eldest son, Zachariah Field, Junior, who married Sarah Webb, daughter of John Webb, of Northampton, and after the birth of their three sons they removed to Deerfield. Shortly after their settlement occurred the Indian massacre of 1675, one of the most awful of that period, and consequently the surviving settlers fled to Northampton, and other places, and not until 1782 did Zachariah, Junior, and his family, return. In 1696, the second son, Ebenezer, removed to that part of Guilford, now called Madison, on Long Island Sound. Again in 1704, a band of French and Indians attacked Deerfield, and burned the town, and the inhabitants were murdered and taken captive. At that time one of the children of John, son of Zachariah, Junior, was killed, and his wife and two other children were taken captive to Canada. The wife and son were soon rescued, but the daughter was kept, and as she grew up became so infatuated with the Indians that she married a chief. In after years she visited her relatives, but preferred her adopted influences. Ebenezer married Mary Dudley, and their eldest son, David, married, first Mary Bishop, second, Catherine Bishop, third Abigail Stone, a widow. The eldest child by the third wife, and the youngest of his sons, Timothy, was born March 12, 1744, and inherited the homestead. He was prominent and respected in the town, and was active in the Revolution. In 1776 he was appointed sergeant major of the Seventh Connecticut regiment, and in 1781, he was appointed lieutenant of a company for coast defense, and on the death of its captain, received that commission. He married Anna Dudley, daughter of David Dudley, descended from the ancient and honorable Dudley family of England.

Their second son, Rev. David Dudley Field, D.D., was born, May 20, 1781, at North Madison, and was prepared for college by the Rev. Dr. Elliott of Madison. Entering Yale in 1798, he was graduated with honor in 1802. He studied theology with the Rev. Dr. Backus, of Somers, and was licensed by the association of New Haven East in 1803. At Somers he met his future wife, Submit Dickinson, daughter of Captain Noah Dickinson, who had served in the French and Revolutionary wars, and a descendant of Thomas Dickinson, who came from England, and settled at Rowley, Massachusetts, in 1643. They were married October 31, 1803. As soon as Mr. Field was licensed to preach he conducted services for a few weeks at Somers, and was urged to become pastor, but he also received invitations to several places and finally decided on Haddam, Connecticut, and remained there fourteen years, when he was dismissed at his own request. He then connected himself with the old missionary society of Connecticut, and was sent to the new settlements on the southern shore of Lake Ontario, and on the banks of the Oswego river, where he remained five months. When he returned home he passed through Stockbridge, and as he arrived on Saturday night, he was asked to preach in the Congregational meeting house the next day, as the pastor, the Rev. Stephen West, whose pastorate continued for sixty years, was beyond active service. The people were so pleased with his abilities that they urged him to stay the following Sunday, and the next, when he felt that he must return home. Soon he received an urgent call to become the pastor, which he accepted in the same year, 1819. He remained there nearly eighteen years, when a division arose in his former parish of Haddam, and he was asked to return to them, and try to unite the two factions. At his request he was dismissed from Stockbridge, and re-installed at Haddam, in 1837. Williams College conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity that year. After seven years, as the parish was too large, it was divided, and he took charge of the new church at Higganum, two miles north of the original church, and he remained there seven years. In 1848 he went, with his son (Justice) Stephen J. Field, to England, spending several months in London, and travelled in France and Belgium. At the request of his children, in 1851, when he was seventy, he returned to Stockbridge, to spend his remaining years in less activity. He was especially interested in historical researches, and was at one time vice-president of the Connecticut Historical Society, and a corresponding member of the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania historical societies. In 1819, he published a history of Middlesex County, Connecticut, and in 1829 was published the history of Berkshire County, which he, assisted by many of the neighboring ministers, wrote, and which he edited. A historical address delivered at the second centennial of Middletown, Connecticut, grew into a book of several hundred pages, and he was also interested in the genealogical element of history, for he published the Brainerd Genealogy. In his youth he especially attracted the admiration of the Rev. Dr. Benjamin Trumbull of North Haven, the historian of Connecticut, who anticipated that he would be his associate or successor, but the urgent call from Stockbridge came before his plans were formed. He was very painstaking in his ministerial work, both in the theological and parochial parts. Several of his discourses were published.

The ten children of Dr. Field and Submit Dickinson were: David Dudley, the distinguished lawyer, born 1805; Emilia Ann, married Rev. Josiah Brewer, a missionary in the East; Timothy Beals, an officer in the navy, who died young at sea; Matthew Dickinson, a manufacturer and civil engineer; Jonathan Edwards, a lawyer, who finally settled and remained during his life at Stockbridge; Stephen Johnson (first), died young; Stephen Johnson (second), Justice of the United States Supreme Court; Cyrus West, the father of the Atlantic telegraph; Rev. Henry Martyn Field, D.D., long associated with the New York Evangelist, and a well-known traveller and author, and Mary Elizabeth, married Joseph Frederick Stone.

The eldest son, David Dudley Field, was born at Haddam, February 13, 1805. His first instruction was from the common school, but when he was nine he commenced, under his father's guidance, to study Latin, Greek and mathematics. When he was fourteen, his father removed to Stockbridge, where he attended the academies of that place and Lenox, and at sixteen he entered Williams College, and was graduated in 1825. At once he began the study of law, in the office of Harmanus Bleecker, at Albany, and later entered the office of Henry and Robert Sedgwick, in New York city. In 1828 he was admitted to the bar of New York State, as attorney and solicitor, and in 1830 as counsellor, and soon gained first rank in his profession. He found the practice of law, which was under English influences, very complicated, slow and expensive, and so immediately began the careful study of and vigorous influence which penetrated his whole career, and added greatly to his honor for legal reforms. His first essay on the subject was published in 1839. In 1847 the New York legislature appointed him one of a commission to reform the legal practice of the state, and the results of the two years' labor were contained in two codes of procedure, civil and criminal. A large portion of the civil code was adopted by twenty-seven states and territories, and was the basis of the legal reform, established by the judicature acts of England, and the practice of several of the British colonies, including India. In 1857 the New York legislature appointed him the head of a new commission to codify the entire laws of the state, and in 1865 they reported a civil, penal and political code. The work of the two commissions devolved principally on Mr. Field, and covered the general laws of the United States, common and statute. The states of California and North and South Dakota were the only ones to adopt the laws in full. New York accepted the code of criminal procedure and the penal code, while the civil code has been twice passed by the legislature but has been defeated by the governor. In 1861 he was a member of the peace conference at Washington. In 1867 he brought a proposition for an international code before the British Association of Social Science, and this led to his preparing a work on the subject, including the principle of arbitration between nations, and called the "Outlines of an International Code," although it was a very complete treatise. It attracted widespread attention in Europe, and was translated into French and Italian. In 1873 he was one of the founders of an international association, to reform and codify the laws of nations, with the special purpose of arbitration instead of war. He was elected, in 1877, to the House of Representatives. In 1890 he presided at the great peace convention in London. In 1884 he published a collection of his speeches and arguments before the United States Supreme Court, and miscellaneous papers—a book of decided interest. In 1893 he read a paper, prepared by request, on American Progress in Jurisprudence and Law Reform, connected with the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. This was his last important public appearance, and I am fortunate in possessing an autograph copy of the paper, which he presented to my father, J. Hasbrouck von Sahler. Mr. Field was a man of great height and splendid presence, capable, broad and cultivated mind, courtly and gracious manners, and distinguished legal career, with many honors. Like all men, especially public men, he had his detractors, but that he did beyond human knowledge for his countrymen and others, by his almost life-long and active advocacy of legal reforms, must be credited to him. Although Mr. Field was in his old age and I in my boyhood when we became cordial friends, his manner was always most considerate, and I shall continue to hold our conversations, and his letters, in appreciation. Mr. Field had by his first wife, Jane Lucinda Hopkins, sister of Mrs. Mary Hopkins Goodrich, founder of the Laurel Hill Society, and a descendant of the Rev. John Sergeant, missionary to the Stockbridge Indians, two children, Dudley Field, who married Miss Laura Belden, and died without issue, and Jeanie Lucinda, who married Sir Anthony Musgrave of England, and who became the mother of Mr. Field's only grandchildren. "Eden Hill," Mr. Field's country place, at Stockbridge on Field hill, was one of the finest estates in the Berkshire hills, and not far from the mansion, is still standing the ruins of the old Sergeant homestead, built by the missionary in 1737, and for which he had much veneration, saying that it should never be removed during his lifetime. He suggested and wished me to write a magazine article about the same—"Memories of the Homestead of John Sergeant, Missionary to the Stockbridge Indians," which would include mention not alone of the Sergeants and the Indians, but many of the early families and noted visitors, and I had started the article at the time of Mr. Field's death, but have never completed it. On the site of the mission house, near the later Congregational Church, Mr. Field built a stone chimes-tower as a memorial of the mission, and gave a set of chimes, as a tribute from his grandchildren to their ancestor Sergeant, and in his will he provided for a chimes-ringer. Mr. Field traveled extensively abroad, receiving many pleasing attentions, and on his return from his last trip, in the spring of 1894, he took a severe cold, which resulted in his death on the the thirteenth of April, and he was laid to rest in the Stockbridge cemetery.

I will also mention briefly two other brothers.

Stephen Johnson Field was born July 11, 1815, at Haddam, and when he was thirteen went to the far east with his sister, and her husband, the Rev. Mr. Brewer, a missionary. On his return, in the fall of 1832, he entered Williams College, and was graduated in 1837, with the highest honors of his class. He studied law with his brother, David Dudley Field, and on his admission to the bar, a partnership was formed, which continued until the spring of 1848, when he went abroad for a year's traveling, and on his return, in the fall of 1849, he settled in California, where he held many public honors, the last being the office of chief justice of the state, and at the time of his death, in 1899, he was one of the associate justices of the United States Supreme Court.

Cyrus West Field, was born November 30, 1819, at Stockbridge and went to the common schools and academy there. As his ambition was to become a merchant, at fifteen he went to New York, and became a clerk for A. T. Stewart. At twenty-one he was established as a wholesale paper merchant, to which business he devoted himself with the exception of a trip abroad, for about twelve years, when he desired to retire from business, but the wishes of his junior partners were considered instead. At this time he traveled extensively in South America, where his companion was F. E. Church, N. A., the artist. In 1854 Mr. Field first thought of the Atlantic telegraph, which made him famous, but its history is too long to detail in this place. Undoubtedly the guiding hand of his brother, David Dudley, was of great assistance, although full credit must be given to Mr. Field, and the prominent men associated with him. He received many medals, the thanks of Congress, and other honors at home and abroad. Subsequently he was engaged in other large enterprises, among which was the construction of the elevated railroad in New York city. He died July 12, 1892.

The Field ancestry is interesting to trace through the past centuries, as it has produced many men of especial note, whose influences have been far spreading, but in this sketch I have been obliged to confine myself to a very few and to treat them briefly. The family are now represeuted in Stockbridge by the Rev. Dr. Field.

During 1790 the military claims were given definite location. The completion by the survey office of the state survey of the Military Tract, was at once followed in July, 1790, by the allotment of lands to the holders of the soldiers' claims and land patents were issued by the state to the names of the soldiers entitled to recognition. The transfer of claims at once increased, and the discovery by claim-buyers, that many ex-soldiers had duplicated their sales, brought the custom of annexing to transfers an affidavit of no prior sale. Beginning with July of this year, the transfers begin to state specifically the land conveyed, described by lot-number and name of township.

THE COREY FAMILY OF SOUTHAMPTON, AND SOUTHOLD, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

WRITTEN ALSO CORE, CORY, CORRY, CORRIE, ETC.

BY LUCY D. AKERLY, OF NEWBURGH, N. Y.

4. ISAAC[3] COREY (John[1]), of Southampton and Hashamomack, d. 8 Mch., 1702. His father, John Corey, Sr., gave him a deed of most of his possessions, on 6 July, 1680. (Southold Town Records, I., 115.)

Isaac was rated at Southampton in 1683, on £148, 3 shillings, and 4*d*. In 1686, as an inhabitant of that Town, he drew lot No. 50 of the Acobogue meadows, in connection with Henry Ludlam. He afterwards removed to the Town of Southold, where he owned over a hundred acres in 1695.

Digitized by Google

Letters of Administration on his estate were issued to his widow, Sarah, on 21 May, 1702. (Pelletreau's Early Long Island Wills.)

Sarah's maiden name was probably Ludlam, or Linde, but could hardly have been Conkling as some suppose. Her marriage to Isaac Corey in 1682, is recorded in the Mss. Southold Town Records. The original entry began "Ludle," and has apparently been rewritten "Lindley," at some later time.

It does not appear that Lindley was a Long Island name at that date, while the fact that Isaac Corey was appointed Administrator of the estate of Anthony Ludlam, with the widow Sarah Ludlam, and Anthony, Jr., makes it probable that Isaac Corey's wife, Sarah, was a daughter of Anthony and Sarah Ludlam.*

The following quaint receipt, might however, point to some connection with New London.

"Southold, July y^e^ 14:98.

Then Reseved of Isaac Corey the sum of twellfe pound curant mony of New England, which was a legasi left to them by their father, Daniel Comstock leat of New London, I say reseved by us:

Thomas Halliouck.
Samuel Youngs.

Witnesses Tho: Longworth.
Elizabeth Grover."†

Issue of Isaac and Sarah (Ludlam?) Corey:

i. ISAAC, JR.,[3] b. 1 Jan., 1683–4, d. 23 Feb., 1698–9, old style.

ii. SARAH, b. 23 Oct., 1685, m. 30 May, 1704, Thomas Reed, of Southampton, schoolmaster. Issue: all natives of Southampton:

1. Sarah[4] Reed, b. 1 Aug., 1706.
2. Ashur Reed, b. 18 Sept., 1711.
3. Thomas Reed, b. 23 Apl., 1714.
4. John Reed, b. 25 April, 1717.
5. Sybil Reed, b. 24 Jan., 1719–20.
6. Ame Reed, b. 8 Feb., 1722–3. She m. and had a son, Epenetus (surname not known to me) b. 3 Feb., 1746–7.
7. David Reed, b. 10 Aug., 1725.‡

iii. PHOEBE, named in the Census of 1698, but not in Liber E. of the Mss. Southold Records, with Isaac's other issue.

7. iv. DAVID, b. 16 Apl., 1690, d. 30 Oct., 1758.

v. DEBORAH, b. 1 Feb., 1693, m. doubtless on 7 Sept., 1715, Nathan Youngs (Zerubbabel?). Issue; from Liber E. Mss. Southold Town Records:

1. Deborah[4] Youngs, b. 22 Apl., 1716, d. 26 Nov., 1787.
2. Mary Youngs, b. 10 Nov, 1719.

3. Phoebe Youngs, b. 10 July, 1721.
4. Silas Youngs, b. 5 Jan., 1722–23.
5. Bethia Youngs, b. 24 Aug., 1726.

vi. JONATHAN, b. 4 Sept., 1697. "His brother David, who had inherited, most, if not all, of his father's real estate, felt it a pleasure, if not a duty, to bestow lands on his kindred." He gave Jonathan 48 acres of land, on 20 Sept., 1718–19. Jonathan was living at Southold, on 8 Oct., 1747; he m. Mary, probably da. of Jacob Conkling, 9 Jan., 1719–20. She d. (perhaps), 4 Sept., 1721. Jonathan's son, Isaac, d. in 1739, and another son d 24 Aug., 1731, æ. 1 year. Jonathan may have had a son Jonathan, who went to Orange Co., N. Y., as a marriage between Jonathan Kore of Goshen, and Rebecca, widow of John Conkling, is recorded at East Hampton, L. I., on 14 May, 1745.

The will of a Jonathan Corey, of Orange Co., dated 10 Dec., 1768, proved 11 Feb., 1770, mentions his wife, Patience; children: Elnathan, and Jonathan Corey; Mary Smith, Lois More, and Temperance Shepherd; grandsons: Jonathan, son of Abraham Shepherd, and John, son of Elnathan Corey.*

5. JACOB[3] COREY (John[1]), of Southold, d. 15 Feb., 1706. A list of Jacob's lands will be found in the Town Records. He was Overseer, and Patentee of Southold, in 1676. He was worth £92 in 1683, while three years later his household was composed of two males and five females.

Griffin in his Journal names Jacob Corey in his list of the thirteen earliest settlers of Southold. This oft-quoted list is not supported by any documentary evidence whatsoever, as has been ably shown by the late Mr. J. Wickham Case, and also by Dr. Epher Whitaker, in his History of Southold. The will of John Corey first, mentioned above, is proof that Jacob was of the second Corey generation.

He married, as early as 1672, Ann (Tuthill?), who died on the 11 April, 1739. Issue, named in the order given in the Census of 1698:

i. JACOB, JR.,[3] b. about 1673, he died suddenly in 1745, æ. 72. His wife probably d. 26 Feb., 1731. The deaths of two of his children are given in the Salmon Record. "Jacob Corey's son Jacob,[4] d. 5 May, 1717," "Jacob Corey's son Jacob, d. 31 May, 1724."

ii. ANN, JR., b. doubtless 8 Feb., 1678, d. 4 Aug., 1748, m. prob. about 1706, Nathaniel Dominy, b. 14 July, 1687, d. 5 May, 1768. Their children were:
   1. Mary[4] Dominy, b. in 1707.
   2. Anne Dominy.
   3. Phoebe Dominy, bapt. 13 March, 1712.

4. Nathaniel Dominy, b. 14 Dec. 1714, married Elizabeth Eyres, 30 Dec., 1736, d. 30 Mch., 1778.
5. John Dominy, bapt. 24 June, 1716.
6. Lydia Dominy, bapt., 7 June, 1719.*

iii. JEHOIDA.

iv. ABIGAIL, a witness in Southold, 28 April, 1708.

v. JOHN, prob. the John Corey, b. about Jan., 1686, d. 13 July, 1754, who m. 24 Feb., 1707, Dorothy Hobart. His will, dated 26 Dec., 1753, proved 24 Aug., 1754 (Liber 19, p. 88, N. Y. City Wills), names his wife Dorothy, children: Abijah, John, Elizabeth Lawes, Dorothea Dickinson; grandchildren: Bradick Corey, and Mary Wiggins. The latter was the only child of John Corey's da. Mary, who m. in 1748, John Wiggins, Jr., she d. 3 July, 1749, æ. 21 yrs. and 7 mths. Her husband's 2d wife was Widow Mary Brown, da. of Ensign John, and Mary (Corey) King.

Dorothy, da. of John Corey, d. 3 June, 1716. It is supposed in Moore's Indexes, and Griffin's Journal, that Jacob had a son Abraham. There seems to be no evidence of his existence. (See ante, John,[3] son of Abraham[2] Corey.)

6. ABRAHAM[2] COREY (Abraham,[1] John[1]), of Southold, b. by computation about 1680, m. prob. in 1706, Mary, da. of John Paine of Southold. She d. 21 Dec., 1717.†

(An Abraham Corey m. on the 12 Oct., 1731, Alice, prob. da. of John Bradick of Southold.)

Issue of Abraham and Mary (Payne) Corey:

i. MARY[3] (doubtless) b. 11 Jan., 1707, m. 25 June, 1724, Ensign John[3] King (Samuel,[2] Samuel,[2] William[1]), of Southold, b. 15 July, 1699, d. 28 June, 1753. Issue:

1. Mary[4] King, b. 27 Jan., 1726, m. (2nd?), May, 1746, Dr. Peter Brown, b. 11 Sept., 1719, d. 4 June, 1747. On 6 March, 1754, she became the 2nd wife of John Wiggins, Jr. (See above.)‡
2. John King, b. 18 Dec., 1727, d. 14 July, 1792, m. on 13 March, 1754, Abigail Brown; m. 2nd, on 10 March, 1770, Phoebe Youngs.

* East Hampton Church Records, and L. I. Traveler of 17 Dec., 1897.

† Thomas,[2] son of Thos. and Katherine (Harssant) Payne, came to Salem, Mass., from Wrentham, Suffolk, Eng., in 1637, with his wife Elizabeth and six children. Thos.[2] was b. in England, 11 Dec., 1586; his will dated 10:2d. mo., 1638, was proved in the Salem Quarterly Court, ——5mo., 1644. The inventories of both Elizabeth, his wife, and their son Peter, were dated Southold, L. I., 15 Sept., 1658. Peter's widow Mary was the 2d wife of Jeremiah Vail.

From the Southold Land Records, and the discovery of the unrecorded will of John Payne, it would appear that he was son of Peter, aforesaid, and not of Peter's brother John, as formerly supposed.

The said will, dated Southold, 3 Feb., 1706-7, proved 3 Oct., 1707, mentions "Wife Jemima, das. Mary Corye and Martha Case, sons Alsop, John, and Peter Paine, sons-in-law Abraham Corye, and Henry Case, Jr."

Jemima, da. of Jos. and Elizabeth (Preston) Alsop, gr.-da. of Wm. and Mary (Saybrook) Preston, was b. in New Haven, 10 Feb., 1670, and m. to John Payne, 2 Mch., 1691-2.

It is probable, (but not proven,) that Mary Corye and Martha Case were das. of John's 1st wife, Mary, b. 26 May, 1661, d. 25 Sept., 1690, and buried at Southold.

† Abraham Corey, Sr., who died in 1702, could not have been, as Savage asserts, the father of Margaret Lynde. née Corey. SEPULCHRAL STONES OF STATEN ISLAND.

CONTRIBUTED BY STUART C. WADE.

(Librarian in charge, Genealogical and Local History Department, New York Public Library, Lenox Branch.)

KETCHUM'S HILL, RICHMOND, S. I.

Dotted, as the map of Staten Island is, with the old burial grounds of families antedating the Revolution, and in danger, as these "graves of the households" are, at the hands of building speculators, stray cattle and land improvers, a gleaner after Time desires to preserve these sepulchral memorials in the columns of the NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD, knowing well their value to the genealogist and their utility to the "joiner" of patriotic societies.

Ketchum s Hill, situated about a mile from Richmond, holds on its apex an old burial ground, where British soldiers as well as embattled farmers await the Last Reveille. One stone has been uprooted by cattle, another is in fragments (but was pieced together and transcribed).

The names, dates and material facts on the 23 monumental stones existing March 11, 1900, are hereunder set forth. The fate of these memorials is not difficult to foresee, on a vacant farm, overrun by cattle.

GEORGE BANCROFT.

ADDRESS BY GEN. JAMES GRANT WILSON, AT THE CENTENNIAL OF THE HISTORIAN'S BIRTH, WORCESTER, MASS., OCTOBER 4, 1900.

The foremost American historians are generally ranked in the following order: Bancroft, Prescott and Motley, although Thomas Carlyle in conversation with your speaker claimed that to arrive at their proper standing their order should, in his judgment, be reversed. Said the Chelsea philosopher: "I have read Prescott's and Bancroft's books once, but this," pointing to an open volume on his library desk, "is my second reading of Motley's 'Dutch Republic,'—a grand history." A few weeks later, having presented a letter of introduction from Bancroft to Leopold Von Ranke, he remarked: "I am happy to welcome to Berlin a friend of the greatest of American historians." But whether George Bancroft's place is properly first or last among the Americans mentioned, we may all agree in believing that he is rightfully entitled to the centennial honors paid to his memory by his native town.

It is a curious circumstance that the four leading American historians should all have been natives of Massachusetts—William H. Prescott (1796-1859), George Bancroft (1800-1891), John Lothrop Motley (1814-1887), and Francis Parkman (1823-1893). Three of these writers inherited fortunes, while the fourth married a wealthy wife, so that they were all enabled to pursue their historical investigations without the necessity of providing for the support of families by feeding them, as Douglas Jerrold jocularly described it, out of an inkstand.

Bancroft was graduated from Harvard with honors at the early age of seventeen, winning during his course the particular favor and regard of President Kirkland, and three years later he received the degree of Ph.D. from the University of Gottingen. At this time he selected history as his special branch, naming as one of his reasons the desire to see if the observation of masses of men in action would not lead by the inductive method to the establishment of the laws of morality as a science. Removing to Berlin, he became intimate with Schleier, Savigny, Lappenberg, Alexander and William von Humboldt and Von Ense, and at Jena he made the acquaintance of Goethe, who in conversation with the young American was enthusiastic in his praise of Lord Byron, pronouncing him "the greatest of living poets," and expressing regret that he had never seen the New World. Bancroft studied at Heidelberg with the historian Schlosser, and in 1822 he returned to his native land, accepting for one year the position of tutor at Harvard.

Perhaps no better picture of Bancroft at the close of his student life could be presented than is contained in a note of introduction from the younger Humboldt to Pictel, of Geneva, which city the young American visited before returning to the United States: "Il prends la liberte mon respectable ami et confrere, de vous recommander un jeune American qui a faite d'excellentes etudes de philologie et d'histoire philosophique en Allemagne M. Bancroft est bien digne de vous voir de pres; il est l'ami de mon frere et il appartient a cette noble race de jeunes Americains qui trouvent que la vrai bonheur le l'homme dans la culture de l'intelligence."

Twelve years later Bancroft published the first volume of his "History of the United States," and in 1874 the tenth and concluding volume of his magnum opus appeared, the author during that period filling a place in President Polk's Cabinet; also, later, representing his country at the British and German courts. During the Franco-German war, while residing in Berlin, Bancroft celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation at Gottingen, and in reply to congratulations from Bismarck, then in the field, he sent him a letter dated September 30, 1870, saying:

"I was equally surprised and delighted that while you are tasked with the work of renovating Europe you yet found time to send me lately a friendly congratulation on my being spared so long. It is indeed a great happiness to survive until these times, when three or four men who love nothing so much as peace, and after long and hard service were only seeking to close their career in tranquility, win, during a war of defence, more military glory than the wildest imagination conceived, and in three months bid fair to bring the German hope of a thousand years to its fulfilment. So I gratefully accept the good-will conceded to my old age; for old age, which is almost always nearest to eternity, is this year mightiest on earth, this German war being conducted to its ends by the aged. You; to be sure, are young, but Roon must be classed among the Venerables; Moltke is within twenty-three days as old as I am, and your King in years and youthfulness excels us all. May I not be proud of my contemporaries? Retain for me your regard in the little time that remains for me."

Before Bancroft's departure from Berlin he was overwhelmed with honors. The Royal Academy gave him a farewell dinner, and the universities of Berlin, Heidelberg and Munich united in a parting tribute signed by fourscore and ten professors. The document says: "Your name is the intellectual possession of every one among us. You have contributed to the most complete understanding of the problems set for a free people in that, as one of the foremost historians, you have portrayed those immortal deeds which led to the rise of a great free State beyond the sea and which will find in every age a response in the hearts of free-minded men. We feel a just pride that you may be remembered among those who most thoroughly appreciate German science. We can recall with satisfaction your name to prove that as the representative of the United States you combined the spirit of true scientific procedure with the insight of a statesman."

In a communication from Washington, when past fourscore, to your speaker, the venerable historian writes: "I have your valued letter and have made one or two corrections in the article about myself which you kindly sent me. There is one point which was further reaching than is mentioned in the article. Great Britian, you will remember, for a long period refused to concede that her emigrants, whether from Great Britain or Ireland, to the United States, might throw off their allegiance to the mother country and become citizens of the United States. The principle involved in this question was the one I had to discuss with the Government of Prussia, and in a treaty obtained the formal recognition of the expatriation at the will of the individual emigrant. A certain degree of supremacy still attaching to several States, I negotiated with them all, one by one, a corresponding treaty. England watched the course of negotiations, resolving to conform to the principle which Count Bismarck might adopt for Prussia. It was this treaty with the German powers which in fact settled the question for Great Britain, who immediately gave up the claim to perpetual allegiance and accepted for its own dominions the principle which Prince Bismarck had accepted for Germany; so that the treaty with Bismarck was in fact a settlement of the whole question with Great Britain."

In another letter to your speaker Mr. Bancroft says: "Great Britain had raised a doubt as to the interpretation of the treaty settling the northwestern boundary of the United States. I, who had been a member of the Polk Cabinet when the treaty was framed, and who, as Minister to England after the formation of the treaty, saw the first beginning of the attempt in England to change the line in a way very much to the interest of Great Britain, successfully prevented the progress of the attempt. Mr. Seward had with England agreed on Switzerland as an arbitrator, and had further agreed that the arbiter might make a compromise boundary. This was a kind of confession that would naturally lead the arbiter to a compromise decision, which might grievously offend neither party. Soon after Mr. Seward's death, I, who was then Minister at Berlin, wrote to the Government that where each party consented to a compromise, a compromise was pretty certain to be the decision of the arbiter, and that if they would adhere strictly to the point that the arbiter should have nothing to do but to decide the meaning of the treaty, and would agree to the King of Prussia as the arbiter, I believed that Prussia would not be swayed by any family connection, but would certainly deliver a righteous verdict, and I recommended that that course be adopted. General Grant's Cabinet, which followed Mr. Seward, never for themselves entertained the idea of a compromise, and they adopted my proposal of referring the matter to the King of Prussia. The argument, and the reply to the argument of Great Britain, were written, every word of them, by myself."

The settlement of the Oregon question, which brought us perilously near war with the mother country, was Mr. Bancroft's last public service. At the opening of the argument submitted to the German Emperor in December, 1871, he said: "The treaty of which the interpretation is submitted to Your Majesty's arbitrament was ratified more than a quarter of a century ago. Of the sixteen members of the British Cabinet which framed and presented it for the acceptance of the United States, Sir Robert Peel, Lord Aberdeen and all the rest but one (Mr. Gladstone) are no more. The British Minister at Washington who signed it is dead. Of American statesmen concerned in it, the Minister at London, the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State and every one of the President's constitutional advisers except one have passed away. I alone remain, and after finishing the threescore years and ten that are the days of our years, am selected by my country to uphold its rights." Nine and twenty years have passed since these pathetic words were spoken by the American Minister. During that period he and the single survivor of Sir Robert Peel's Cabinet have followed their distinguished contemporaries—Bancroft in 1891 and the gifted Gladstone seven years later.

Mr. Bancroft's well-appointed Berlin residence on the Thiergarten was, said Ranke, the most popular house in the German capital, for there all classes could meet together in friendly intercourse. Statesmen, scholars, soldiers, poets, artists and men of science met at his house and table. Bismarck and Von Moltke were not infrequent guests, and there could be seen the diplomatic circle and such men as Dorner, Droyson, Helmholtz, Mommsen and Von Ranke. Bancroft often rode on horseback in company with the great Chancellor, and visited him at Varzin, where no other member of the Diplomatic Corps was ever received. "To this day," said Professor Ranke in 1883, "I have never ceased to regret the departure from Berlin of my friend George Bancroft." The American, speaking of the German historian, said he recalled the description Johnson gave of Garrick, "as the cheerfulest man of his age." While he prefers to burn the midnight oil, continuing his labors until 1 or 2 in the morning, I have always preferred to work by daylight, doing, like Sir Walter Scott, much of my writing before breakfast. In Summer I was often at my desk before 6 o'clock. My afternoons and evenings are devoted to exercise, reading and society. For fifty years it has been my habit to spend several hours of each day in the open air, and to that practice I chiefly attribute the preservation of my mental and physical health to nearly fourscore and ten. In answer to your speaker's inquiry he said: "No, I do not recall any historian except my friend Von Ranke, who continued to work beyond eighty-nine, and but few scholars that have reached that age—Sophocles, Fontenelle and Chevreul—being three instances which occur to me at the moment."

When nearly fourscore and ten, and after he had abandoned his favorite exercise of riding on horseback, your speaker accompanied Mr. Bancroft on an afternoon walk from his house in Washington. Arriving in Georgetown, where we turned after a half-hour's stroll, and thinking the venerable man might be weary, his companion remarked that perhaps they had better take a passing street car and ride back. To this suggestion the still vigorous veteran promptly replied, "Are you fatigued, sir?" and so they completed their three or more miles' walk. They chanced to meet again that evening at a dinner table, when the historian, none the worse for his long walk, merrily related how he had tired out his young New York friend, who became fatigued and wished to ride back. A few days later your speaker was one of a small circle who enjoyed listening to Mr. Bancroft's reminiscences of Byron, Bunsen, Goethe, Guizot, Humboldt, Macaulay and many other celebrated men with whom he was acquainted during the first half of the century.

The eminent statesman, scholar and historian died in his Washington residence, January 17, 1891. An official announcement of the event was made by the President of the United States, and the Senate, on motion of Senator Hoar, adjourned in order that its members might attend his funeral. Among the many tributes received by Mr. Bancroft's son was the following telegram from the Emperor of Germany, transmitted through Count Arco Valley, the German Minister at Washington:

"Sir: His Majesty, the Emperor and King, remembering the relation of friendship which for many years existed between His Majesty the late Emperor William and the late Hon. George Bancroft as Minister of the United States to Berlin, has directed me to express to you, and to your family, his most sincere sympathy with the great loss which has fallen upon you and your country."

The funeral was held at St. John's church, and was attended by the President and Mrs. Harrison, the Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps, and chief Government officials. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, one being from the President of the United States, and another, placed on the coffin, was the gift of William the Third, Emperor of Germany.

Von Ranke, shortly before his death, expressed a desire that his large and valuable library should be acquired by the Government. The historian's family and the German literary public confidently expected that the Prussian Government would purchase the collection. There was delay in doing so, and it was ultimately bought by an American university. Mr. Bancroft also wished that his collection, particularly rich in historical manuscripts, should be purchased by the Library of Congress. It was offered to the authorities for $75,000. The same delay usually attending government action in such affairs occurred, and the Bancroft collection, after several years, was sold to the trustees of the Lenox Library of New York for a larger sum than that for which it had been offered to the nation. The library is famous for its rare Americana, including a large collection of English, French and German manuscripts, the latter numbering several hundred journals, reports, muster rolls, and a large mass of correspondence relating to the Hessian troops that fought for George the Third in the Revolutionary War.

Like his successor in Berlin, Bayard Taylor, Mr. Bancroft spoke German almost without accent, and in his manner and dress often suggested a German. He was frequently seen wearing a Prussian military cap, with the straight visor, and always wore such a cap when walking or on horseback. He was fond of reading and speaking German, and was much attached to the stalwart servant he brought back from Berlin, who had been in the Prussian army. By his will he left the faithful Hermann a bequest of $365 per annum.

It is of course to his magnum opus, on which he labored more or less during a period of half a century, that Bancroft's chief claim to remembrance rests. It is written with what Edward Burke describes "as the cold neutrality of an impartial judge," and may be consulted in all the principal libraries of Europe. This noble work has held, and will continue to hold, a high place not only in American literature, but in that of the world, as its authority is everywhere recognized, and it can be read in many languages. Perhaps the highest eulogy ever passed upon the work was by that sturdy Englishman, John Bright, who said: "The study which it gives or offers, and the lessons which it teaches, surpass, to my mind, those that I have derived from or found in any other book of history."

Since Bancroft's departure for the voiceless land, there has been completed in the nation's capital the grandest building ever erected for the conservation of books. In the Congressional Library may be seen many beautiful works of art, among them a painting by one of the leading artists of the land, representing History. Two tablets are introduced in the picture, on which are inscribed the names of fourteen of the most illustrious historians of the past two thousand years, on the adamant of whose fame the stream of Time beats without injury. In that brilliant bead-roll is included your townsman Bancroft. Of him may be said, in the words written of Fitz-Greene Halleck by another son of Massachusetts:

"He sleeps: he cannot die!
As evening's long-drawn sigh,
Lifting the rose-leaves on his peaceful mound,
Spreads all their sweets around,
So, laden with his song, the breezes blow
From where the rustling sedge
Frets our rude ocean's edge
To the smooth sea beyond the peaks of snow.
His soul the air enshrines, and leaves but dust below!"

By Frank J. Conkling, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Should one become interested in the study of this family, they would find the same eccentricities, or variations in nomenclature, as are found in many of the family names of our early settlers. They would discover, whichever way the scribes of colonial times, or decision of the owner, had adorned the spelling of the name, that in tracing back to the fountain-head or source in this country, the line would, if brought within the bounds of Colonial New York, lead them to one of two sturdy Huguenots, who, thinking to improve life's fortunes, and, no doubt, to exercise religious freedom, packed their belongings and set sail under the flag of Holland to the new Dutch colony so recently established in the New World, and named New Amsterdam. These two emigrants were Nicholas and Francois Dupuis, who came at different times, the former from Artois and the latter from Calais, which may not mean, as the records would infer, that they were from separate places; for when it is understood that Artois was a Province located in the "Department of Calais," a division of France bordering on the Netherlands, it may be seen how possible it is that both were from the same neighborhood, if not, indeed, of the same family, and if proof was needed of a relationship, good circumstantial evidence would be found in the fact that Francois had a son Nicholas, evidently named for the senior Nicholas, who, with his wife, stood as god-parents to the infant when baptized in the Old Dutch Church of New York, October 17, 1686.*

While Nicholas and Francois Dupuis appear to have been the ancestors of the several generations in the Province of New York following the advent in New Amsterdam of those worthy individuals, it seems equally certain that they were not the only emigrants of the name to this country. Rev. Mr. Baird, in his "Huguenot Emigration to America," Vol. II., discovers among the French settlers of Oxford, Mass., in 1691, the names: Elie (Elias), and Jean (John) Dupuis; the former of whom he conceives to be the father of the latter, whom he believes is identical with a John he finds in 1705, and again in 1729, as an elder of the French Church in Boston. The will of this John was made January 4, 1734, probated June 9, 1743, naming sons, John, Daniel, Charles, Isaac and Elias.

In the same volume may be found an item of evident relation to this family that was gleaned from English records by Mr. Baird, whose research for Huguenot history has certainly been very exhaustive. He says that: "Elie Dupeux," seaman, of Port des Barques, on the coast of Saintonge (France), fled to England about 1681, where he was naturalized March 21, 1682, and his family recorded as follows: "Elias DuPus with Mary his wife, and Elias, John, Mary and Susanna, their children." Then on another page, evidently speaking of the same individual, he says: "He and his wife Elizabeth with their four children, occupied one of the French houses in Oxford." It would, therefore, appear that Elias, having lost his wife, Mary, married again and came with his family to America, thus becoming the head of a distinct lineage, some branches of which spell the name Dupee.

Mr. Baird finds yet another Protestant of this family, one who early joined a French colony on the James River, in Virginia. He was Barthelemy Dupuy, a captain of the "Household Guards" of Louis XIV., King of France. Disregarding the advice of the King, who promised him a substantial reward to abjure, he fled with his wife, after the revocation of the "Edict of Nantes," across the border to Germany, where they remained about fourteen years, going to England in 1699, from which country they soon after came to America.

The records of the Protestant French Church in New York City* furnish us with a Jean Du Puy, who, with his wife, Anne, had the following children baptized, viz.: Jeane (Jane), Feb. 15, 1715; Jean, Oct. 27, 1717; Daniel, May 10, 1719; Thomas, Sept. 11, 1720; Francois, Nov. 8, 1721; Paul, July 17, 1723, and Isabelle, Sept. 6, 1727. He became quite prominent as a physician, and died in July, 1744. His will, May 27, 1741,† mentions: wife, Ann; sons, John, Daniel, Francis; daughters, Hester and Jane. Son John died in New York in 1745‡, leaving an only child, Anna Sophia. Francis died before 1750 without issue.§ According to a series of pedigrees in the "American Ancestry," the widow (Anne Chardavoine) and son Daniel removed to Philadelphia, where Daniel married and continued his family lineage. The "Series of Pedigrees" claim Doctor John to have been a native of France, born in 1679, coming to New York via the Island of Jamaica, where he lived in childhood. His tombstone is preserved in the wall of the vestry room of Trinity Church.

The records of the same French Church also furnish us with an Andrew Du Puy. He and his wife, Jane Archanbeau, had their daughter Janne baptized there July 14, 1706. It was about two years before that this couple were granted license to marry,* and in October, 1703, Andrew Dupuy petitioned the Governor of New York† for new papers for his sloop Jacob, he having lost the original papers in a shipwreck. Not finding Andrew again, it may be safe to conjecture that he suffered another shipwreck, thereby discontinuing a lineage of the name.

As but comparatively few of the French inhabitants became Protestants, it is reasonable to suppose that many of the family of Dupuis remained loyal to the Roman faith. Among these we find the very first bearing that name of record in America, and, singularly, though a man of position, he appears to us in a part of the country almost unknown to white men, in the land of the Onondagas.‡ He was Sieur Dupuys, and we locate him, in the year 1656, with a company of Frenchmen, over which he had command, at a place called by the Indians Ganentaa,§ situate near the head of Lake Onondaga, at or near Syracuse, where he had formed a settlement under orders of the French Governor at Quebec, Canada. The Onondaga Indians had been converted a short time previously to the Catholic religion, and promised the new settlement protection; but in less than two years Dupuys and his company, learning that they were to be exterminated through the machinations of other Indian tribes, secretly made their escape by water to Lake Ontario, thence down the St. Lawrence to Quebec; thus ending a scrap of history of peculiar interest to a locality that the white man did not again undertake to settle for more than one hundred years. We are not told the given name of this adventurous commander but finding other Dupuys in and around Quebec a few years later, it is natural to presume that they were related, if not, indeed, descendants of Sieur Dupuys. It is interesting, to say the least, that among these Canadian Dupuys we are permitted to find the names of both Nicholas and Francois; then again, Moses and Paul will show a further family resemblance when compared with the family of Nicholas of New York, but where the connection is, this paper will not undertake to solve.

The next mention of these Canadian Dupuys was of Nicholas. He was also apparently in the employ of the French Government, and one of a company sent out from Quebec to the Western Country in search of copper and other minerals. They were encamped at Sault Ste. Marie, then an Indian village in the present State of Michigan, from which place they made a report,‖ bearing date 14th June, 1671. It was sixteen years later that Paul Dupuy, "Councillor of the King," with a company of Frenchmen, having subdued the Indians, took, possession of the Seneca country. Their declaration,¶ was "Done at the Village of Totiakton, the largest of the Seneca villages," on the 19th of July, 1687.

probably, this same Paul Dupuis, who married in 1668 Jeanne Gouillard; also Francois, born 1634, m. 1670 Georgette Richer; Jacques, born 1657, m. 1687 Madelene Prevost; Louis, born 1658, m. 1688 Barbara Debian. These were all recorded as of Quebec except Jacques, who was of Three Rivers. All had children recorded except Paul. Francois had two sons baptized, viz.: Rene, 1671, and Moise (Moses), 1673, the latter of whom came down to Albany for a wife, where, as a matter of fact, he was residing in July, 1697, when he married Annetje Christiaanse of that place. The records of the Reformed Dutch Church there give Canada as his place of birth. They seem to have settled at Champlain, and, according to the Genealogical Dictionary mentioned, had eight children baptized. He seems to have been the parent of two other children, viz.: Jan Baptiste and Johannes, who were baptized in Albany in 1696, the year previous to his marriage to Miss Christiaanse.

So much for the outside lines of this family, which, being disposed of, do not appear to affect or confuse the main purpose of this paper, viz.: the Hudson River Depews.

EDITORIAL.

IT is exceedingly gratifying to students of American history, to note that, amid the mass of "pub. docs." issued by the various State governments in our Union (most of them of more profit to the State Printer than to anyone else), there are some of great historical value. In our own State, the State Historian, Mr. Hugh Hastings, is fully vindicating by his work the wisdom of his appointment to that responsible office; and from the following, published in the N. Y. Times of Nov. 18, 1900, we learn that he has "made a great haul" of historical matter of the utmost importance to early New York history.

Especially interesting will be the matter found at the Hague, by Dr. Corwin, relating to the establishment of an independent Classis (or Cœctus) by the American Churches of the Reformed Dutch faith—a movement which, about the middle of the last century, convulsed the whole establishment, and was a "burning queston" in the Dutch Church—dividing congregations and even families and old friendships, in a manner which was sad, and, at times, humorous in its manifestation:

"To New York State must be given the credit for obtaining the original historical documents relating to this section which have for many generations been in the archives of Holland. The acquisition of these records from the Classis of Amsterdam is the State's latest achievement. The volumes of them, prepared under the direction and supervision of State Historian Hugh Hastings, have gone to the printer. The matter was edited by Dr. E. P. Corwin, who was sent to Holland originally by the Synod of the Dutch Church, and found there a great mass of matter relating to New York, especially to the churches, for 178 years—1631 to 1810. The value of this find can only be estimated by the student of history.

J. Romeyn Brodhead was sent as State Agent under act of May 2, 1839, to England, France and Holland to secure copies of all desirable documents for preservation in New York. In 1845 Mr. Brodhead, in a report to Gov. Wright, stated that the records of the West India Company had been sold in 1821 for old paper. In all he expended about $12,000 of the public moneys, and in his researches at The Hague passed over a mass of stuff, assuming that all that was of interest to New York State was lost early in the present century.

In the material found by Dr. Corwin are minutes of several sessions of the Cœtus, or early American classis, subsequent to 1754, representing some of the most important acts of that body in connection with their assumption of independence. The minutes of several sessions are still missing. There are many lengthy and important papers bearing upon special local and personal themes, which will clear up not a few obscure points in the history of the last century. By dove-tailing what Mr. Brodhead got with this newly-discovered matter, a complete history of the Church in New York from earliest colonial times can be obtained.

The minutes of the Synod of North Holland begin in 1572, ten years before those of the Classis of Amsterdam, and reaching into the days of the Spanish tyranny. The minutes of all the particular Synods of the Northern Netherlands, from 1572 to 1620, have recently been collected and printed, in eight volumes.

Dr. Corwin began his examination of the minutes of the Synod of North Holland with the year 1621, some part of his researches being carried on at The Hague. He examined all volumes available, covering a period of 190 years."

THE New Paltz Independent publishes an article written by Ralph Le Fever, its editor, relative to the blending of the French and Dutch at New Paltz, which is an important contribution to the solution of a much disputed question relating to the early history of Ulster County.

Mr. LeFever says that the first young man of Dutch origin to marry a Huguenot maiden and to locate within the bounds of the patent of New Paltz was Jacob Klaarwater, who belonged to the Bontecoe branch of the Klaarwater family, and who married Marie Deyo, a Huguenot girl, in 1698. That on Sunday, the 3d day of July, 1699, they presented their first-born son, Abraham, for baptism, and he was christened by the French pastor of the Huguenot Church at New Paltz.

Abraham Deyo, the Huguenot patentee, married Elsje Klaarwater, a Dutch girl, in 1702, she being a sister of Jacob Klaarwater of Bontecoe.

Then Jacob Freer, a Huguenot, married Altje VanWeyen, a Dutch maiden, in 1705.

Hendricus Deyo, another Huguenot, married Margaret VanBummell in 1706.

In the next generation there were other intermarriages of the Dutch and the Huguenots, but such marriages, Mr. LeFever says, were far fewer than are generally supposed, and the Dutch and the French did not intermarry to any great extent until a later period.

It is to be hoped that the editor of the Independent will collate all his articles in some permanent form, as they are valuable and interesting; and no one living in Ulster County is more familiar with the early traditions than is he.

OBITUARY.

BIXBY, ROBERT FORSYTH, a Life Member of this Society, since Dec. 9, 1881, died at his residence in this city, 16th Oct., 1900. He was the son of John M. Bixby and Mary Poe, the father being a native of Fairfield, Conn., where he was born 13 Feb. 1800, dying in N. Y. City, 21 Nov.. 1876; and the mother, a native of the South, born 12 April, 1825, and dying 27 Oct., 1854. The son, Robert Forsyth, was born 14 Apl., 1850, at Augusta, Ga.; grad. at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., 1870; at the Columbia College Law School, 1872; was engaged in real estate and in practice of law in this city, being at one time a partner with Mayor Van Wyck; and was never married. He was a member of the following organizations: The Union League Club, the Union Club, the N. Y. Bar Association, the University Club, the Downtown Association, the Alpha Delta Phi (College) Fraternity, Sons of the Revolution, the Seawanhaka Cor. Yacht Club, the City Club, the N. Y. Athletic Club, and the American Geographical Society. His estate, including large and valuable holdings of land, orange groves, etc., in Florida and elsewhere, was valued at $650,000, and his personal estate at $30,000. He inherited a half of his father's large fortune in 1876, including the property at Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, leased by the Union League Club. The Club has been paying the estate a rental of $12,000 a year for the property, but for the renewal of the lease for twenty-one years additional from May 1 next will be required to pay $25,000 a year, a striking instance of the increase of values in real estate on this island. He had a sister, Grace S. Bixby, who, several years after her father's death, married Casimir I. Mankowski.

She has been ill since 1882. Her husband and two sons reside at the Sele House, Rochester, England.

FIELD, OSGOOD, a Corresponding Member of this Society, who died in Paris, France, November 3d, 1900, was the second of seven children of Moses Field and his wife Susan Kittredge (née Osgood), and was born at No. 482 Broadway, New York City, 14th November, 1823. His father, Moses Field, was born 4 Oct., 1779, and died December 21st, 1833; his mother was the daughter of Hon. Samuel Osgood, who was under Washington's administration the first Postmaster-General and Commissioner of the Treasury of the United States, and Member of the Cabinet. She was born 12 April, 1795; married to Mr. Field 17 May, 1821; died May, 1834. Their children were: (1) Maunsell Bradhurst Field, b. 22 March, 1822, Asst. Sec'y of U. S. Treasury under the Lincoln Administration, and, later, Judge of the 2d Dist. Court of N. Y.; died 1875; (2) Osgood Field, b. 14 Nov., 1823, the subject of our sketch; (3) Franklin Clinton Field, born 5 Aug., 1825, the only survivor of the family; (4) Susan Maria, b. 13 Aug., 1827, d. Dec. 30, 1893; (5) Caroline Matilda, b. 11 March, 1829; (6) Moses Augustus, b. 15 April, 1831; (7) William Hazard, b. 15 Aug., 1833.

Osgood Field's paternal grandfather was born 1731; married, 8 June, 1763, Lydia (dau. Wm.) Hazard, of Jamestown, R. I., and d. 1815; his wife d. 15 Jan., 1795.

Osgood Field's father, Moses, was a merchant in this city (Bradhurst & Field), where he settled about 1800; retired from business about 1820, and traveled in Europe.

The Hon. Samuel Osgood, maternal grandfather of Osgood Field, married, (1) 4 Jan., 1775, Martha Brandon, who d. without issue in 1778; he m. (2) Maria (dau. of Daniel) Bowne, of Flushing, and widow of Walter Franklin, of Franklin Square, New York City. The Franklin mansion, from which Mr. Osgood took his wife, was, at that time, probably the finest residence in the city; and his acquaintance with Mrs. Franklin began by his calling upon her to learn if it was possible that it could be procured for President Washington as a residence, which he occupied soon after. He found her engaged in teaching her three little girls—who afterwadrs became, respectively, the wives of De Witt Clinton, George Clinton and John Norton. At a future visit Mr. O. became engaged to Mrs. Franklin, whom he married 24 May, 1786.

Osgood Field, our recent associate, received his education at the French boarding school of the Brothers Peregnet, traveled for awhile in his own country, and then sailed for London, Eng., where he established himself in the commission business; but subsequently retired from business and settled in Rome, where other members of his family were then residing.

In 1880, Mr. Field married Katherine Roxana Parker, daughter of Milton Parker, of Utica, N. Y., and cousin of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan. Their home for many years was in the Palazzo Colonna—and they spent several months, annually, between Rome, London, Paris, and the various Spas of Europe. It was on his return to Rome that Mr. Field was seized with pneumonia, at Paris, where he died, November 3d, 1900. He had survived most of his contemporaries, and his last visit to New York was about ten years ago.

He always retained a lively interest in American affairs, was a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London, Eng., a member of the N. Y. Historical Society, Corresponding Member of the New Eng. Hist.-Gen. Soc'y, and, since 1882, of this Society. In 1895 he compiled and printed privately a Record and Genealogical History of the Fields of Sowerby, near Halifax, Eng., and of Flushing, N. Y., with some notices of the families of Underhill, Bowne, Burling, Hazard and Osgood.

He left no issue. His cousin, the late Hickson Field, whose daughter is the Princess Brancaccio, also lived in Rome while Mr. Field lived there, and no American families were better known in the Eternal City. The families of Jay, Pell, Schieffelin and Osgood are among those related to Mr. Field. Mr. Field was interred in Rome, in a plot which he purchased some years since.

KING.—On Wednesday, 23 May, 1900, in Newport, R. I., at the home of her son-in-law, Captain Charles Herbert Stockton, U. S. N., Mrs. Eliza Antonia, daughter of Antoine and Eliza (Smith) Lentilhon and widow of the late Peter Vandervoort King. Funeral services in Grace Church Chantry, New York City, and interment in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

MOWER, MANDEVILLE, a Life Member of this Society since 1896, died suddenly on October 28th, 1900, at his home, No. 673 Lexington Avenue, this city. Born in 1836, he was the second of four children, two sons and two daughters, the issue of Thomas Gardner Mower and Sarah Ann, daughter of John Hardman Entwistle, of New York City. Of these four children, the two daughters are the only ones now living. Mr. Mower died unmarried. He was a graduate of Columbia College, Class of 1856, and spent his life in semi seclusion, devoting himself to the study of plants, of which he grew quite a variety in his own rooms. The quality of public-spiritedness was unquestioned in him; and though he took no active part in the executive work of the various societies of which he was a member, yet his interest in their welfare was manifested in many ways. The following is a list of the organizations of which he was a Life Member. Assoc. of the Alumni, Columbia Coll.; Veteran Corps of Artillery, Military Soc. of the War of 1812: the Military Order of Foreign Wars of the U. S.; American Museum of Natural History; the New York Historical Society; the American Historical Association; the St. Nicholas Society of the City of New York, and the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.

Mr. Mower's father (through whom the ancestry goes back to Samuel, who came from Devonshire, Eng., and settled in Malden, Mass., in 1714), was a distinguished surgeon in the United States Army during the War of 1812. He was a graduate of Harvard College in 1810, received his degree of Doctor of Medicine from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1814, served throughout the War of 1812 with the Ninth Infantry, and died in 1853 the senior Surgeon in the U. S. A.. which position he had occupied for many years. His correspondence with men who stood high in the political and military service of the country was extensive, and many of these letters have been published by Mr. Mandeville Mower in the New York Times and The Home Journal, to both of which he was a frequent contributor on historical subjects.

Mr. Mower's death removes from our list of members a name valued and honored; and his absence from our meetings, at which he was a regular and constant attendant, will be noted with sorrow.

PAUL, FULTON, was elected a member of this Society October 12, 1894. He was born in the City of Hudson, in the County of Columbia, on the 17th day of April, 1841, and died there on Saturday, June 16th, 1900. His ancestor was Richard Paul, one of the Puritan settlers of Massachusetts Bay, whose wife was Margarie Turner of Cohannet. His great-grandfather, Samuel Paul, was a captain in both the Provincial and Colonial forces. His mother Catherine Fulton, was descended from the Fultons of County Derry, Ireland. Mr. Paul was educated at the Bradbury Classical Institute at Hudson, The Barstow Classical School at Newton, and The Williston Seminary at Easthampton, Massachusetts, where he fitted for Yale, which he was prevented from entering because of the failure of his health.

In 1861 he went to the East Indies, and while in China, entered the employ of Russel and Company of Shanghai, as assistant superintendent of the Yangtse Navigation Company of which they were the principal owners, and for them made nine trips to Hankow, seven hundred and fifty miles up the Yangtse, which was as far as foreigners were then allowed to go. Resigning his position, he went to Japan, where he was the guest of the United States Minister, Gen. Robert H. Pruyn. In 1863 he started for home, traveling by way of Cochin-China and Egypt. From Alexandria, he went by caravan to Jerusalem, and from Joppa to Constantinople, where he was entertained by the then United States Minister, Col. Morris. Pursuing his homeward journey, he visited Italy, Switzerland, Germany and France.

In 1864 he went to the front as Provisional Pay Master for the re-enlisted soldiers then at Harper's Ferry. In 1870 he was one of the party who crossed the continent on the first through railroad train over the Union Pacific, in company with the officers of that road and the representatives of the Boston

Board of Trade. In 1872 he was Assistant Secretary of State under the Hon. G. Hilton Scribner. In 1873 Governor Dix of New York, appointed Mr. Paul to the position of Deputy State Treasurer, and in 1875 he was appointed by President Grant United States Consul at Trinidad. In 1882 he was transferred by President Arthur to the Consulship of the United States at Odessa on the Black Sea, and in 1884 President Arthur appointed him Consul General of the United States to Roumania, with headquarters at Bucharest. In 1885 he represented the United States at the opening of the Hungarian Exposition at Buda-Pesth. He resigned his position in 1886 and returned to Hudson. Shortly after his return, he was the guest of the Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad on a tour of inspection of the properties of that road and of the Oregon Navigation Company.

On November 18th, 1889, he married Margaretta, daughter of Christopher Myer, a native of Hanover, Germany, and the proprietor of an extensive rubber works which bore his name. Mr. and Mrs. Paul made their home at Hudson, where they entertained in the most charming manner.

Mr. Paul was President of the Old Cemetery Association at Hudson, and of the new Cedar Park Cemetery of that place, and took the most active interest in both. He was a man of high personal character, with strict notions of honor, of most urbane and charming manners and a loyal friend.

The above sketch of the life of the Hon. Fulton Paul, one of the members of this Society, was prepared by Judge Clearwater of Kingston, N. Y.

TWO obituaries of honored and recently deceased members—viz.: GEN. WILLIAM S. STRYKER and HON. ALSOP KING—having been delayed by circumstances beyond our control, will be presented in the April number of the RECORD, both accompanied by portraits. Editor.

SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS.

THE opening meeting for the season of 1900–1901 was held in the Hall of the Society on Friday evening, October 12th. The President announced the death of the First Vice-President, Dr, Samuel Smith Purple, and referred feelingly to his long and faithful services in connection with the Society. An obituary and biographical sketch of Dr. Purple will be found in another part of this issue. The paper of the evening was read by Mr. Josiah Collins Pumpelly, entitled "Philip Freneau, the Revolutionary Poet," and Mr. Isaac Lawrence, in moving the vote of thanks, read a poem by Philip Freneau.

The meeting of November 9th was graced with the presence of Mr. Isaac Townsend Smith, who read a most interesting paper upon the "Early Maritime Life of New England, by an Octogenarian." In his address Mr. Smith gave several graphic and spirited accounts of some of the engagements in the War of 1812, and read from contemporary English newspapers extracts bearing upon the subject. At the close of the address the Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner and several others related anecdotes of the war, which they had gathered from authentic sources. The President announced the death of the following members: Robert Forsyth Bixby, Mandeville Mower, and Gen. William Scudder Stryker, and referred briefly to the character and services of each. The Committee on Nominations, for the selection of candidates for Trustees for the term of 1901–1904, was then appointed by the Chair, according to the revised By-Laws, and directed to report later. The candidates selected by the Committee were Henry R. Stiles, M.D., Thomas G. Evans and Bowen W. Pierson, all returned.

The regular meeting for December was held on the evening of Friday, December 14th, and a large attendance of members and friends filled the hall to listen to an address, "The Order of the Cincinnati in France," by Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner. Comte de Sahune de Lafayette was the guest of the Society, and the delegates to the General Convention of the Society of the Cincinnati occupied reserved seats as guests of the speaker. At the close of the paper Mr. Isaac Lawrence delivered an address to the Count of Lafayette in French, and others spoke at some length upon the topic under discussion.

Some of the more important proceedings of the Board of Trustees for the same period are as follows: Edwin H. Weatherbee elected to the Board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Samuel Burhans, Jr.; the amendment of the By-Laws, Art. V., Section 1, raising the entrance fee from five to ten dollars from January 1st, 1901; a new order of proceedings for the monthly meetings of the Society, in which the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting is omitted, and the salient points of the procedings set forth in announcements by the President. The minutes are to be kept regularly by the Secretary, and open to members at all times; the reading of them is perpetually dispensed with, unless called for by a member. Mr. Silas Wodell elected to fill a vacancy in the Board caused by the death of Dr. Samuel S. Purple, and the election of Mr. Henry Pierson Gibson as Treasurer to succeed Mr. Pierson, resigned.

During this period the following have been elected to membership in the Society: Henry Lloyd Herbert, Theodore Frelinghuysen Jackson, Harry Dugan Spears, Charles Fowler, Earle Phineas Huff, Alexander Pringle Bell, Arkell Roger McMichael, M.D., Samuel Clinton Van Dusen, Henry Clinton Carter, Charles Augustus Hanna, William Austin Macy, M.D., Albert Eben Colfax, John Stillwell Applegate, Walter Gilman Berg, Charles Moore Bleeker, Mrs. Catherine Schuyler Baxter, Adrian Hoffman Joline, Mrs. William E. Bird, Jr., Charles D. Stickney, John Stewart Durand, Charles A. Gould, Charles Hobby Pond, Walter Seth Logan, Herbert Leslie Terrell, Andrew Howard Hopping, Frederic Grosvenor Goodridge, Bertrand Faugères Bell, Cornelius Berrien Mitchell, John Stewart Kennedy, Abraham G. Mills, Bayard Fisher Foulke, Charles Ferdinand Ostrander, G. Willett Van Nest, Frederick Potter, Gen. Luigi Palma di Cesnola, Mrs. Anna Chesebrough Wildey, Frederick Coykendall, Herman Knickerbocker Viele, Richard Dana Morse, and Walter Phelps Bliss.

The Executive Committee has issued an attractive illustrated booklet with prospectus of the Society and list of members, which will be furnished on application.

NOTE.

We are pleased to announce that Mrs. E. C. Chatfield, of Minneapolis, Minn., compiler of the Francis pamphlet, noticed in our last issue, is now at work upon the Partridge family, of Duxbury, Mass. Mrs. Chatfield will be glad to receive data relative to this family. A review of her work will appear in these columns on publication.

BOOK NOTICES.

THOMAS JOY AND HIS DESCENDANTS. A PORTFOLIO OF FAMILY PAPERS. Compiled by James Richard Joy, New York. Printed for the Family, 1900. 8vo, Cloth, pp. 225.

This work is the second step toward an adequate genealogy of Thomas Joy and his descendants. Its 225 pages of heavy paper, clear type, black ink and attractive illustrations give the descendants of Thomas Joy in the lines of his sons, Samuel of Boston, Joseph of Hingham and Ephraim of Berwick. Thomas, the father, settled in Boston and worked there as a builder and architect, and in that capacity erected the first town-house, a cut of which appears in this volume. Becoming involved in Dr. Child's protest against the restricted right of suffrage, he was thrown into prison, and upon being released from there he moved to Hingham, where he died, in 1678. The details of his life as set forth in the biographical sketch by Edmund Steele Joy at the beginning of this work are full of interest, woven as they are among the political controversies that stirred so often the colonists of Massachusetts Bay. The genealogical data, arranged according to the established standard, is commendable for its lack of fulsome eulogy; for after all, the majority of our American ancestors were just born, married, lived useful but quiet lives, and died. This book is well indexed and nicely illustrated; and the author's apology for the fact that it does not include every one of the name of Joy is an unnecessary one, since we are all thankful for his labor in giving us so much.

PUBLIC PAPERS OF GEORGE CLINTON, FIRST GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK. 1777-1795-1801-1804. Vol. III. Albany, 1900. 8vo, Cloth.

This volume, by the gifted Historian of our Empire State, is published as Appendix "N" of his Third Annual Report, and forms the third volume of the Revolutionary Series. Its contents refer more to civil than to military operations, covering the period in which France acknowledged the independence of the Colonies, Lord North inaugurated his plan for the establishment of peace, the Articles of Confederation were signed by eleven of the States, and Benjamin Franklin sailed away as the first Minister to France. To all of these subjects, and to many more strictly referring to the municipal affairs of New York, then an infant State, these papers, so carefully compiled by Mr. Hastings, relate with charming and entertaining detail, throwing light upon the story of those days.

GENEALOGY OF THE FAMILY OF LIEUT. SAMUEL BENJAMIN AND TABITHA LIVERMORE, HIS WIFE. Compiled by Mary Louise Benjamin, of Winthrop, Maine, 1900. 8vo, Cloth, pp. 112. Illustrated.

A glance at the contents of this excellent book and an enumeration of them here is perhaps the most satisfactory review of its pages which we can give, for these contents are interesting indeed and full of material. Under that caption we find the following: Ancestry of Lieut. Samuel Benjamin, A Brief Account of his Military Service, Extracts from his Revolutionary Diary; Ancestry of Tabitha Livermore; Tabitha Livermore Benjamin; Family of Lieut. Benjamin; Col. Billy Benjamin; Descendants of Samuel, Jr.; Nathaniel; Betsey B. Morrison; Polly B. Ames; Martha B. Washburn; David, Charles and Elisha Benjamin, and Ruth B. Lovejoy. Some of the illustrations are: The Coat of Arms, Oath of Fidelity, portraits, etc. The book has grown, like many another, from original researches after the ancestors of the compiler, until the importunities of friends and the rumblings of conscience have impelled the author to give it forth to the use of an interested public. Kind friends! Splendid conscience! It is an excellent volume, well put together and mechanically in good form.

NEW JERSEY ARCHIVES, FIRST SERIES, Vol. XXI.

Volume twenty-one of the first series of the Archives of New Jersey has just come from the press, and contains the calendar of records in the office of the Secretary of State, 1664–1703, edited by William Nelson. These records refer mostly to Salem, Greenwich and Gloucester, and have been collected and edited with great care by Mr. Nelson, to whom we all owe so much in New Jersey historical matters.

THE NEW YORK
Genealogical and Biographical Record.

VOL. XXXII. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1901. No. 2.

GEN. WILLIAM SCUDDER STRYKER.

BY WILLIAM NELSON.

The Strykers are among the oldest and best known families in Holland, one branch having been located near The Hague for eight centuries, and another living near Rotterdam. Many ancient tombs of the family, with sculptured arms surmounted by a ducal coronet, are to be seen in the old cathedral of St. Bavon, Haarlem.

Jan Strycker came to New Amsterdam in 1652, and two years later removed to Midwout (now Flatbush), Long Island, where for nearly twenty years he was the Chief Magistrate, and held various positions, civil and military, until his death in 1697, at the age of eighty-two. His son, Pieter Strycker (1653–1741), in 1710 bought a tract of four thousand acres in Somerset County, on which two of his sons and four of his grandsons settled (1730–1740). One of these grandsons (son of Jan, 1684–1770) was Abraham (1715–1777), who removed to New Jersey in the spring of 1740. He was the father of Christoffel H. Strycker (1761–1805) whose son Thomas J. Stryker (1800–1872) was one of the best known and most respected citizens of Trenton, where he held many public and private places of trust. He married a daughter of John Scudder, a descendant of Thomas Scudder, who is mentioned in the annals of Salem, Mass., as early as 1653.

Of this mingled Holland and New England ancestry, settled in America for two and a half centuries, was William Scudder Stryker, born in Trenton, June 6, 1838.* He was graduated at Princeton College in 1858, and immediately began studying law, but when President Lincoln's first call for troops came, the young law student abandoned everything in his eagerness to respond to his country's summons, and enlisted as a private, April 16, 1861, his company being ordered on special duty the same day. He served three months at this time. In the summer of 1862 he assisted in the organization of the Fourteenth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers. He was commissioned Paymaster, with the rank of Major, February 19, 1863, and ordered to Hilton Head, S. C. A service more congenial to his martial spirit was opened to him when he was made Major and Aide-de-Camp on the staff of Major-General Quincy A. Gillmore, July 8, 1863, then in command of the Tenth Army Corps, in the vicinity of Hilton Head, S. C. Here he participated in the capture of Morris Island, July 10, 1863, and in the assaults on Fort Wagner. At a critical moment in one of these engagements he was dispatched with orders to a distant point. The way was swept by a storm of shot and shell from the rebel batteries, but the gallant young officer calmly galloped through it all, delivered his message, and returned in safety. Thousands on both sides watched breathlessly that dauntless rider. Years after, at an Army reunion, an officer told General Stryker that he and others who beheld with straining eyes that wonderful braving of almost certain death never believed it possible that he could win his way through the fierce hail that hurtled across his path. Another fearful experience was the bloody night attack on Fort Wagner, on July 18, 1863. He was one of the few surviving officers who had the pleasure of witnessing the unveiling, thirty years after, of that superb statue erected in Boston in memory of Col. Robert G. Shaw, who fell in the van of that attack with his heroic colored regiment. On account of illness contracted in the arduous service in the siege of Charleston he was transferred to the Paymaster's Department at Columbus, Ohio. On the way he stopped at Washington to deliver messages to the President. Mr. Lincoln was greatly interested in the handsome young officer, and began to question him about some of his experiences and observations, when suddenly he saw him reel in faintness. He caught him in his arms, laid him on a lounge, sent for and applied restoratives, and ministered to him with all the tender sympathy of a woman, until he recovered sufficiently to return to his hotel. Gen. Stryker retired from the army in June, 1866, with the rank of Brevet-Lieutenant-Colonel, and again took up his residence in his native city. He was appointed Adjutant-General of New Jersey, April 12, 1867, and by successive appointments, of various governors, of different politics, he was continued until his death in the office he so highly adorned. In 1874 he was commissioned Brevet-Major-General.

Immediately upon assuming his position as Adjudant-General, he set about perfecting the war records of New Jersey, and in 1872 issued a stout octavo volume containing lists of officers and men of New Jersey in the Revolutionary War—the pioneer work of the kind in America. In 1876 he brought out two large quarto volumes of 1930 pages, giving the rosters and details of service of Jerseymen in the Civil War. For many years he had been revising and adding to the Revolutionary lists, and had also compiled records of the service of Jerseymen in the Colonial Wars, the Whiskey Insurrection of 1794, the War of 1812, and the Mexican War, all of which he hoped to have printed this year. In 1898 he published a most admirable and exhaustive narrative of the Battles of Trenton and Princeton, which at once took a high rank among the histories of famous battles. His separate monographs on historical subjects number a score or more, each and all exhibiting the true spirit of historical research, as well as a pleasing literary style. In 1899 Princeton University conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.D.

Gen. Stryker was President of the New Jersey Historical Society since January, 1897, and of the New Jersey Society of the Cincinnati since July 4, of the same year; he was President of the Trenton Battle Monument Association from 1884, and it was mainly through his efforts that that splendid shaft was erected, at a cost of $60,000. He had been a member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society since 1889; was a Fellow of the Royal Society of London, and was an honorary or active member of most of the patriotic, hereditary and historical societies of this country.

In person, General Stryker was nearly six feet in height, with an erect, military bearing, well proportioned, distinguished and strikingly handsome in appearance and manner. Naturally diffident, he was the perfection of courtesy, and was a most genial and delightful host or companion. His spacious and elegant residence in Trenton was mainly a library, with the rest of the house built around it. Here he had entertained many of the distinguished men of the country; here he was most at his ease, and here he had surrounded himself with one of the largest and most valuable collections of works and manuscripts on American history to be found in the United States.

For one who had been honored with his warm personal friendship for nearly thirty years it is difficult to sum up the principal characteristics of General Stryker with reasonable reserve. He was studious and scholarly in his tastes; was attractive and entertaining to a rare degree in social intercourse; was a sincere friend, and was an ideal Christian gentleman. His death, on October 29th, 1900, came as a great personal bereavement to the people of New Jersey, and thousands gathered from all parts of the State to do honor to his memory, on the occasion of his funeral, which was a remarkable military pageant. By special invitation of the New Jersey Legislature, the Society of the Cincinnati of that State held their semi-annual meeting, February 22d, 1901, in the State House at Trenton, and made it a memorial service to their late president. On these various occasions it seemed as if there came spontaneously to the tongue of every speaker one epithet as peculiarly appropriate to the dead soldier, statesman and scholar:

"Un chevalier sans peur et sans reproche."

THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM CHADSEY.

By Dr. J. Chadsey, of Newark, N. J.

William Chadsey, a native of Wales, was born May 24, 1692; left his country at the age of twenty-three, and landed in America, 1715; at or near Philadelphia.

His name Chad. from the Saxon word Cyte, meaning "a cottage," and Sey "near the water or sea," hence, "a cottage by the sea." All names may be supposed to have had some peculiar significance or appropriateness either to the person, location of residence or business. Thus, William from the Belgic Guildhelm, reads "harnessed with a guilded helmet," or, from Welhelm, "the shield or defence of many." Chadwick, from the Saxon Cyte and Wyc, "a bay, harbor, shelter, mansion or castle." Hence, "a cottage by the harbor or sheltered place."

Digitized by Google

Chertsey and Chedsey are synonymous. Chad and Chaun are identical. Hence we may read William Chadsey "was a shelter or defence to his cottage or mansion by the water or sea."

That William Chadsey's progenitors came to England with William the Conqueror in or about 1066, is not to be doubted; that Chauncey De Chauncey and William De Chauncey came from Amiens, in Picardy, and that they settled in Yorkshire, are historical facts, as also that the latter purchased the Manor of Serpenbeck in York of Odo Ballistras, who held it by gift from King William.

This William De Chauncey lived with his son Walter in the reign of Henry I., 1125, was styled a Baron Serpenbeck. William, son of John, was heir to his grandfather Walter. "His body was of delicate form, adorned with a beutiful aspect, and merry countenance; he was endowed with great wit, and a fluent tongue; a rare voice cultivated by skill in vocal music, which rendered him a great favorite, and acceptable to the King's domain."

John, who was the son and heir of Sir William Chauncy of 1479, married Margaret Gifford, and they had issue: William and Richard. William was educated at Corpus Christi, 1528.

I have noted Richard's line five generations to 1660, bearing the name of their great-great-grandfather, spelled Chatsie, Chasey, Chadsey. I will here notice a few of the phonetic variations of spelling this name from the Somerset House Records: Chauncy, Chauncey, Chaunsey, Chencey, Cheancy, Chatce, Chatcey, Chatsie, Chatsee, Cheadsey, Chedsey, Chadsey, Chasey, Chadley, Chadsley, Chedley, Chebsey, Chadney, Chassey, etc.

As descendants multiplied, names naturally lost their original accents through various dialects—only a few decades passed, found many of kin estranged by name—a few of which we have mentioned above.

Richard Chadsey of Somerset County, removed (most probably) to Monmouthshire, then Wales, on account of religious persecutions, where the Church baptisms state that William Chadsey, son of Richard, was baptized May 24, 1692.

1. WILLIAM[1] CHADSEY, b. 1692, the ancestor who came to the American Continent, and from whom all the family name in this country have descended, had a friendly leaning toward the Quaker Orthodox Church. He was a man of refined taste, and remarkably polite character; whose word was as good as his bond, though from a sense of integrity he shrank from publicity. He was educated in Wales and conversant with the language, and was physically a Welshman, although his ancestors on his father's side were English of Norman descent.

At the age of twenty-three, in July, 1715, he left his native land, never to be heard from by his kindred, landed in Virginia in September, 1715, made his way northward and arrived at Newport. The following spring, he crossed the Naragansett Bay near Wickford, North Kingston, where he purchased a tract of land three miles north of Wickford, and four miles south from East Greenwich, on the old post road at Sandhill, a short distance from Roger Williams' trading post with the Indians, and built for himself in 1717 a log cabin, of the usual early settlers' type.

May 24, 1719, he married Susanna Greene (daughter of Jabez[1]), b. in Coventry, Warwick Co., R. I., Jan. 30, 1699. They lived together sixty-eight years on the farm where they first settled, and both died in 1787, within three months of each other, he aged 95 years, 7 months, and she 89 years, 10 months. The old homestead is still in possession of the seventh generation, and a score or more of the descendants are sleeping their last sleep on an eminence called "The Hill of Goshen."

THE FAMILY OF DUPUIS, DE PUY, DEPEW, ETC.

By Frank J. Conkling, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Whether Nicholas and Francois Dupuis were refugees driven from their mother country, because of the religious persecutions of their times, may not be known. They came too early to be influenced by the "Revocation of the Edict of Nantes" (1685), which caused so much terror and destruction among the French Protestants. However, they were clearly Protestants, or they would not so readily have associated themselves with the reformed religion opened to them in the Dutch province, where they arrived but a short time before New Netherland fell into the hands of the English, and New Amsterdam became the city of New York.

Colonel Henry D. Teetor, a reputable genealogist, who has delved deeply among the ancient Norman records of historic France, has discovered a very desirable ancestry for the family of Dupuis. While not perfecting a lineage down to either Nicholas or Francois, he makes their descent from noble blood seem very plausible.* He starts off with Raphael DuPuy an officer of high rank to Emperor Conrad in 1033, who afterwards appointed him Governor over vast estates. His son, Hughes DuPuy, for brilliant military service at the Crusades in the Holy Lands, was granted the sovereignty of the Villa d'Acre. He was accompanied to the Crusades by his wife and three sons, from whom the Colonel finds lineal descendants among "Chevaliers, Seigneurs, Generals, Barons, Knights, Cardinals, Archbishops, and Statesmen." He mentions the Nicholas Depuis of this article as the original American ancestor of Hon. Chauncey M. Depew. On this point the writer feels it his privilege to take issue with the Colonel, notwithstanding the meritorius work he has done, in uncovering such a glorious ancestry of the old world.

Francois, though probably the younger of the two, was the first to reach the shores of America. The earliest record, but one, we find of him is the publication of his bans, 26th August, 1661, in the Reformed Dutch Church of New Amsterdam. This announcement of his coming marriage was a requirement of the times, and is valuable from the fact that the record is the only one found giving the place of his birth. As translated it reads:—"Francoys Dupuis, young man of Cales, France, and Geertje Willems, young daughter of Amsterdam." Just one month later they were married in Breuckelen, their marriage being the fifth of record in the Dutch church there, and is as follows:—"26th September, 1661, Francois duPuis and Geertie Willems, with certificate from Manhattans"† (New York). It is the belief of Bergen, the renowned historian of King's County, that the bride was the daughter of Willem Jacobse Van Boerum* of Flatbush, who came with his family, in 1649, from Amsterdam, Holland, where the register of bans tells us Geertje was born.

* In this paper, published in the April number, of "The Spirit of '76," he does not mention Francois Dupuis, but claims that Nicholas, the emigrant of 1662, was of the lineage of a Nicholas DuPuy, "Chevalier de Malti," who was killed at the "Battle of Faragosse" in 1625. He also gives as the first Protestant Huguenot of record bearing the family name, "General Charles DuPuy, Saighneur de Montbrun," a brave and distinguished officer, who was taken prisoner and beheaded August 12, 1575, a martyr to his religious convictions.

The time of arrival of Nicholas Dupuis to this country can be very closely calculated. He shipped in October, 1662, in the vessel "Purmerland Church," and reached New Amsterdam probably during that or the following month. A passenger list† furnished by O'Callaghan has him and his family thus:—"Nicholas Du Pui from Artois, and wife and three children." Another list gives the ages of these children as six, five, and two years.‡ Two of these were undoubtedly John and Moses, who, after growing to man's estate, settled in Richmond and Ulster Counties respectively. The wife of Nicholas Dupuis, and no doubt the mother of all of his children, was Catharina de Vos. An interpretation of the latter name is "The Fox." Those who are familiar with the satirical epic entitled: "Reynard the Fox,"§ or as published in the Low German dialect in the sixteenth century: "Reynke de Vos," will appreciate the adaptable manner of the Dutch clergyman, who only followed the familiar custom of the people of his country, in entering upon his baptismal register (Doop-Book) the nickname "Reynarts" or "Reynards" as a substitute for deVos, all of which names were variously given her.

Nicholas and his family seem to have first settled on the "Herren Graft" (Broad Street) of new Amsterdam.‖ Early in the year following their arrival, he and his wife were admitted as members of the Reformed Dutch Church. The spring had hardly opened when he made application, with several of his friends, for a plantation on Staten Island, which was granted March 19, 1663.¶ This plantation appears to have continued in the family for some years after the death of both Nicholas and his wife, probably falling to John, who was a resident of Staten Island, and administered upon the estate of his mother, at her death in 1705, she having survived her husband by some fourteen years.

It is uncertain whether Nicholas ever himself occupied the Staten Island grant, if he did, it must have been but for a brief period, as his foot-marks seem continually turned in other directions. He was yet a resident of New Amsterdam, just changed to New York, when, in October, 1664, Nicholas swore allegiance†† to the King of Great Britain. The following year he was appointed "Beer and Weigh-house Porter,"‡‡ a rather important position of the time, from which office he may have realized sufficient to aid him in paying for a lot he had purchased on Prince Street in 1667.§§ He joined Captain Cornelis Steenwyck's company of militia in 1673,‖‖ and in 1674 paid taxes on his

* Willem Jacobse van Boerum was born in 1617, and died prior to 1698. His wife was Geertje Hendrickse. They lived at New Lotts, L. I. He was magistrate of the Town of Flatbush for several years. His children were:—Hendrick, Jacob, Geertje, and Hillegond. "Geertje Willems from Amsterdam," who was a passenger of the "Beaver," a vessel arrived in New Amsterdam during May, 1661, was probably the daughter of Willem Jacobse, and later the wife of Francois Dupuis.

Broad Street residence at a valuation of $2.500.* The assessor, probably an Englishman, made the mistake of entering Nicholas on his list as a "Dutchman." In further proof of his error, "Nicolas Dupuis and Catalina de Vos his wife," are entered on the membership register of the Reformed Dutch Church of New York as having been transferred to the French Church there. No date is given, but it was probably in the eighties, when the Protestant French were strong enough to establish a church of their own in the city. Within the next three years Nicholas and his family crossed over to Long Island and settled at New Utrecht, where, in 1677, he and his wife were members of the Dutch Church,† but later were entered as having removed to Bergen, New Jersey, the Dutch Church of which place admitted them to membership in 1682.

Nicholas was unquestionably a stirring fellow, clearly a success from a business standpoint at least. We find him in 1676 and occasionly during the following seven years at Kingston, N. Y. He is mentioned among the court records‡ of that place as being engaged in the fish packing business. The Hudson river probably affording him the most profitable field for a good catch, thus accounting for his frequent visits to Kingston, which place became the home of his son Moses, about 1680.§

In 1685, Nicholas sold his portion of a tract of land, located in the present County of Rockland,‖ which he had previously purchased in company with Pieter Jacobse Marius. October 13th of this year he made his will,¶ in which he claimed New York City as his residence. He left his estate to his widow's management, and mentioned children, John, Moses, Aaron, Susanna and Nicholas, in the order as given. In 1686 Nicholas was living on Beaver Street, when the records of the Dutch Church, New York, mention "Catalina de Vos," his wife (so named), as a member. Her church relationship with the Dutch probably being more congenial than with the French, which latter church probably returned her letter within a year from the time she joined. Nicholas died in 1691, and his remains were probably buried from the Beaver Street home. His children are more particularly given as follows. The baptisms noted are all from the records of the Reformed Dutch Church of New York, as published in this periodical.

1. John, born about 1655, married first, Elizabeth Tysen, whose widower he was, when in 1692, he was betrothed to Geertruytje Jans of Kingston. Illicit discoveries however caused him to break this engagement, and he later married a Petroneltje somebody. According to Clute, in his "Annals of Staten Island," John was an inhabitant there in 1680. He was Sheriff of Richmond County,†† 1698 to 1701, and was still a resident of the County in 1725, when he made his will. It was probated‡‡ June 14, 1732, and mentioned his wife, Petronella; eldest son John, who was an invalid; sons:

Nicholas, Barent and Moses; daughters: Catharine (deceased), Magdalena, Susanna, Elizabeth and Petronella. Mr. Clute gives the baptism of Elizabeth as 22d October, 1707, and Moses, 22d July, 1714. He also mentions Nicholas (son of John) and his wife, Neeltje Dekker, and gives them a daughter (not named) in 1724, John, 1725, Mathew, 1726, Nicholas, 1730, Moses, 1732, and Aaron, 1739.

2. Moses, born about 1657, married about 1680, Maria Wyncoop, born in Albany in 1660, daughter of Cornelis Wyncoop, who later settled at Kingston, where Moses Du Puy established his home for a time. Later we find him farther to the south and west, in the County of Ulster, where, in the towns of Marbletown and Rochester, he and his sons were substantial farmers, and among the foremost in upholding good government. In his old age Moses married again. The record, 16th October, 1724, credits him as the widower of Maria Wyncoop. His bride was Peterneltje De Pree, widow of Marinus VanAken, "both living at Rochester." The Kingston Dutch Church Records (published) gives Moses eleven children, all by his first wife as follows: Mareitje, baptised April 24, 1681, Nicolaes, December 3, 1682, Catharina, April 6, 1684, Magdalena, March 14, 1686, Cornelis, January 8, 1688, Catrina, May 25, 1690, Moses, September 27, 1691, Benjamin, October 13, 1695, Susanna, January 9, 1698, Catharina, November 30, 1701, Jacobus, September 19, 1703. He probably also had a son Johannes, who married December 26, 1725, Sara Van Steenberg. Marriage records of the other sons of Moses are as follows: Nicholas De Puy and Weyntjen Roosa, March 22, 1707, Cornelis De Puy and Catrina Van Aken, May 6, 1713, Moses De Puy and Margrietje Schoonmaker, February 14, 1716, Benjamin De Puy and Elisabeth Schoonmaker, September 3, 1719, Benjamin married 2d, December 13, 1735, Eicke Dewitt, Jacobus De Puy and Sara Schoonmaker, August 26, 1725. These five, and probably six sons of Moses, each head a separate lineage that may not be difficult to trace. This branch is represented among the early settlers of the Minisink Country, and along the Delaware in Pennsylvania.

3. A child born to Nicholas about 1660. It was two years old when they reached America in 1662. It probably died young.

4. Joseph, baptised February 5, 1663. He has no further record, probably never reached maturity.

5. Aaron, baptised November 30, 1664. No record of him further than that his name appears in his father's will, 1685–1691.

6. Magdalena, baptised February 16, 1667. No record.

7. Susanna, baptised April 7, 1669, married(?)* before 1700, Obadias Winter; m. 2d(?)* about 1704, John Pamerton.

8. Nicholas, baptised July 11, 1670. "Nicolaes Depuis, Jr.," was sponsor at Kingston, May 25, 1690, but no further record, except the mention in his father's will.

9. Paulus, baptised August 11, 1675. Probably died young.

THE BOOK CONTAINING THE KING FAMILY RECORD.

Digitized by Google

RECORDS OF THE KING FAMILY OF SOUTHOLD, SUFFOLK COUNTY, NEW YORK.

COMMUNICATED BY MR. RUFUS KING OF YONKERS, NEW YORK.

In the quiet and picturesque old town of Southold, on the eastern end of Long Island, a little book has been drifting around from one resting place to another, for more than two hundred years, and is now, in an excellent state of preservation, in the possession of a descendant of the family whose record it contains.

The book is about seven inches long and three inches wide, bound in black leather and had originally two brass clasps; the handwriting is clear and very legible. On the first page is the inscription: "Samuel King Owner of this Book, 1674."

The records following relate to the descendants of this Samuel King who was born in England about 1633, and died in Southold 29 Nov., 1721; he was the second son of William Kinge, born about 1595, who with his wife Dorothy and five children sailed from Weymouth, Dorsetshire, England, 20 March, 1635, and settled at Salem, Mass., the same year.

Samuel King just mentioned was at Southold as early as 1650; the account of his posterity is given in the book in quaint and characteristic style and is herein repeated verbatim et literatim.

In reading these records, it should be remembered that, previous to 1752, the legal year began on 25 March, which was called the first month, April the second month, etc., January the eleventh month, and February the twelfth month. Therefore, before 1752 an entry reading, say March 12, 1636 or 1636–7 would mean March 12, 1637, and so on of any date between January 1 and March 25.

The Record begins:

"Samuel King his booke written in the 10 mon Ano 1674

On the next page is a cure for the gout and then follow these entries:

Samuell King married about the 27th yeare of his age, October the 10th Ano Dom. 1660.

My first childe William was borne ye 10th of January 1661.

My second childe Dorothy borne ye eleventh of July 1664.

"My third childe Hanah borne ye 26th of January 1666."

SamuellKing his wife Frranses† King departed this life January about the 14 da Ano 1692 being the 53rd year of hear age or thereabouts.

(Here follows in very beautiful handwriting the record of the family of Samuel King, Jr.).

"Samuel King, Jun. was married ye 1st of Jany ano Domini 1697 being in the 22nd yeare of his age & the 23rd yeare of his Wife Hannah.

Samuell King, Junr Departed this Life the 6 day of May in the 51 fifty first yeare of his age and yeare 1725'

(The above entry of the death of Samuel King, Jr., is in a different handwriting but now follows the same handwriting as the record of his marriage and continues through the entry of the death of his wife Hannah Aug. 12, 1712.)

"My 1st son Samuell King born ye 20th of

* Mary King became the wife of John Gardiner, third proprietor of the Manor of Gardiner's Island; she died 4 July, 1707, aged 37, and is buried in the East Hampton graveyard. She is erroneously described as the daughter of William King in the Gardiner Pedigree in Holgate's Genealogies.

† Frances, the wife of Samuel King, was the daughter of William Ludlam, Sr., and wife Clemence of Southampton, L. I., and formerly of Matlock in Derbyshire, England.

Ephraim my sixth son was born ye 14th of May anno Domini 1709 on Saturday.

Hannah my seventh child was born ye 18th of May anno Domini 1712. Sunday about sunrise.

My Loving Wife Hannah departed her life ye 17th of August anno Domini 1712 in the 39th year of her age."

(Here follows in another handwriting nine entries, the first seven are doubtless those of the births of children named Booth and probably the offspring of Hannah King and Captain William Booth; on this point see Moore's Indexes of the Town of Southold, under Booth.)

"My First son Willm was born the 25th of May 1689.

2—Hannah was born February 22—1691.

my 3rd Child Samuel was born July ye 16 1682. (Sic. but doubtless intended for 1692.)

George my 3 Child born Aprill ye 28 1696

Mehetabell was born October ye 8th 1698

Constant Born in Janewary ye 9 day 1700.

Mary Booth was Born Agust ye 30 day 1703.

Martha was born in Agust ye 7th 1706.

My father Samuel King departed This Life Novembr the 29—1721—In ye 89 year of his age.

My brother Samuel King departed this life May the 14 1733 in the 38 year of his age on Monday"

(The handwriting now changes and we have the following record of the children of John King, doubtless written by him.)

Handwriting of Ensign John King, b. 15 July, 1699.

"John King* was married in the 25th year of his age June the 25 Ano. Dom. 1726.

My furst child Marey was born January ye 27 Ano: Dom: 1726:—Thursday:—

My seccnd child John Born December ye 18 1727 on Monday

My third Child Nath[ll] Born May ye 8 1731 on Saturday.

My loving Wife Mary was Born y^e 11 of Janewary year 1707.

Our Loving Brother Nath[ll] King Departed This Life May y^e 12 year 1731 In y^e 25 year of his age.

My fourth Child Absalom was Born October 5th A D 1733 Monday.

My fifth child Mehitable was Born October 2^d Anno Dom: 1736. Saturday.

My Sixth Child Abraham was born December 13th 1741 Sabbath Day.

My Seventh Child Margaret was born March 6th A. D. 1747. Fryday—"

(At this point the following entry appears.)

"Margaret Corey (who married to Willoby Lindst) was born June 22nd 1714 and She Died the 23 of December 1789."

(Another change of handwriting now takes place; it is bold and very legible, and probably that of John King whose family record it gives as follows.)

"March ye 14 day 1754 John King and Abigail Brown were married—and our first Child was born January y^e 6, 1755 And our second child John was born March ye 14, 1756.

Our third child Gilbert was born July ye 16, 1758.

Our forth child Rufus was born September ye 3^d, 1760.

* John King was married, probably, not in 1726 but in 1724, as he was about 25 years old in that year, having been born, as the record has already stated, 15 July, 1699. This last mentioned date is in harmony with the inscription on his gravestone, which describes him as Ensign John King, and as having died 28 June, 1753, in the 54th year of his age. In further confirmation the Salmon Record contains the following entry under marriages: "John King and Mary Corey June 25, 1724."

† Willougby Lynde was the son of Nathaniel Lynde of Saybrook, Conn., b. 22 Nov., 1659, d. 5 Oct., 1729, and wife Susannah Willoughby, b. 19 Oct., 1664.

The entry of Margaret Corey's marriage in the King Family Record seems to indicate that she was a near relative, perhaps a sister, of Mary Corey who married Ensign John King; it is also a suggestive fact that this John King had a great-grandson Lynde King, b. 6 July, 1792; his gravestone at Orient reads: "Capt. Lyndes King, died Oct. 18, 1854, aged 62 years and 3 months." He was the son of Nathaniel King, Jr., whose wife was Mehitable Tuthill, and grandson of Major Nathaniel King whose wife was Experience Young.

Our fifth Child Abigail was born September ye 5 1762.
Our sixth child Joseph was born September ye 23, 1764.
Our seventh Child Mehetable was Born January ye 1 1767.
John King was married the second time to Phebe Youngs March 10th 1770—And he Died the July 14th 1792."

Signature of John King, b. 18 Dec., 1727.

Up to this point, everything contained in the book has been given, but later family records follow and also several pages describing boundaries of lands in Southold, owned by Samuel King, Sr. These particulars may be made the subject matter of a future communication to the RECORD.

INSCRIPTIONS ON GRAVESTONES.

INSCRIPTIONS TAKEN FROM THE OLD CEMETERY AT HUNTINGTON, SUFFOLK CO., L. I.—1701–1850.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOHN H. JONES.

NOTE.—Inscriptions of a date later than 1850 have been omitted from this list. They can be consulted, however, from the original Ms. at the Library of this Society.—Editor.

THE RECORDS OF PHILIPPI, NOW SOUTHEAST, PUTNAM CO., N. Y.

TRANSCRIBED AND CONTRIBUTED BY H. CALKINS, JR.

(Question-marks and Italics are the transcriber's.)

The original, of which the following pages are verbatim extracts, is now in the possession of the Westchester Co. Historical Society at White Plains, N. Y., and we are indebted to the courtesy of Mr. Edward Myers and Mr. William A. Woodworth, both of that place, for the privilege of copying and publishing these records. The town of Southeast, now in Putnam County, N. Y., was formed (according to the Civil List), March 17th, 1795, from Frederickstown and Southeast Town, both of which at that time were within the confines of Dutchess County, and remained so until June 12th, 1812, when Putnam County was formed by act of Legislature. Kent's Parish was located in what was known as East Philippi, which is now in the town of Southeast. Up to 1808 the denomination of the church was congregational in form but was attached to the Presbytery of Hudson. April, 1809, the church asked and received dismission from that body, and on the 20th of that month, at a meeting held in Goshen, Conn., joined the Consociation of the Eastern part of Fairfield County, Conn. The volume of records is a small book with leather cover, well preserved, but not systematically arranged. All the matter of importance will be given in this article; the omitted portion being the proceedings of the Elders in relation to sins of omission and commission on the part of offending members of the congregation. The Mr. Kent referred to on the first page was Rev. Elisha Kent, grandfather of James Kent, sometime Chancellor of New York State,

TWO DISTINGUISHED MEMBERS OF THE SEDGWICK FAMILY—ROBERT AND THEODORE.

By L. Hasbrouck von Sahler.

Robert Sedgwick, the founder of the family in America, was of much prominence in his adopted country. He was born in 1611, and was a son of William Sedgwick, a warden of St. Mary's Church, at Woburn, in Bedfordshire, England, and his wife, Elizabeth Howe; and his ancestry can be traced in the North of England to the fourteenth century. He received some military training in the London artillery, and his environment made him an Independent in religion. In 1636, after his father's death, he came to New England, with the Puritan settlers, and on the third of June he was admitted an inhabitant of progressive Charlestown, Massachusetts, where he established himself as a successful merchant; and on the ninth of March, 1636, he was made a freeman of the colony, and chosen captain of the Charlestown militia. The same year, and also in 1638, 1644, 1648 and 1649, he was chosen deputy from Charlestown to the general court at Boston, and in 1643, he was one of the selectmen. He assisted in the formation of the famous "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," of Boston, and was chosen its captain, in 1641, 1645 and 1648. During this time he commanded a fortress on the island, in Boston harbor, where Fort Independence now stands, and took charge of the fortifications of the town and harbor. In 1652 he was chosen major-general of the colony. Previously he had been chosen sergeant-major of the first regiment of Essex County, and trained his men with so much credit that their appreciation was shown by the gift of a piece of land. His military duties did not prevent his successful attendance to his private affairs, and both alone and with others, he built ships, wharves, warehouses and a tide mill in Charlestown; and at Lynn, was associased with John Winthrop, Jr., in the establishment of the first iron furnace and works in New England. His land holdings were considerable. In 1642 he aided in setting off that part of Charlestown called the "Village," and it was named "Woburn" in honor of his birthplace. He was interested in the building of a new meeting house and of a school at Charlestown, and gave to Harvard college, then just starting on its long and honorable career. Early in 1654, when General Sedgwick went on a visit to England, his abilities displayed in the new world caused Cromwell, whom Sedgwick greatly admired, to appoint him and Captain John Leverett to take charge of an expedition against the Dutch settlements at New Amsterdam (New York) and up the Hudson river, but peace being temporarily restored between the Netherlands and Great Britain, arrangements for that campaign were dropped, and Cromwell turned his attention to the French at Acadia (Nova Scotia), and in July, 1654, General Sedgwick took the forts of St. John and Port Royal, with credit, and on the second of September fortified Penobscot surrendered to him. These successes caused the general court of Massachusetts Bay to appoint a public and solemn thanksgiving. Shortly afterwards Cromwell dispatched him with a fleet to the lately captured island of Jamaica, to assist the troops under Generals Penn and Venables, and after Major-General Fortescue's death he appointed him to take charge of the army stationed there, with the rank of major-general. This was his last honor, as he died suddenly at Jamaica, on the twenty-fourth of May, 1656, and his death was a great loss to all associated with him, and deeply regretted. The Charlestown homestead was in the Market Place, and stood on, or near, the present site of the Bunker Hill National bank, but some years before his death, he removed his family to another homestead at Boston, on Washington street, and part of the site of the present Old Corner bookstore. If General Sedgwick left a will, it could not be found, and his estate was administered on the thirteenth of September of that year. In 1657, his widow, Johanna Sedgwick, was living at Stephney, near London.

As is well known, many of the Puritans were very narrow-minded, and were unwilling to give, when they were in power, to others, the religious and other liberties, that they had condemned England for not giving to them, but Robert Sedgwick did not belong to that class, as he showed a kindliness of heart, and faith in his Creator, that tempered his whole life, and together with his abilities, won the admiration and respect of those associated with him, and I regret that I am unable to devote more space to such a man owing to the fact that in this brief paper I must also write of his descendant, Judge Theodore Sedgwick, who was the first of the family in Berkshire County, and who inherited, without question, many of his distinguished ancestor's characteristics and abilities.

Theodore Sedgwick was born in May, 1746, at Hartford, Conn., and through the affection of his younger brother, John Sedgwick, later a major-general in the Revolutionary army, he was partially educated at Yale College. The father had died young. Theology and law both interested him, but he finally decided to study the latter and entered the law office of Colonel Mark Hopkins, a distinguished citizen of Great Barrington, Mass., grandfather of President Mark Hopkins of Williams' College, and was admitted to the Berkshire bar in September, 1765, when he commenced to practice his profession at Great Barrington, but he did not meet with the success that he wished, and so he soon removed to Sheffield, which town he represented in the general court, both before and after the Revolution, and where he obtained a large practice. Mr. Sedgwick remained loyal to British rule until he was fully convinced of its injustice, when he took a decided and active stand for independence. In 1774, a convention of sixty delegates, chosen by the towns of the county, met at Stockbridge to take some action on British oppression, and he was chosen clerk, and one of a "committee to take into consideration the Acts of the Parliament of Great Britain, made for the purpose of raising and collecting a revenue in America, and report their sense of them." At the beginning of the war he served for a time on the staff of General John Thomas, when that officer led a successful expedition to Canada, and on its return his cordial and appreciated friend (at that time), Aaron Burr, whose grandfather, Jonathan Edwards, was associated with the Stockbridge Indian Mission, urged him to accept the office of secretary and aid on the staff of General Israel Putnam, but instead, during the latter part of 1776, and throughout 1777, he was commissary for the northern department of the army, and his able discharge of the duties entitled him to much consideration.

In 1785 he removed to Stockbridge—his third settlement in Berkshire County—and became the leading lawyer west of the Connecticut river, and occupied a prominent legal position in the adjoining counties of New York State. During 1786 and 1787 he was active in quieting the "Shays' Rebellion," and was the recipient of the rebels bitter dislike, as he did not approve of their misguided attempts for righting the wrong. Mr. Sedgwick was one of the delegates to the convention called to form the constitution for the Massachusetts commonwealth, and also for that which assisted in establishing the constitution of the United States. He was a member of the continental congress, and was continuously a member of either the house of representatives or senate in the first six congresses, and in the last he was speaker of the house. He was district attorney for Western Massachusetts, and later was attorney general for the commonwealth. He was twice a commissioner, to attempt the boundary settlement between New York and Massachusetts. At the time of his death, in January, 1813, he was an associate justice of the supreme court of Massachusetts, which office he held eleven years, from 1802. Washington offered him the important honor of secretary of the treasury after Hamilton's retirement, but he declined it; and he was also appointed a justice of the Massachusetts court of common pleas, but did not take his seat. One of the most important objects that interested Judge Sedgwick was American slavery, and his efforts toward their freedom was one of his brightest honors. He was chairman of the committee that made the report to the house of the bill that later became the original fugitive slave law, and he was one of the earliest members of the Abolition Society of Pennsylvania, of which Franklin was president, and his influence resulted in freedom for the slaves of Massachusetts. He was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and Princeton College conferred on him the degree of LL.D. In 1801, he retired from active public life, and his remaining years were occupied with the requirements of the state supreme court and his private affairs. Judge Sedgwick occupied a prominent place among the lawyers and statesmen of his day, and his strong love for right was the corner stone of his life, both in sympathies with the continental and federal periods. That he had enemies there is no denying, but surely he was not alone in that respect, and while his decisions on the subjects of his day may sometimes have been opinionated, it was because he fully believed that he was right. His eloquent and clear speeches on different subjects received much praise from distinguished contemporaries, even outside his own party. In personality he was a gentleman in the true sense of the word, and of fine presence, a subtle blending of inherited and individual aristocracy and democracy, and he undoubtedly felt that while an honorable ancestry should always be decidedly appreciated, it was simply a foundation on which to build the structure of his life work, and that the more honorable the ancestry the more responsibility was inherited.

Judge Sedgwick was first married to Eliza Mason, daughter of the elder Jeremiah Mason, who died within a year of their marriage; second to Pamela Dwight, daughter of Brigadier-General Joseph Dwight, and Abigail Williams Sergeant, former widow of John Sergeant, missionory to the Stockbridge Indians, and sister of the founder of Williams' College, and third to Penelope Russell, daughter of Charles Russell, who survived him. His devotion to his family was one of his strong characteristics. By his second marriage he was the father of ten children, of whom three were lawyers of distinction. Theodore practiced his profession at Albany and Stockbridge, author of a treatise on "Public and Private Economy," several times elected to the Massachusetts legislature, one of the founders of the Boston and Albany railroad, the commercial backbone of the state, and many times nominated for governor on the democratic ticket, before that party's state success. Henry Dwight, author of a pamphlet on the absurdities of the pleading and practice of common law, which suggested much to David Dudley Field, who in the beginning of his distinguished career, was a partner of the New York law firm of Henry Dwight and Robert Sedgwick, the latter one of the three mentioned brothers. A fourth son, Charles, was for many years county clerk of Berkshire. One of the daughters, Maria Sedgwick, the first American woman novelist, is probably best remembered of all the children. Her charming personality, good influences, gracious hospitality, distinguished friends, and clever writings, proved her to have been a remarkable woman. Many of the descendants of Major-General Robert Sedgwick (or as some of the family have called him, "the governor," from his supreme command of Jamaica), have been people of especial ability and prominence, up to the present time, in many of the walks of life. The family are still represented in the old Judge Sedgwick mansion at Stockbridge, by Henry Dwight Sedgwick, Esq., many years a lawyer in New York, and who possesses many of the Sedgwick characteristics. Judge Sedgwick and many of his descendants are buried in the interesting Sedgwick burial ground at Stockbridge, where a noticeable gravestone is that of Mumbet, a slave, whose freedom was due to the Judge's interest, and who showed her appreciation, by devotion to his family, during the remainder of her life.

ONONDAGA COUNTY RECORDS—1791.

The word illiterate inserted after names in this record indicates that the individuals signed with an +.

In this year the tide of pioneer immigration into the Onondaga country began, and the military claims, being now located, assumed a definite value. At the creation of Herkimer County the newly-opened region was included within its limits. Among the immigrants the ex-soldiers holding land-patents hardly appeared. Their attitude toward pioneer effort is shown by the rapid increase of transfers by which they divested themselves of title. The genealogical value of the records is now enhanced by the more frequent addition of the residence to the description of the veteran grantor, and by the increase of acknowledgments which show precisely the whereabouts of the grantor at specific times.

CROSBY.

Some of the Descendants of David and Reliance (Hopkins) Crosby, of Harwich, Mass., and Southeast, Putnam County, N. Y.

By Sarah Louise Kimball.

[Editor's Note.—Simon Crosby emigrated to New England in 1635 and settled in Cambridge, Mass., where he had a wife, Ann, and three sons, Thomas, Simon, Jr., and Joseph. An article on the Crosby Family by Mr. Ernest Howard Crosby, which was commenced in the October, 1898, issue, and continued in the January, April, and July, 1899, numbers of this magazine, gave the descendants of Joseph, the youngest son of Simon. The present article gives those of Thomas, the eldest, who, says Savage, was eight weeks old at the time of emigration.]

The Crosby families of Putnam County, N. Y., are descended chiefly from three brothers, Thomas, Joshua and David, and their cousin Isaac Crosby (whose wife was a sister of Mary Foster, the wife of David Paddock), who moved from Harwich, Barnstable County, Mass., 1749–1756, and settled at Southeast and Carmel, Putnam County, N. Y. Freeman's History of Cape Cod gives the early history of the family, and Pelletreau's History of Putnam County carries the record down to Enoch Crosby (otherwise known as "Harvey Birch" in Cooper's novel, The Spy), and his descendants. This article deals more particularly with David Crosby and his descendants.

David Crosby was born at Harwich, Mass., April 13, 1709. He was son of John and Hannah Crosby, grandson of Rev. Thomas and Sarah Crosby, and great-grandson of Simon Crosby, of Cambridge, Mass. June 19, 1735, he married Reliance Hopkins, daughter of Samuel and Lydia Hopkins, granddaughter of Stephen and Mary (Merrick) Hopkins, great-granddaughter of Gyles and Katherine (Wheldon) Hopkins, he a passenger with his father, Stephen Hopkins, on the "Mayflower," 1620. Lydia Hopkins, a sister of Reliance, was wife of Joshua Crosby, and Elizabeth Hopkins, a cousin of Reliance and Lydia, was wife of Thomas Crosby, brothers of David Crosby. In 1749 David Crosby and family moved to Putnam (then Dutchess) County, N. Y., and settled on what was known as the Oblong, in Southeast, where he died October 20, 1793. His tombstone and that of his wife are still standing in the Sear's Burying Ground at Southeast, his being of white marble, with angel's face and wings at top, and bearing the inscription: "In Memory of David Crosby the Elder who departed this life Oct. 20th 1793 in the 85th year of his age," and hers of slate stone: "In Memory of Mrs Reliance Crosbey wife of Mr David Crosbey, who departed this life Feb 25th 1788 in the 75th year of her age." They had, certainly, four children, and probably seven, as follows:

1. David[3] Crosby, Jr., b. 1737, Harwich, Mass.; d. Nov. 16, 1816, Southeast, N. Y.
   Susannah Crosby, b. 1740, Harwich, Mass.
   Reliance Crosby, b. 1742, Harwich, Mass.
2. Abner Crosby, b. Dec. 25, 1744; d. May 5, 1813.
   Sarah Crosby (prob.), b. at Southeast.
   Eli Crosby (prob.), b. about 1749; m. Rebecca Sears. He served in the 3d N. Y. Regt. during the Revolution, and d. Nov. 22, 1827.
   Moses Crosby (prob.), b. about 1755; m. (1) Polly ———; (2) Abigail Foster. He also served in the 3d N. Y. Regt. during the Revolution, and d. July 2, 1821.

1. David[3] Crosby, Jr., b. 1737, Harwich, Mass., took an active part in the affairs of the town of Southeast. He was assessor of Fredericksburg Precinct 1774–6, 1788–90, and church moderator 1784. He was a Mason, as shown by the following record of the first Masonic meeting at Southeast: "At a meeting of a number of the fraternity of Masons, members of different Lodges, whose names are as follows: David Crosby, . . . Eli Crosby, . . . Peter Crosby, . . . who are inhabitants of Frederickstown, in the County of Dutchess, and towns adjacant, . . . the 5th day of Dec. 1793, and in the year of light 5793." "Brother David Crosby was appointed moderator of the meeting." "Voted: that Bro. Crosby, moderator of this meeting, be empowered to make application for the warrant above mentioned" (a warrant to erect a Lodge at Frederickstown). "On return of 'Columbia Lodge' in 1798, the following list of members is given . . . David

Crosby, Peter Crosby, . . . Eli Crosby, . . . Darius Crosby, Moses Crosby," David Crosby enlisted during the Revolution in the Dutchess County Militia, Dykeman's Company, Third Regiment, Col. John Field, in which regiment there appear the names of fourteen Crosbys; his uncle, Joshua Crosby, was on June 22, 1778, first lieutenant of the company from Pawling's Precinct, Dutchess County, in Col. Field's Regiment. Although his commission has not been found, he was known as Lieutenant David Crosby, Jr. He was twice married, and had at least seven, and perhaps twelve children. His first wife was Bethiah Paddock, who was born in Yarmouth, Mass., April 17, 1737, daughter of Peter and Sarah (Howes) Paddock (Zechariah,[3] Zechariah,[2] Robert[1]), of Yarmouth, Mass., and Southeast, N. Y.; she is buried in the Sear's Burying Ground at Southeast, the record of her death appearing on an old-fashioned, rudely cut granite stone, with an angel face and wings, as follows: "In memory of Mrs Bethiah Crosby wife of Lieut David Crosby who Departed this Life July 2, 1776 Æ 41." (There is probably an error in the date on her tombstone.) Some of Bethiah (Paddock) Crosby's small silver spoons, marked "B. P.," are still in possession of her descendants. Nothing is known of his second wife, except that her name was Sally. He died Nov. 16, 1816, and is buried in the Sear's Burying Ground at Southeast, the inscription on his tombstone, a double one of white marble, being as follows: "In memory of David Crosby who died Nov. 16, 1816 aged 79 years. Also Bethia his wife who died July 2, 1776 aged 41 years." His children were:

3. Thankful[3] Crosby, b. about 1759–60; d. Aug. 30, 1811.

5. DEBORAH[3] CROSBY, b. Sept. 12, 1767, Southeast; m. Dr. Hezekiah Hyatt (John, Ebenezer, Thomas, Thomas), of North Salem, Westchester County. In 1804 they moved to Fenner, Madison County, N. Y., where he practiced his profession for many years and was a highly respected member of the community. He died April 10, 1841, and she March 12, 1853. At their marriage her father gave her half a dozen spoons which he had made from silver dollars, marked "D. H." for Deborah Hyatt, but upon her insisting that they be marked "D. C." another set was made. The "D. H." spoons were lost in a fire, but several of the "D. C." spoons remain in the family. Her "gold knobs" (earrings) are in possession of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Anne (Clough) Kimball, of Palo Alto, California. Dr. Hyatt is said to have served in the Revolutionary War, the family tradition being that his father had gone to the war, and Hezekiah being locked in his chamber, climbed out of the window and followed his father, both serving to the close of the war; that he received a slight wound, made by a bullet shooting a twig from a tree through the rim of his ear. EDITORIAL.

We have received from Mr. Frank W. Haskell of Niagara Falls, N. Y., a pamphlet entitled "A Comprehensive System of Arrangement for Genealogical Records," and its receipt impels us to break forth again in discourse upon the subject, the importance of which appeals so strongly to the custodians of genealogical libraries and the editors of genealogical magazines. Sad to relate it is, that, if a treatise were compiled illustrating and discussing the many systems for genealogical notation already in use, it would fill a good sized volume. Experience of many years has taught us that the system long used by our honored friends of the New England Society and by ourselves—the system known as the "Record and Register Plan"—is the simplest, the most comprehensive and by all odds the best yet devised; and we have still to await an improvement upon it, which, when it comes, will receive our hearty commendation. Mr. Haskell's system involves all the important features of the "Record and Register Plan" and modifies but one of them. Instead of using consecutive personal numbers, these are made up of digits which represent the position each person held with regard to his brothers. For instance the founder of the family is number 1 and his first son is number 11, while the first son's third son is number 113. Thus there are always as many digits in the personal number as the person is in generations from the progenitor, hence a descendant of the ninth generation will have for his personal number one composed of nine digits, for example 132415214. We contend therefore that this is cumbersome, confusing, impractical, prodigal, and not to be compared with the other system, when even in a large work the descendants of the ninth generation will not have more than five digits, especially when personal numbers are assigned only to ancestors who are carried forward for further descent. Aside from this, Mr. Haskell's personal numbers show but two things, and these are to be found in another way: first the number of the generation (which is shown at the top of the page), and second the relative position of births, for instance number 1533 is of the fourth generation, and is the third son of 153. We do not therefore see that Mr. Haskell's "system" is any improvement, but on the contrary is not so good as the established plan; and so we cry with a loud voice, "Let's stick to the good old plan."

NOTE.

Eliot.—We are informed, by circular, dated Clinton, Conn., February 1st, 1901, that the surviving members of the committee appointed at the meeting of the descendants of John Eliot at Guilford, Conn., in 1875, to call another meeting, have in accord with the wishes of a large number of the family, selected South Natick, Mass., sixteen miles southwest of Boston, as the place, and the 3d of July next as the date, at which time the citizens of Natick, and others interested in its history, will celebrate on the 4th of July the 250th anniversary of the founding there of John Eliot's Village of "Praying Indians," now known as South Natick, Oldtown, Old Natick. His descendants will be invited, Correspondents may address George E. Elliot, Clinton, Ct.

John A. King

OBITUARY.

KING, JOHN ALSOP, born in Jamaica, N. Y., July 14, 1817; died in New York, November 21, 1900. He was a grandson of Rufus King, U. S. Senator from New York, and Minister to Great Britain, and the second son of the late John Alsop King, Governor of New York. His boyhood was passed in Jamaica, where at the age of five years he entered the classical Union Hall Academy, leaving there at the age of fifteen to enter Harvard College in the Sophomore class. From this institution he was graduated with much credit at the age of 18. He became a clerk in a leading wholesale grocery establishment, in which he remained only a short time, being unwilling to conform to certain practices in mixing goods, which were customary. He then began the study of law, and was duly admitted to the Bar, practicing his profession in New York for several years.

In 1839 he married Mary Colden Rhinelander, only daughter of Philip Rhinelander and Mary Hoffman. Shortly afterwards he passed some time in Europe, a residence there being several times repeated, and two winters in Egypt. In 1844, loving the country, he bought a point of land at Hallett's Point, Great Neck, L. I., on the Sound, built a house there, and made this his home during the remainder of his life, though for many years he passed his winters with his family in Washington, D. C., the refined society of which they enjoyed, and after the death of his wife in 1894, in New York. His bright, affable and courteous disposition soon won him friends among his neighbors, and of course led him to interest himself in the affairs of the town and county in which he had settled. Agricultural pursuits occupied much of his attention, and as a result he became an active member of the societies in Queens County. Having decided views on the political questions of the day, a hereditary Republican, he sought the promotion of its principles, for which he was rewarded by being made a president elector in 1872, and afterwards served in the Senate of New York for two years in 1874 and 1875. In 1876 he was nominated in his district as a member of the House of Representatives of the U. S., but was defeated, his district being strongly democratic. Again in 1880, he was nominated for Congress, meeting with the same result. From that time, through to the day of his death, he continued deeply interested in the welfare of his country; but he was no longer prominent in politics, devoting himself to other and congenial pursuits.

With strong conscientious convictions, and a love for the church in which he had been brought up, and whose teachings he continued through life to accept, the Protestant Episcopal Church, he at once sought to foster the church in his neighborhood at Little Neck, L. I., becoming in time one of its wardens, and giving his thought and time quietly, but heartily, to secure its welfare. When in later years a new parish was formed at Great Neck, he and his family were among the warmest and most active advocates and promoters of its welfare, and in every way he contributed largely to its growth and present prosperity, being a church warden until his death. Bishop Littlejohn, of the Diocese of Long Island, thus sums up his sphere of work: "The ideal warden of his parish, for many years a member of the Missionary committee, and of the chapter of the Cathedral of the Incarnation, a trustee of the Episcopal fund, and of the aged and infirm clergy fund; a manager of the church Charity Foundation—all these in the Diocese of Long Island—a trustee of the General Theological Seminary, one of the board of managers of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society, a delegate to nine successive General Conventions, a trustee of King Hall, Washington D. C., of which he was the founder and fosterer, for the higher education of the colored race."

His sympathy and active help in other directions, among others, the welfare of the blind, were felt, but so quietly and unobstrusively that their existence were only known by the benefit conferred. At the time of his death he was a member of the Harvard Club, of the St. Nicholas Society, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, and President, from 1887 to 1900 inclusive, of the New York Historical Society. Of the last he was devoting himself to the promotion of its purposes and earnestly seeking to secure a new building for the preservation of its valuable library and fine collection of portraits and other treasures.

His character and relations to that Society were admirably summed up in the address delivered before its members, at its February meeting, 1901, by his successor as president, Rev. Eugene Hoffman, D.D., Dean of the General Episcopal Seminery. Such was his life: in all its relation from his youth up, he was conscientious, faithful and prudent in the performance of duties assumed or placed upon him, courteous and affable in manners, and a sincere Christian man. Rev. William Wilkinson, in his History of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1898, says of him: "He has the profound respect of all the deputies from Maine to California; an upright man, of few words, but wise in judgment, devout in life, generous in gifts, and the soul of honor."

J. G. W.

JOSEPH HENRY PETTY, a former Librarian of this Society, and a friend of the institution for many years interested in its aims and objects, died at his home in Amityville, L. I., on Feb. 9th, last. He was a son of Ezekiel Petty, of "Aquebogue," L. I., and was born in New York City, Aug. 19th, 1826. Mr. Petty was educated in a private school in New York, and after a few years spent in the employ of a building firm of this city, became Clerk of the Suffolk Co. Surrogate's office under Judge Bradford. He served as Assemblyman and Senator in the Legislature of this State, and subsequently became a captain of the Metropolitan Police Force. In 1878 Mr. Petty removed to Amityville where he spent the remainder of his days, and occupied his time in the work of the local Board of Education of which he was President at the time of his death. Mr. Petty married in 1852 Caroline Van Buren, of Hackensack, N. J., by whom he had four children, two of whom are now living at Amityville, L. I.

Mexico, Feb. 6, 1901. The youngest son of Bishop Alonzo Potter, he was born in Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 20, 1836. From Union College, N. Y., he received the Bachelor's degree in 1861. His theological degree was obtained from the Berkeley Divinity School in Middletown, Conn., in 1863. His life was spent as Associate-Rector, or Rector in several churches, and as Professor and President in Colleges and Universities. He declined the election to the Bishopric of Nebraska. In 1897, he accepted the Presidency of the Cosmopolitan Educational University Extension, an Institution "designed to give University Instruction by means of correspondence courses." A widow and children survive. He became a member of our Society in 1900, and during that year read an interesting paper at one of its meetings. Robert Potter, his emigrant ancestor, came to New England in 1634. Previous to 1643, he became a member of the church in Roxbury, Mass., but not being in harmony with their religious views, he betook himself to Rhode Island, where he remained, refusing "to heare the church who had lovingly sent after him." On account of his heretical opinions, he was for a time confined in Rowley, Mass. In his adopted state he held many positions of honor and trust, and it is recorded that he was "licensed to keep an ordinary or tavern in Warrick" in 1655.

SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS.

THE first meeting of the year was held on the evening of Friday, January 11th, and it being the annual meeting the reports of officers and committees for the preceding year were read, a resumé of which will appear in the forthcoming year book. At the meeting the following Trustees were re-elected for the term 1901–1904: Henry R. Stiles, M.D., Thos. G. Evans, and Bowen W. Pierson. At the close of the business Gen. Joseph Wheeler gave a graphic description of the War in the Philippines.

The February meeting was held on the evening of Friday the eighth, at which Mr. William Webster Ellsworth delivered a lecture on "The Personal Washington," illustrated by the stereopticon. The views showed portraits, autographs, account-books and views, all relating to Washington's private life.

The third meeting was held on Friday, March 8th, and was the most fully attended of any meeting in the history of the Society. Mr. W. I. Scandlin of New York presented some rare views of New York and vicinity, made from photographs taken over fifty years ago. At the close of the lecture Mr. Isaac Townsend Smith moved a resolution of thanks for the services of the retiring President, Gen. James Grant Wilson, which was unanimuosly carried and ordered spread on the minutes. The officers of the Society, elected by the Board of Trustees for the year 1901, will be found on the insert at the end of this issue.

New members elected since Jan. 1st, are as follows:—

Henry R. Drowne, Wm. H. Parsons, Wm. Nelson, Chas. E. Goodhue, Miss Kath. H. Davis, Mrs. T. H. Whitney, Belden S. Day, Louis S. Bruguière, John H. Jones, Howard Willets, Frederick K. Trowbridge, Francis B. Griffin, Jas. F. Fargo, Robert Maxwell, Harmon B. Vanderhoef, Miss Margaret J. Breen, Franklin L. Gunther, Wm. Bunker, Chris. E. Hawley, Dr. Colin S. Carter, Hon. Rastus S. Ransom, and Chas. A. Fowler.

QUERIES.

LOTT.—On page 269, Annals of Newtown, it is stated that Antje, b. 1696, da. of Joris Rapelje, and his wife Nelly Van Couwenhoven, m. Johannes Lott. On page 191, Early Settlers Kings Co., Antje Rapelje is given as wife of Johannes Pieterse Lott, his nephew. Col. Johannes Hendrickse Lott, bp. May 11, 1692, not having name of wife recorded. Johannes Pieterse was of an earlier generation, and it is not probable that he was husband of Antje Jorise Rapelje, whereas Col. Johannes Lott was her contemporary. In a list of his children on page 192, Early Settlers Kings Co., and on page 323, Bergen Family, we find Joris, Neeltje, Antje, all Rapelje names, and confirming the belief of his descendants that Col. Johannes Lott m. Antje Jorise Rapelje. Bergen seems to have been in doubt, for on page 234, Early Settlers Kings Co., we find: "Antje Jorise Rapelje m. Peter Lott of New York."

Can any one throw any light on this matter? C. T. R. M.

WE learn from Charles G. Sommers' Memoir (1835) of the Rev. John Stanford, D.D., who was Chaplain to the Humane and Criminal Institutions of New York City, born 1754, died 1834, that Dr. Stanford left a manuscript volume containing important facts relating to the history of New York which he presented to the Common Council of New York. He also left several diaries which, with the other manuscript have never been found, though Mr. Somers searched diligently for them. If any one can give information regarding their present whereabouts, the same will be gladly received by this Society.

BOOK NOTICES.

DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT GREEN AND ALLIED FAMILIES IN THE STATE OF VIRGINIA. By Holdridge Ozro Collins, of Los Angeles, California. 8vo, pp. 12.

GENEALOGY OF THE WASHINGTON FAMILY. Compiled by Holdridge Ozro Collins. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 15.

The first of these titles is a reprint from the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, July, 1900, et seq., and gives the descendants of the Robert Green of St. Mark's Parish, Virginia, who came from England in 1712. Of his seven sons the pamphlet under discussion gives the families of Duff, 3d son, three generations; John, 4th, two generations; Nicholas, 5th, one generation; and closes with a sketch of the Ballance family, a son of which married Joyce, daughter of Nicholas Green.

The second title by Mr. Collins was published by the California Soc. Sons of the Rev., of which he is president. It covers the same ground that Mr. Henry F. Waters covered in his "An Examination of the English Ancestry of George Washington," etc., 1889, but gives some added details in connection with the allied families, the Reades, the Martians, the Warners, and the Balls.

WAKEMAN GENEALOGY, 1630–1899. By Robert P. Wakeman, Meriden, Conn. The Journal Pub. Co., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 434.

To the Wakeman family the compiler announces that his book is very far short of what a good and complete history of the family should be. To this and other families we announce that the perfection he grieves over is beyond the reach of most all compilers; and we therefore have to say "This much is well done and we thank thee for it." This volume, compiled with care and affectionate interest, is a history of the descendants of Samuel Wakeman of Hartford, Ct.; and of John Wakeman, Treasurer of the New Haven Colony, with a few collaterals included. The English researches have been carried on by means of a fund contributed by various members of the family, and by the personal efforts of Dr. Emory McClintock of this city, a member of the family who has been much interested in the compilation of this work. In consequence there are many pages relating to the English ancestry which contain matter of much interest derived from wills, court records and other data. Samuel Wakeman of Hartford, was a son of Francis, of Bewdley, Worcestershire, Eng., according to this volume, and came to New England in Nov., 1631. Ten years later he was killed with Capt. Pierce in the Bahamas, and left one son Esbun, and three daughters. According to Savage, this son, Esbun, died in 1683 leaving only a daughter, who married Thomas Hill, and thus the male line of his branch ended. John Wakeman, Treasurer of New Haven Colony, was a brother of Samuel of Hartford, and consequently a son of Francis of Bewdley, Eng. The volume is concerned more particularly with the descendants of John, and of his public services; and its voluminuos contents, its sensible, serviceable binding, its good print and heavy paper, its many illustrations, as well as the thorough indexes, commend the volume to genealogists and to descendants of this family.

Digitized by Google

HOGE GENEALOGY, FROM THE FIRST OF THE NAME IN THIS COUNTRY TO THE PRESENT TIME, WITH A NUMBER OF ALLIED FAMILIES AND MANY HISTORICAL FACTS. Compiled by Orlando John Hodge. Boston. Rockwell & Churchill, 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 455.

Col. Hodge commenced this work in 1876, and, notwithstanding his arduous duties as an editor and public man, has brought it to a successful conclusion, and presented it in a form that puts both his kinsmen and the genealogical world much in his debt. Mr. Hodge has had a long and eventful career from the day he enlisted for service in the Mexican War to the present; one that has taken him to many lands including Africa, Hawaii and Alaska, as well as the continent; one that has called him to serve in the courts, in the legislative halls of his city and his state, and in the editorial chair of a city newspaper. His services, his experiences, the character of his labors, have all qualified him to compile his family history accurately, methodically, and as thoroughly as anyone else could do it. And the result is a most pleasing volume of family history conveniently arranged, well printed, well edited, well indexed, serviceably and tastefully bound. Its contents carry the family descent from John Hodge, of Killingworth, and Windsor, Ct., through eight generations, and gives information of the family regarding the name, colonial war and revolutionary service, the families of Charles, Philo, Nicholas, George, Nehemiah, Reuben, James, Levi and Andrew Hodge, and the Hodge families of Northern New England, Philadelphia, Lansingburgh, Pa., North Carolina, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Maryland and Virginia. The volume closes with accounts of unclassified Hodges, marriages, allied families, historical incidents, and an excellent index. Col. Hodge has completed a noble work for which we are one and all sincerely grateful. Copies may be had of the author at Cleveland, Ohio.

GENEALOGICAL AND HISTORICAL NOTES ON CULPEPER COUNTY, VIRGINIA. EMBRACING A REVISED AND ENLARGED EDITION OF DR. PHILIP SLAUGHTER'S HISTORY OF ST. MARK'S PARISH. Compiled and published by Raleigh Travers Green, Culpeper, Va., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 300. Price, $5.00.

The inception of this volume was a demand for a revised edition of Dr. Slaughter's History of St. Mark's Parish, and it was the intention of the publisher to confine himself to that work and so produce a volume of about 150 pages. So much information was sent to him after advertised requests however, that the publisher decided to give it out to the public and hence the volume grew to twice its original size. The families included in its pages are as follows: Ashby, Ball, Barbour, Boaddus, Brown, Browning, Bryan-Lillard, Carter, Cave, Clayton, Coldman, Conway, Cooke, Field, Fry, Garnett, Glassell, Green, Grinnan, Henry-Winston, Hill, Jones, Lillard-Bryan, Madison, Mason, Micou, Pendleton, Rice, Slaughter, Somerville, Spotswood, Strother, Taylor, Thorn, Thomas, Thompson, Williams, Winston-Henry, and Yancey. The volume is divided into two parts, the first containing a history of St. Mark's Parish, Culpeper Co., Va., with notes of old churches and families, and illustrations of the manners and customs of the olden time by Rev. Philip Slaughter, D.D., Rector of Emmanuel Church, Culpeper Co., Va. Part one also contains portrait and sketch of Dr. Slaughter. The second part contains a history of Culpeper County with much genealogical matter alphabetically arranged, and the marriage record from 1781–1825. Copies may be had of the publishers, who have also issued a volume on the Battle of Culpeper, by Maj. Dan'l A. Grimsley of the 6th Va. Cav., and are about to issue "Soldiers of the Revolution" in pamphlet form.

HARLEIAN SOCIETY PUBLICATIONS.

The fourth volume of "MUSGRAVE'S OBITUARY" (L—Pa), edited by Sir George J. Armytage, Bart., F.S.A., is now being issued to the Members of the Harleian Society. The fifth volume of this exhaustive work is in the press, and the sixth and final volume in the transcriber's hands. The Society is also issuing to the Members of the Register Section, Vol. I., of "THE REGISTER OF BATH ABBEY," containing the Christenings and Marriages recorded there from 1569 to 1800, edited by Arthur J. Jewers. The second volume which is in the press will give the Burials for the same period, with an index to the whole.

The twenty-fourth volume of "ARCHÆOLOGIA CANTIANA," being the Transactions of the Kent Archæological Society, just sent to the Members, has been edited by the Rev. Canon C. F. Routledge, M.A., F.S.A. It contains the second and concluding part of the valuable monograph by Mr. W. H. St. John Hope, M.A., on "The Architectural History of the Cathedral Church and Monastery of St. Andrew at Rochester," illustrated with several large plans, beautifully drawn and colored. Other learned papers are contributed by Mr. George Payne, F.L.S., F.S.A., the Rev. G. M. Livett, Lord Northbourne, the late Mr. George Dowker, F.G.S., Mr. A. A. Arnold, F.S.A., etc. The volume is well illustrated, and a copious index is given.

MEMORIAL OF ST. MARK'S CHURCH IN THE BOWERY. Published by the Vestry, New York. Thos. Whittaker, 2 & 3 Bible House. 1899. 8 vo, cloth.

St. Mark's Church stands upon ground which is the oldest church site on Manhattan Island. The corner-stone of the present edifice, which has since been altered and ornamented, was laid on St. Mark's Day, Saturday, April 25th, 1795, Bishop Provoost officiating. The ground previous to that time had been occupied by a chapel built prior to 1660 by Gov. Stuyvesant. This volume, containing a history of the church, was published on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the dedication, and gives an account of the commemorative services, sermons and addresses, biographies of the rectors, lists of wardens and vestrymen, treasurers, clerks, pewholders, assistant ministers, organists, sextons, memorial tablets, and other interesting data concerning this historic edifice. The book is beautifully illustrated with views of the church and portraits of its rectors, and may be had of the publisher.

A SKETCH OF THE MUNRO CLAN, ALSO OF WILLIAM MUNRO, WHO, DEPORTED FROM SCOTLAND, SETTLED IN LEXINGTON, MASS., AND OF SOME OF HIS POSTERITY, TOGETHER WITH A LETTER FROM SARAH MUNRO TO MARY MASON DESCRIPTIVE OF THE VISIT OF PRESIDENT WASHINGTON TO LEXINGTON IN 1789. By James Phinney Munroe, 1900. Pub. by George H. Ellis, 272 Congress St., Boston. 8vo, boards, pp. 80. Price, seventy-five cents.

The title of this volume sets forth its contents and we can only add that its compiler has issued it for the benefit of those not fortunate enough to possess a copy of his voluminous "History of the Munros" published in 1898, and now both scarce and high priced. He informs us that this "sketch" is in no sense a substitute for his larger work but is founded upon the latter, and "presents clearly the main points, emphasizing those of special interest to the American branches of the family." The book is finely printed in antique type upon laid paper, and is bound, in the early fashion, in boards with pasted labels.

GENEALOGIES OF THE BINGHAM FAMILY IN THE UNITED STATES, ESPECIALLY OF THE STATE OF CONNECTICUT, INCLUDING NOTES ON THE BINGHAMS OF PHILADELPHIA, AND OF IRISH DESCENT, WITH PARTIAL GENEALOGIES OF ALLIED FAMILIES. Compiled by Theo. A. Bingham (Col. U. S. Army), Harrisburgh, Pa. Harrisburgh Pub. Co., 1898. 8vo, pp. 249. Paper, $4.50, cloth, $5.00.

This comprehensive volume is the only one of the name of Bingham which we know of, and from its contents we would say that probably any American of that patronymic can find himself or some family connections. Special attention has been paid to the early fathers, including their connection with the old country, which the compiler has tried to make as accurate as possible. It represents a work of fifteen years' duration, gives the origin of the name, the family in England, their connection with English nobility, the Coat of Arms, Irish family traditions, the Connecticut Binghams, and Binghams of Irish descent. Of the allied families it gives the genealogies of Rutherford, Titon, deLabeaume, Grew, Johnson, Foote, Clarke, Whiting. The book is excellently printed on laid paper, well illustrated, and completely indexed.

ANCESTORS AND DESCENDANTS OF JOSEPH WESTCOT TINKER, 1638–1900. Compiled by Frederick James Libbie. Printed privately. Boston, 1900.

This pamphlet of 36 pages opens with a copy of the text of the Mayflower Compact and the names of the signers thereto, among which is that of Thomas Tinker. It will be remembered that this Thomas, with both his wife and only child, died during the "first sickness," and hence was not the progenitor of the American Tinker family. The Rev. William Durant of Saratoga, N. Y., who is preparing a comprehensive genealogy of the family is of the undoubted opinion that John Tinker, who came to New England in 1636, is the common ancestor; but may have been related to Thomas of the Mayflower. This pamphlet, then, gives the descendants in one line of John Tinker through ten generations.

PHILIP VICKERS FITHIAN, JOURNAL AND LETTERS, 1767–1774. Edited for the Princeton Historical Association by John Rogers Williams, Princeton, N. J. The University Library. 8 full-page illustrations, 8vo, pp. 344. Price, $3.00 (postpaid).

Philip Vickers Fithian was born in Cumberland County, New Jersey, December 29th, 1747; entered Princeton College in 1770; became private tutor at Nomini Hall in Virginia in 1773; was a missionary in Western Pennsylvania, 1774–5; became chaplain in the Revolutionary Army, and died near Fort Washington, October 8th, 1776. The volume of Fithian's papers now published covers the period 1767–74, and contains his complete papers during the period—exercises, speeches, letters, and journal, so far as they have any bearing on historical persons or places, and also a few representative papers illustrating merely his own character and circumstances. Only college exercises and unimportant letters have been omitted, and everything that is included is represented verbatim et literatim. The notes include biographical and genealogical sketches of many Virginia families, and in general of the prominent families and persons mentioned in the text.

ENGLISH RECORD OF THE WHALEY FAMILY AND ITS BRANCHES IN AMERICA. By Rev. Samuel Whaley. Andrus and Church, Ithaca, N. Y., 1901. 8vo, pp. 233.

This is the title of a large manuscript volume by Rev. Samuel Whaley, of Riverhead, N. Y. The genealogy of this family has been remarkably well preserved. Mr. John Nichols, F.S.A., in his "Antiquities of Leicester County, England," has given, in a lineage design, the successive generations of this family down to the Commonwealth—a period of six hundred years. All English records make the founder of this family Wyamarus Whaley, who came over with William the Conqueror, the Duke of Normandy. From him all the English families of this name claim descent. From the original Wyamarus Whaley to the days of the regicides, twelve generations are given. The family became numerous and held high and honored positions, and in the opening of the Civil War, most of them remained loyal to the king. Edward, the regicide, was the son of Richard Whaley, of the eleventh generation, in the pedigree of the family, who is spoken of as a man of "munificence and energy." Two of the sons settled in New York and vicinity, and one in Fairfield, Conn.; the other two in North Parish, New London, Conn. This family were from the North of Ireland.

It was not the intention of the compiler of this book to produce a complete family history, and he frankly states that such would be a more serious labor than he would care to confront. He has purposed instead "to discover the origin of the family; to trace it from that origin down to its establishment in the New World; to indicate the lineage which sprang from the ancestral emigration; and to push one lineage down to the middle of the nineteenth century." Libraries, public documents, civic records and church registers in England, Holland and France have been examined by the compiler, and a list presented in his preface. Regarding the American citations these appear in the text or in foot notes. The contents consist of chapters as follows: Origin of the name; Avesnes and its early de Forests, descendants of Melchoir de Forest, 2d, Jean and Jesse; The Walloon Emigration of 1623-4: Sequal of the Walloon Colony; The Stratford, Conn., de Forests: David C. de Forest; Children of Benjamin 2d. An appendix of six parts gives records, registers and family data, historic papers and genealogical notations concerning various de Forest families.

"LADY HANCOCK," A STORY OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. By Mary Elizabeth Springer. Isaac H. Blanchard Co., Pub., New York, 1900. 12mo, pp. 267.

Miss Springer, the author of this book, is the recording secretary of the New York City Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and her long connection with that organization, her active interest in its patriotic and historical work, qualify her to produce a book of this kind. As the title proclaims it is a story of the American Revolution in which the events of that stirring contest are not merely referred to, but related in detail, in simple, direct, narrative style. The romance of the story centers in Dorothy Quincy, who became the wife of John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress, and a leading spirit of the Revolutionary party. Copies of this book may be had of the author, No. 148 West 64th St., N. Y. City.

LEWIS ALLEN, OF WATERTOWN FARMS (WESTON), MASS., 1665, AND HIS DESCENDANTS. By Allen H. Bent of Boston. David Clapp & Son, Boston, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 33.

"Lewis Allen of Watertown Farms (Weston), Mass.," says this pamphlet, "seems to have been neglected by most of the early genealogical writers, except Bond, who unfortunately confuses some of his descendants with those of Walter Allen. The two families located in the same precinct at about the same time, but do not appear to have been related." It is the purpose of this pamphlet to straighten out this confusion, and the descendants are given for seven generations, of which the first three are reprinted from the New Eng. Register for October, 1900.

GENEALOGY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN WHITE OF WENHAM AND LANCASTER, MASS., 1638-1900. In two volumes. By Almira Larkin White, of Haverhill, Mass. Chase Bros., Printers, Haverhill, 1900. 8vo, cloth.

The first volume of this splendid work is just from the press. It contains nine hundred and thirty pages, forty-six illustrations, and a complete copy of Mrs. Mary (White) Rowlandson's book, printed in 1682, telling of her captivity among the Indians. Volume one contains a full record of the first five generations of the family, with wills, deeds, and other probate records, and branches from the fifth generation to the present day, of John White's older children. The second containing the branches of the younger children, will be uniform in size and work, and will be ready soon. Each volume will be separately indexed, and will be bound in cloth; price, $5.00 per volume. Address the compiler, 81 Fountain St., Haverhill, Mass.

THE DOWNERS OF AMERICA, WITH GENEALOGICAL RECORD. By David R. Downer, Newark, N. J., 1900. 8vo, cloth.

The Downer genealogy, bearing the title "The Downers of America," has been published. It was sent out to first subscribers early in September, and seems to have met with general favor and approval. The work contains 244 pages octavo of printed matter, the Downer Coat of Arms in Colors, forty-six portraits of prominent members of the family, a picture of the house in Boston, in which Dr. Eliphalet Downer of Revolutionary War and Paul Jones fame, lived, and other pictures. It is fully indexed and mentions over 1,000 names of other families with whom the Downers intermarried, or were otherwise associated. Price, delivered free, $4.00 for cloth, and $5.00 for half morocco binding. If desired it will be sent for examination. A number of extra copies of the Downer Coat of Arms in colors (the same which appears in the book, and which measures 3½ x 4¾ inches overall), have been nicely printed on 9 x 12 paper suitable for framing, and will be sent on receipt of seventy-five cents. The same in black and white, measuring 2 x 2½ inches, also suitable for framing, and printed on 6 x 9 paper, will be sent for twenty-five cents. Address the compiler, 15 New Jersey Ave., Newark, N. J.

MEMORIALS OF THE QUISENBERRY FAMILY IN GERMANY, ENGLAND AND AMERICA. Compiled and edited by Anderson C. Quisenberry, Washington, D. C. Gibson Bros., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 137. Price, $3.00.

This book contains the family from Tielmann Questenberg (born 1380), of Cologne, Germany, through his grandson, Heinrich Questenberg, who married in England in 1468 and settled there, where his descendants for 250 years were called Questenburg, Quessenberry, etc.; and whence Thomas Questenbury came to Virginia about 1625, and was the origin of the American family of that name variously spelled. The German and English records upon which this work is based are printed in an appendix. The book is nicely illustrated, and contains the family coat-of-arms in colors, fac-similes of signatures, and of the 150 copies originally printed only a few are left. For copies address the compiler, Inspector-General's Office, Washington, D. C.

THE WADE GENEALOGY. Illustrated. Compiled by Stuart C. Wade, New York, 1900. Parts 1 & 2, 8vo, pamphlets. Price, One Dollar each. Address the compiler, 146 West 34th Street, N. Y. City.

Part one of this valuable work appeared in May last, and part two is just from the press. They are nicely printed, and bound in stiff paper with continuous pagination, the second part ending with page 192, with more to follow. The work is an account of the origin of the name, and of the lost folk-story of the famous hero, Wada, particulars and pedigrees of famous Englishmen of the name, and genealogies of the families of Wade of Massachusetts and New Jersey, to which are added many miscellaneous pedigrees, also a roll of honor of the Wades who went to war. The illustrations are portraits, views and coats-of-arms. The entire work when completed will contain 960 pages in all, with 60 illustrations. With part 10 will appear title page, table of contents and index, also, a special set of pages for the inscription of the purchaser's family record. The compiler's ability to publish the remainder of the book depending entirely upon the sale of the first part, he earnestly appeals to every person of the name to subscribe. Aside from the value of the book as a record of people bearing the patronymic it is both valuable and interesting as a history of a famous family.

ONTARIO HISTORICAL SOCIETY, PAPERS AND RECORDS. Vol. II. 8vo, paper. Toronto, 1900.

Volume two of these papers is an account of the United Empire Loyalist Settlement at Long Point, Lake Erie, by L. H. Tasker of the Collegiate Institute, Niagara Falls, N. Y. These supporters on the wrong side of the American Revolution, exposed to insult, publicly ostracised, their lives in danger and property confiscated, stood for the unity of the empire until compelled to seek refuge on British soil, and as the author of this work truly says, their story, though ever told, is ever new. Mr. Tasker has presented their side of the case with a masterly hand, and after a perusal of this work the truly broad must concede that all men, right or wrong, are entitled to the courage of their convictions, and that the participants on both sides of an international war have an equal right to exclaim "dulce et decorum est pro patria mori."

HISTORY AND PROCEEDINGS OF THE POCUMTUCK VALLEY MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION, 1890–1898. Vol. III. Deerfield, Mass., U. S. A. Pub. by the Assoc., 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. 561.

The edition of this publication, edited by the Chairman of the Committee on Publication, Mr. George Sheldon, is limited to 300 copies. It contains the proceedings of the Annual and Field meetings of the Association for a period of nine years, with addresses, biographies, poems, reminiscences, historical treatises, odes, and more or less complete genealogical data of the families of Severance and York; also a list of officers of the Association. Space will not permit us to enumerate the many historical treatises incorporated in this interesting volume: we can only say they are there, and that the whole is carefully and fully indexed.

THE CRADLE OF THE REPUBLIC; JAMESTOWN AND JAMES RIVER. By Lyon Gardiner Tyler, Pres. of Wm. & Mary's College, Richmond, Va. Whittet & Shepperson, 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 187.

We of the nineteenth century look back to the time when that ill-assorted collection of men came in their three ships and planted the first colony on American soil as though it were a far-off period; and yet it was but as yesterday when "the old world first met the new." With thoughts filled with the glowing accounts of the land of paradise where gold mines were abundant, and the natives a peaceful, friendly set, waiting to welcome the white man with open arms, what must have been their disappointment to find a land of virgin forest and hostile inhabitants, and work, work, work of the roughest sort! Then came starvation, sickness, Indian attacks, and internal dissention; a period of partial prosperity, and then the "Starving Time" that reduced the Colony to forty souls. Fiske refers to this period as one of cannibalism, and gives instances of men killing their wives and devouring them. This statement has gone unchallenged, and we had hoped to find something bearing upon the subject in Dr. Tyler's book, but all reference to it is omitted. But what the author does give is page after page of historic detail, told in a narrative style of most interesting tenor, and accounts of the settlement of nearby places, with the names and doings of the settlers. These, with the reproductions of maps and drawings of the period, as well as extracts from the writings of persons contemporaneous with the early history of Jamestown, make up a scholarly volume upon a subject of vast interest to the student of history, of whatsoever nationality he may be. It was truly the cradle of the republic; and ere the sturdy band of determined Pilgrims had pressed their feet upon Plymouth Rock, Jamestown had begun, had starved and begun again, had fought, and bled, and watched, and worked—and firmly planted itself forever.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES AND REMINISCENCES OF AN OCTOGENARIAN. By Thomas L. Preston. Pub. for the author by B. F. Johnson Pub. Co., Richmond, Va., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 170.

Mr. Preston in these Reminiscences has risen to the occasion and discharged a duty to the historical world. None knew better than he how important it is that the statements of "oldest inhabitants" are of value always and should be recorded; none regreted more than he that historians of Virginia have, for the most part, confined themselves to the eastern part of the State, while the records and traditions of the territory beyond the Alleghany Mountains have been forgotten, and neglected lie. So it is, with memory refreshed by examination of records, with energy spurred by a sense of obligation to friends and antiquarians, the author of this entertaining book has set down the facts relating to events of historic interest that have occurred within his lifetime. The book is full of anectodes and historical sketches and one reads it with both pleasure and profit.

HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF HARRISON CO., IN THE STATE OF OHIO, WITH LISTS OF THE FIRST LAND-OWNERS, EARLY MARRIAGES (TO 1841), WILL RECORDS (TO 1861), BURIAL RECORDS OF THE EARLY SETTLEMENTS AND NUMEROUS GENEALOGIES. By Chas. A. Hanna, New York. Privately printed, 1900.

OHIO VALLEY GENEALOGIES, RELATING CHIEFLY TO FAMILIES IN HARRISON, BELMONT AND JEFFERSON COUNTIES, OHIO, AND WASHINGTON, WESTMORELAND AND FAYETTE COUNTIES, PA. By Chas. A. Hanna. Privately printed, 1900.

The first of these titles consists of a large octavo volume of 636 pages. It contains a very full account of the origin of the Scotch-Irish, German, Quaker, and other people comprising the population of the County; with an extensive history of the first settlement of eastern Ohio and of Harrison County; descriptions of pioneer life, its perils and hardships; and detailed accounts of the settlement and growth of the older communities and institutions of the County. The work also contains information and data relating to the history of the various families of the County. This data consists of a complete list of the original land patentees of the County (1,800 names) taken from the records of the General Land Office at Washington; a list of the early marriages of the County (7,500 names); the early burials of the County (5,000 names); and will records from 1813 to 1861 (several thousand names). Besides these features there are genealogies more or less complete of most of the families of Harrison, with map of Harrison County, and portraits of many of its citizens. This book is artistically bound, and costs, in cloth, $4.50; in half leather, $5.25; in full leather, $6.00.

The second is an octavo volume of 172 pages, containing an introductory account of the origin of the Scotch-Irish, German, Quaker, and other people comprising the population of the Upper Ohio Valley, with genealogies of one or more branches of the various families. The book will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, $2.00 for cloth binding; $2.50 for half leather binding; $3.00 for full leather binding. Address, Charles A. Hanna, 43 W. 32d Street, New York.

VOL. XXXII. NEW YORK, JULY, 1901. No. 3.

THE PUBLIC CAREER OF ROBERT LIVINGSTON.

BY WALTER L. FLEMING.

Robert Livingston was born December 13, 1654, at Ancram, Scotland. His father, a Presbyterian clergyman, was one of the commissioners from Scotland to Charles II., when in exile at Breda. After the restoration his opposition to the Episcopacy made him obnoxious to the court party, and he went to Rotterdam where he became the pastor of an English Presbyterian Church.*

In Holland Robert acquired a knowledge of the Dutch people and their language, which was of great service to him in New York. In 1674 he left Rotterdam and came to Albany, where he became, as Governor Fletcher afterwards said, "a little bookkeeper."

The next year Governor Andros instituted a general court of the County of Albany. Livingston was made clerk of this court, and secretary to the Board of Commissioners for Indian Affairs, which was created at the same time.† At first the latter position carried no salary with it, but in 1696, King William fixed the salary at £100 for life. When Albany was incorporated in 1686, by Governor Dongan, Livingston was made Town Clerk, Clerk of the Peace, and Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas. Dongan also appointed him Collector and Receiver of Quitrents and Excises at Albany, with a promise of a shilling in the pound on all money that passed through his hands, "which with his other offices might afford him a competent maintenence," the governor said.‡ Peter Schuyler and Livingston had secured the charter for Albany from Dongan, and the magistrates voted thanks to them for their services. A gift of £500 was made to Dongan in return for the charter. A few years later we find that in consideration of the various duties performed by Livingston as clerk, the Council of Albany advanced his salary for that office from fifteen to twenty pounds a year.§ From the collector's office he received fifty pounds a year.‖

By his marriage in 1683, with Alida, the sister of Peter Schuyler and widow of the Rev. Nicholas Van Renssalaer, Livingston became connected with one of the most prominent and influential Dutch families of the province. Not long after his marriage he claimed a share of the Van Renssalaer estate on the ground that his wife was heir to the shadowy claim of Nicholas Van Renssalaer. He lost his case, but the heirs made him an allowance of money. Once the Dutch Church of Albany was in need of money, and Livingston had such good success in collecting for it, that he was rewarded with the choice of seats in the church, "to belong to him and his successors forever."*

His income from his various official positions was carefully invested, and he soon became one of the wealthiest men of the colony. He was the only man in the province who could undertake a government contract and wait for his pay until the taxes were collected. For this reason, nearly all such contracts fell into his hands, and on all of them he made money. While he waited for his pay, and for some of it he waited twenty-five years, the interest was accumulating, so that sometimes his bills, when paid, would be double the original amount.† In the long run he never failed to collect a debt due him.

His connection with the Indian Commissioners afforded him many advantages in the way of private trade with the Indians and the French. His official business made him acquainted with the location of the best tracts of unoccupied lands. Ambitious to be the owner of a vast estate, he quietly extinguished the Indian titles to these lands, and then secured patents for them from the governor. For one large tract of land he paid: "300 Guilders in Zewant, Eight Blankets and two Childs' Blankets, Five and twenty ells of Duffels and four garments of Strouds, ten large shirts and ten small ditto, ten pairs of large Stockings and ten pairs of Small, Six Guns, fifty pounds of powder, Fifty staves of Lead, four caps, Ten Kettles, Ten Adzes, Ten axes, Two pounds of paint, Twenty little scissors, Twenty little Looking glasses, one hundred fishhooks, Awls and Nails of each one hundred, four rolls of Tobacco, one hundred Pipes, ten Bottles, Three Kegs of Rum, one Barrill of Strong Beer, and Twenty Knives, Four Stroud Coats, and Two Duffels Coats, and four Tin Kettles."‡ At another time, "A certain Crippled Indian Woman . . acknowledges to have received full satisfaction by a cloth garment and a cotton shift for her share and claim to a certain Flatt of Land situate in the Manor of Livingston."§ In this manner the Indian titles were secured to a tract of land east of the Hudson, extending sixteen miles along the river and twenty-four miles inland. A surveyor's map of 1715 gives the number of acres at 160,240.‖ The popular estimate was 250,000 acres. In 1686, Dongan granted Livingston a patent for this territory.¶ It was erected into a Manor with the privilege of holding a Court Baron and a Court Leet, and the advowson of all the churches within the Manor. The quit-rent for this immense domain was twenty-eight shillings a year.

Near the close of Dongan's administration, Livingston made large advances of money to pay and subsist the troops, for gifts to the Indians, and for the needs of French prisoners. It was more than twenty years before he collected this loan. Henceforth until the end of his life, whether in office or out of office, in England or in America, he occupied his time in urging his old claims and in making new ones, in seeking special privileges and salaries for himself or family—all the time becoming more and more a leading man in colony affairs. He was almost the only man to whom the governors could turn when the government was in financial straits, and always receive assistance. His services in this way to the government were very valuable.

Livingston's interests were for the most part those of the aristocratic party, composed of the wealthy men and great landed proprietors of the province. But at short notice he could change to the opposite side. "He could turn his coat easier than any man living; this became an inherited trait, cropping out among his posterity."* His fortune had been made through the friendship of Andros and Dongan, both of whom were devoted to the Stuarts, and when the news of the Revolution reached Albany, it was unwelcome to Livingston. He feared the results of a change of rulers and, as his fathers before him had been, was a supporter of the Stuarts. He publicly expressed his ill opinion of the attempt of William of Orange to dethrone James II., though afterwards he in a letter to the Secretary of State said: "The news of their Majesties accession was refreshing as a reprieve to the condemned,"† and he further says he proclaimed them himself. He had, he explained, opposed the usurpation of Leisler, not the government of William and Mary.

When the news of the Revolution came to New York, Jacob Leisler, a captain of one of the militia companies of the city and a leader of the popular party, took possession of the fort with his company, and declared his intention to hold it for William and Mary. So far very well, but his head was turned by events which soon followed. A communication from the government of William and Mary addressed to Lieutenant-Governor Francis Nicholson, or in his absence to "whomsoever might be acting in his place," fell into Leisler's hands and was sufficient authority for him to constitute himself lieutenant-governor and commander-in-chief. The aristocratic party of Albany had no desire to submit to the self-assumed authority of this popular leader, so the officers of Albany met in convention, and controlled by Robert Livingston, who was secretary of the convention, resolved that until William and Mary were heard from all public business should be managed by the mayor, aldermen, and justices-of-the-peace.‡

The New York frontiers were at the mercy of the Indians and French, who had begun war after the accession of William, so the convention sent Livingston as a delegate to "Canetticut and Boston to declare the condition of the country, and desire y^t^ all Endevors may be used to Rigg out vessels toward Quebec, and Prevent all succor comeing from france and to Request y^e^ assistance of fifty men and one hundred Barrells of Porke and Beefe, and if no men can be obtained then £400 in money."* Livingston "desyred to be excused from goeing to N. England, not judgeing himself cappable of mannageing a Bussinesse of y^t^ moment."† However, he was prevailed upon to go, and set out just about the time the reports of his utterances regarding the Revolution reached the ears of Leisler. Fearing that any assistance that might be obtained would be used against him, and suspecting that Livingston would endeavor to break down his influence in New England,‡ Leisler sent officers with warrants to arrest Livingston. One of the warrants read:

"Whereas, one Robert Livingston by the Instigacôn of the Devill did utter ye malice of his heart in Saying that he was Enformed that a parcell of rebells were gone out of holland to England and that ye prince of Orange headed them Saying that they might see how they got out of againe or words to this purpose and that they should come to ye same End that monmouth did and hath cômitted other high crimes,

These are in his Ma^tie^s name to will and require all persons . . . to apprehend . . . said Livingston and bring him before me . . . Jacob Leisler."‡

There is no doubt but that Livingston made use of the expressions charged against him. Leisler's officers secured a number of sworn statements from persons who had heard him,§ but it was a slight basis for a charge of treason. No one but Leisler in his strange new dignity would have noticed such a matter.

Livingston's house was searched for treasonable documents, but none were found. But a priest's regalia and a number of Indian catechisms which had been captured and deposited with him were found, and served as ground for renewed accusations. He was outlawed and his property sequestrated to the crown.‖ Governor Treat of Connecticut, informed Leisler that Livingston would be arrested and tried in Connecticut courts if some one would appear and make security for the successful prosecution of the case, or for the payment of damages if Livingston should be acquitted.¶ This was not done and he was never molested.

Livingston drew up strong addresses to the legislatures of Connecticut and Massachusetts, asking assistance for the defense of Albany and the New York frontier. At the same time he set to work to detach the colonies from the interests of Leisler, and succeeded. A plan for the invasion of Canada by way of the Hudson River and Lake Champlain was drawn up by him, and laid before the governments of Connecticut and Massachusetts. The capture of Quebec, it was urged, would be "the downfall of Anti-Christ," and "the plunder ten times pay the charge of the expedition." But Massachusetts was fitting out an expedition of her own against Port Royal where plunder was nearer, and nothing could then be done for New York. From Connecticut, however, was obtained a small force—135 whites, and 80 Indians. Later, largely through the efforts of Livingston, an agreement was reached between Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York, to invade Canada via Lake Champlain. When Winthrop of Connecticut, who had been appointed to the chief command, went to Albany where the forces were to be collected, he took Livingston along under his protection. He made Livingston's house his headquarters, guarded him and refused to allow him to be arrested, to the great disgust and anger of Leisler.* After the army marched Livingston disappeared and was not seen again until the downfall of Leisler. The failure of the attempt against Canada was attributed by Leisler to Livingston's influence with the New England officers. He believed Livingston to be in secret sympathy with the French, who were supporting the cause of James II.

Upon the arrival of Governor Sloughter, Leisler and Milborne, his son-in-law, were thrown into prison, and after trial were condemned to death. Livingston, who had been one of Leisler's bitterest opponents, was present at the execution. Milborne caught sight of him in the crowd and addressed him in these words: "You have caused the King that I die, but before God's tribunal I will implead you for the same."†

Sloughter died before Livingston got his affairs into shape, but Fletcher, the next governor, restored his offices (1695), and made him judge-advocate of a court martial at Albany which had the management of military affairs on the frontier. Fletcher, however, refused to pay his salary as Secretary of Indian Affairs; he disliked Livingston, and neglected his claims, whereupon he went to England to urge his case in person before the Lords of the Treasury and the Board of Trade. The ship in which he took passage lost her rudder in a storm, and they were five months at sea. For seventeen weeks each person had only a little cocoanut and a pint of water a day; at last they were driven upon the coast of Portugal. Livingston travelled through Portugal and Spain, and finally reached England.‡

Before the Board of Trade, he charged Fletcher with misappropriation of public funds, which should have been used to repay the advances made for pay and subsistance of the troops. He also alleged fraud and undue influence in elections on the part of the governor. The latter charge was supported by the testimony of William Kidd.§

Livingston made many friends at court who were of great assistance to him afterwards. All of his claims were granted, his salary as Secretary was raised and fixed at £100 a year for life, and he was confirmed for life in his offices of collector, town clerk, clerk of the peace, and clerk of the Court of Common Pleas.* Some of his bills were paid in England, and he returned to New York with a royal order for the payment of the remainder from the treasury of the province. The governor and council refused to recognize his credentials and orders on the treasury, stating that he had obtained the approval of his claims by false representations to the authorities in England.† The charges made against Fletcher had been referred by the Board of Trade to the council of New York, and this body, on which were two of Livingston's brothers-in-law, was devoted to Fletcher. They opposed all of Livingston's petitions. He was an alien, they said, and therefore could not hold office. This referred to his nationality, Scotch. In their estimation, he was already sufficiently rewarded by fees, "by which he has raised himself from nothing to be one of the richest men of the province." Moreover, they went on to say, there was not, and had never been, such an office as Secretary of Indian Affairs; all dealings with the Indians having been carried on by the governor in person, and, besides, Livingston was not capable of performing any services of value in Indian affairs. All he had ever done was to translate from Dutch into English. The council (Peter Schuyler not voting) recommended that he be suspended from this office of Secretary of Indian Affairs, and that of Collector of Royal Revenues until his majesty's pleasure could be known.‡ The growing influence of Livingston was beginning to create envy and jealousy among the less fortunate. Perhaps Peter Schuyler felt just a little that his brother-in-law was rising too fast.

Concerning this matter, Governor Fletcher wrote to England: "This man by false insinuations to the Lords of Trade of his sufferings has prevailed upon their Lordps for these salaries when all know he has made a considerable fortune by his employments in the Government, never disbursing six pence but with the expectation of twelve pence, his beginning being but a little Book keeper he has screwed himself into one of the most considerable estates in the province. [I] Do hope you'll endevor to keep a man of such vile principles from sucking any more the blood of this province, for he hath been a spunge to it. . . . he is known to all men here to have neither religion nor morality, but his whole thirst being at any rate and by any ways to enrich himself and has said (I am informed) he had rather be called knave Livingston than poor Livingston."§

In a letter to the Board of Trade, Livingston made an able reply to the charges made against him by Fletcher and the council. He was not an alien, he said, having been born subsequent to the Union of Scotland and England under James I. All persons born in Scotland after the Union were British citizens.‖ The importance of the office of Secretary of Indian Affairs was shown. Not only did the secretary have to translate from Dutch into English what the interpreter rendered into Dutch, but correct records of all transactions with the Indians had to be kept, and copies sent to the governor. Forty or fifty times a year he was obliged to be present at conferences with the Indians, whenever the governor or the commissioners met representatives of the Indians. He had been sent several times on missions to the Indian tribes, and had rendered valuable services in making treaties with them.* He was largely responsible for the fact that the Five Nations acknowledged the sovereignty of England on their territory.

His charges and the efforts of his friends in London, prevented the reappointment of Fletcher, and Lord Bellomont came over as governor. Livingston had formed an acquaintance with him in England, and learning that Bellomont would probably be the next governor of New York, he took pains to ascertain his views on the government of the colony. He had learned among other things, that Bellomont would espouse the cause of the Leislerian or popular party, which, owing to the misgovernment of Fletcher, was growing more powerful. Now he found it necessary to experience a change of belief in politics. Bellomont was directed by his instructions from the Lords of Trade to examine Livingston's claims,† which he did and pronounced them correct; but neglected to make a recommendation to the Board of Trade. His offices were restored, and he was made a member of the council.‡ Bellomont relied upon his judgment, especially in matters relating to the Indians. The council formerly hostile to Livingston, acknowledged to the governor that he was the most suitable man in the colony for the offices to which he had been appointed, and for undertaking the subsistence of the soldiers.§ The governor in his reports to the English authorities, often mentioned the valuable services Livingston had rendered to the King by paying and subsisting the troops when no one else would do so.‖

He was always ready to support the government with his money, when all others were cautious about making loans which were apt to run a long time, and possibly never be repaid. The governor called Livingston the best man in the province.¶

THE FAMILY OF DUPUIS, DE PUY, DEPEW, ETC.

By Frank J. Conkling, Brooklyn, N. Y.

* Though proof is not positive, the writer by careful research and study, brings the line of descent from Francois Dupuis much nearer to the door-steps of Senator Depew than does any possible line leading from Nicholas.

The earliest positive record† of Francois places him as one of the twenty-three first inhabitants of "Boswyck," modernly pronounced Bushwick, and now a component part of Brooklyn. This record was a petition of March 14, 1661, asking for the usual privileges of a newly incorporated village. Francois was then unmarried, but no doubt was arranging for a home in which to take his prospective bride during the coming autumn. Another record,‡ year 1663, enrolls him with a Boswyck company of militia, having Ryck Lydecker as its captain. This company was evidently organized for home protection against Indian depredations. How long Francois remained at Bushwick is uncertain. William is his only child known to have been born there. Probably others were, but baptismal records of the first ten years of his marriage are not extant. Perhaps he resided in New York for a time, but there is no evidence to substantiate such a claim, unless we accept the baptismal records of the New York Reformed Dutch Church, years 1671 to 1677, during which time three of his children were there baptised. In the latter year (1677) Bergen says§ he and his wife became members of the Dutch Church at Flatbush. Certain it is that their next two children were baptised there in 1679 and 1681 respectively.‖ Yet all this does not prove that the family up to this time had changed their residence. Though it does seem singular that the Assessors of Bushwick, and other Dutch towns of Long Island, in making up their tax lists for 1675 and 1676,¶ should on both occasions skip Francois if he were a resident among them, and as he was not even down for poll tax it is fair to presume that he was absent, perhaps on Staten Island, where we find him at a later period. In this case, he had his reasons for returning to Long Island, probably in 1677, and then going back to take up his grant of eighty odd acres, bearing date December 21, 1680,* which was laid out for him on the south side of the Fresh Kill. Another Staten Island grant was made him April 4, 1685,† but this time at Smoking Point. In April, 1682, he and Robert Wright, as residents of Staten Island, appealed from a decision in a land suit, which was yet unsettled in September, 1685. The records‡ in these cases are of "Francis Pew," as the English scribes would have it; but Riker in his "History of Harlem," and Clute, in his "Annals," are good authority as to his identity. Except that Clute places him as a son of Nicholas, with nothing to back his theory but a flimsy guess. In 1686 Francois had his son Nicholas baptised in New York. The next year he turns up as a resident of Rockland County (then a part of Orange), where on September 26th, he signed an oath of allegiance§ with the other inhabitants of recently established settlements at Haverstraw and Orangetown. While three of his children married and settled in Rockland County, Francois appears to have crossed the river, previous to the census of Orange in 1702, and sat down in Westchester County, where others of his children had married and settled. After 1687 we do not find his name except on church records. His youngest child, Mary, was baptised in New York in 1689. If the record is correct he had married again; Geertje Willems having been superseded by Annie Elsten, the mother of Mary. We next find Francois with his daughter Maria, standing as sponsors or God-parents at the baptism of his grand-daughter Grietje Quorry, in the Sleepy-Hollow Church, April 1, 1702. This church a few years later recorded the same two as members, having residence on the patent of Captain DeKay and Ryck Abrahamsen (Lent.) A grandson of the latter having previously married the said Maria.‖

The archives do not unfold further information of Francois, who has become the most important factor of this paper. He probably followed the pursuit of farming, enjoying a quiet unassuming life, rather than the prominence of political or other history making activities. His children married into good families, but they too successfully avoided the record maker and burned their historical bridges to the disparagement of the one who may wish to become the family historian. It is only through the Records of the Reformed Dutch Churches of New York, Tappan,¶ Tarrytown, and Cortlandt,†† that any of the lines of Francois can be traced, and as much is lacking, it is the scraps put together, using the peculiar judgment of a genealogical student, that enables the following arrangement:

1. Willem, probably the eldest son of Francois Dupuis, was among the pioneers of the locality made famous as the birthplace of our illustrious Senator. He was there when settlement had hardly begun, a young man yet in single blessedness, and had struck camp, it would seem, on the point of land called by the Indians Meanagh* or Mernach, and afterwards named Verplancks Point. A tract of land including this point was purchased of the Indians by Stephanus Van Cortlandt in 1685. Additional purchases and a Royal charter in 1697 created the Manor of Cortlandt.† This with the Manor of Philipsburg adjoining on the south, and other large royal grants and charters established a landed gentry along the Hudson River, particularly on the east side, from New York to north of Albany. Thus a large majority of the settlers through this territory became tenants or lessees, and continued as such, followed by their descendants, for more than one hundred years. In this way many good families were held in check from participating in the progress of our Nation's history, and their talents buried to take root in later generations, where more fertile conditions, and opportunities well applied, have since brought forth some of our country's best and wisest men.

William was at Mernach as early as 1688. He had probably strayed over from Haverstraw, where his father had located a year or so before, and where his brother John continued to live for some years afterward. We can see him industriously toiling with logs and bark to make a home for his promised bride, a maiden no doubt of English parentage, born on the Island of Barbadoes. The record calls her "Lysbeth Weyt." In English we would say Elizabeth White. She was living a little further down the river at a place named by the Indians "Kightwanck,"‡ and situated near the mouth of the Croton River, which stream formerly bore the same Indian name as was given the locality. Thus we interpret the record of his bans, as posted on the register of the Dutch Church of New York, then the nearest one to their home, which church also issued a certificate permitting William to marry at the home of the bride. This is the first record of William, and as it tells pretty near his whole history up to this time, proving by his birth-place his connection with the family of Francois, it is here reproduced as follows: "10th August, 1688." "Willem Depuy, j. m. Van Boswyck, en Lysbeth Weyt, j. d. van de Barbados, d' Eerste wonende op Mernach, en twede tot Kichtewang." "Vertoog verleent, om te trouwen tot Kichtewang."

The marriage was probably executed in the most primitive style at Kichtewang during the following month, and if not the first wedding in the Manor of Cortlandt, it was the forerunner of an event that has made Peekskill renowned as the home of a great and popular orator. The index finger of family lineage points in this direction so strongly, that the writer has concluded before following it down further, to first dispose of the rest of the family of Francois.

2. Jannetje (Jane). There is no record of her birth, baptism or marriage, but Kellem MaKorry, Quorry or Quori, but possibly Cory, and Jannetje De Pu, de Py, etc., had four children baptised in New York and Tarrytown as follows: Maria, 1695; Johannes, 1697; Grietje, 1702, and Elsie, 1704. At the baptism of Johannes, the sponsors were: "Jan Waerdt and Grietje his Wife;" the latter being a sister of Jannetje, the mother. Grietje, the third child, was sponsored by her grandfather, "Francois D'Puw" and Maria, his daughter. Lack of records do not indicate that these four were her only children.

3. Grietje (Margaret), baptised October 1, 1671, in New York. She was the wife of Jan Ward of Haverstraw, when they joined the Dutch Church at Tappan, October 24, 1694.* There they had baptised the following children: Grietje, year 1700; Maria, 1702, and Willem, 1704. The census of Orange County taken in 1702,† credits John Waard and Grietje, his wife, with three girls. After 1704 they disappear.

4. Jean (John), baptised in New York May 20, 1674. The sponsors at his baptism were members of two prominent New York families, viz.: "Mr. Hans Kierstede and Margariet Hardenbroeck." John went with his father to Haverstraw, where, on April 16, 1701, the records of the Tappan Church says he married Jannetje Wiltse, widow of Myndert Hendrickse (Hogencamp). She was the mother of a family of children baptised in New York as follows: Hendrick, 1682; Jan, 1685; Margrietje, 1687; Marten, 1690; Anna, 1693, and Myndert. A younger child, Barbara, was baptised in 1700 at Tappan, who later became the wife of Edmond Concklin. The census of 1702 credits "John D'Puy" as of Haverstraw, with wife "Janneken," and six children under sixteen years of age, evenly divided as between boys and girls. These children were clearly Hogencamps; but before the year closed John added one to the family, and probably the only child he could call his own. He named her Geertje in remembrance of his mother. She was baptised at Tappan, October 14, 1702, and on January 1, 1720, married John Concklin, brother of Edmond, who had married about the same time her half sister. John and Edmond were sons of Nicholas Concklin of Kakiat, Rockland County, who had but recently moved from Eastchester, Westchester County, where he had lived for many years.

Jannetje Wiltse was baptised at Kingston,‡ New York, January 7, 1663, the daughter of Hendrick Martensen Wiltse, who afterward became a resident of Newtown,§ Long Island.

In the census of Orange County, year 1712,‖ "John Pew" and wife of Haverstraw, had but two children living at home, a boy and a girl, both under sixteen. John was a surveyor of land,¶ and established many land-marks and lines locally in Rockland County. In 1722 he acquired a tract of Orange County land, some 1250 acres of the "Evans Patent." With this transaction we lose sight of him.

15. ABEL[3] CHADSEY (William, jr.,[2] William[1]), d. Sept. 20, 1828; resided at Liverpool, Nova Scotia, where he had a farm about one mile east of the village called "Pudding Pan;" m. Mahittable Smith, Aug. 3, 1778. She d. Jan. —, 1847, and was the daughter of Stephen Smith, who m. Mahittable Eldridge at Chatham, Mass., being the third Stephen in line. He removed among the first settlers to Nova Scotia in 1760, where they had four children. Mahittable, who m. Abel Chadsey, b. March 12, 1763, being the second white child born at Liverpool, was fifteen years of age when married. Her great-grandfather was known as Deacon Stephen Smith. At the time of her death, she was living with her son Joshua, who resided at Rugged Island Bay, about 1845–7. Her remains were carried forty miles on foot to Liverpool, and buried in the Congregational Church Cemetery by the side of her husband Abel.

When young, he was a sea-faring man, and at times followed fishing along the coast. In 1774–5, he went on a whaling expedition to Labrador; on the return voyage the vessel put in at Liverpool, hearing that Britain was making trouble for the Colonies, he with his Quaker principles thought best not to return to his native State, but remained and soon after settled at Liverpool, N. S., and never returned. He was a man of strict integrity, and although never accumulating an excess of wealth, he brought his family of thirteen children up in a commendable manner. His obituary notice, published in the Liverpool paper, quoted these words: "A poor, but honest man. The noblest work of God."

HAWXHURST FAMILY.

By Robert B. Miller.

Hawxhurst is from the word "Hurst," a wood, or Hawkwood. It is beyond doubt good Saxon.

John Hawkherst was appointed Abbott of St. Augustine, in Canterbury, January 25, 1427, and it is possible that the town of Hawkhurst in Kent, early gave rise to the family name.

Bridge's History of Northants, Vol. I., p. 276: "Sampson Hawkherst, Vicar of Towcester, 1569–99.

Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica, Vol. IV., p. 377, and Vol. V., p. 4; The Register Book of Marey, County of Northant (Northampton):

"Xpo (Christopher) Hawxsworth, married October 15, 1550, Elizabeth ———. They had:

William, baptized October 15, 1551."

History of Shrewsbury, H. Owen, p. 153, Ministers of St. Chads: "Christopher Hawksworth, Died of Plague, Aug., 1576. He succeeded John Marshall, ejected on the accession of Queen Elizabeth in 1558 for refusing burial in his church to Mr. Burton of Longnor. The living of St. Chads, strictly speaking, was a 'Curacy' though it has for near a century been styled a Vicarage."

History of Shrewsbury, Shropshire (Salop), by Owen & Blakeway, Vol. II., p. 212; Incumbents of St. Chads: "Christopher Hawkshurst was probably appointed on the accession of Elizabeth. He died of plague, August, 1576."

"Our M. S. Chronicle recording that event calls him Hawckswoorthe but his true name appears in two items of our bailliff's accounts, which evince the regard paid to his memory 14 years after his decease. 1589, paid and yevan (Sic,) to Mr. Sampson Hawkshurst toward his preferment in learning in respect to his father's pains and travell in our town, 5 pounds."

"Apr. 28, 1590—Received of the Bailiffs 5 pounds for the use of Sams Hauxhurst, late son of Mr. Christopher Hauxhurst, late preacher of God's word in Salop, for his better maintenance and studi in Oxford."

No Curate appears for seven years until in 1583, when Thomas Price was appointed.

Foster's Alumni Oxonienses: "Samson Hawkhurst (Hauxhurste) of Salop—Clerici filius, Balliol Coll., (Oxford) Matriculated 6 Nov., 1590, aged 19. B. A. June 25, 1593: B. D. from Magdalen Hall, July 9, 1607—Canon Lichfield. 1607–27. Vicar of Nuneaton, Co. Warwick, 1626–27. William Haukshurst, of Co. Warwick, Clerici filius, Magdalen Hall, matriculated Nov. 6, 1618, aged 18."

The following entries occur in the "institution" books, Series A, Vol. IV., p. 143, under Warwickshire:

Nuneaton, Rex 29, May, 1626, Sampson Hauxhurst.
" " 3 Sept., 1627, Will Craddocke.

The "composition" books for 1626, show that Sampson Hauxhurst made a composition for his first fruits, his sureties being:

"Richard Overton, girdler, of the Parish of St. Peter, Cheapside, London, and Richard Baddely of Eccles Hall staff."

The Bishop's certificates of Institutions do not state the cause of the vacancy of the "living" in 1627; but in Dugdale's Warwickshire, p. 1068, there is a list of the Vicars of Nuneaton with the letters V. P. M., ie., Vacant per mortem, occur after Hawxhurst's name.

EDITORIAL.

WE have been watching with much interest the quiet, steady, unostentatious labor of our friend and correspondent, Mr. Ralph Lefevre, editor of the New Paltz (N. Y.) Independent. He has been collecting data of the early freeholders of the New Paltz Patent, which he has published for some time in his paper, besides many historic articles of much interest and value. Of the families already published we notice Bontecoe, Lefevre, Hasbrouck, Dubois, Relje, Bevier, Freer, and others. Mr. Lefevre has obtained possession of some papers which originally belonged to Hugo Freer, one of the patentees, among which is a certified list of the freeholders in 1712. It is his intention, we believe, to publish these valuable documents in the columns of the Independent and we take this occassion to express our appreciation of his public spirited generosity.

OBITUARY.

DYCKMAN.—At Orange, N. J., January 11, 1901, William Henry Dyckman, born in New York City, November 18, 1823, the son of Jacob Garrett and Mary (Preswick) Dyckman; buried in Greenwood Cemetery.

At Orange, N. J., April 27, 1901, in the 68th year of her age, Naomi F. (Mac Kenzie) Dyckman of Inverness, Scotland, widow of the late William Henry Dyckman.

KETCHAM, WILLIAM PLATT, at one time a member of our Society, and for several years its Treasurer, died of pneumonia, on the steamship Fuerst Bismarck, just before reaching Gibralter, January 13, 1901, aged 59. He was the son of Treadwell, and Mary Van Winkle Ketcham of this city, where he was born. In 1862 he received the degree of A.B., from Yale University, which subsequently conferred upon him the Master's degree. In 1864 he received the degree of LL.B. from Columbia University, New York. Subsequently he had an office as lawyer at 99 Wall street. He was a member of a number of societies and clubs. While living at Yonkers, N. Y., he was much interested in the affairs of that city, representing the Third Ward in its Common Council, 1880–1882. A daughter, Mrs. Thomas W. Talmadge, resides at 10 E. 63d street, New York. The foregoing statements were found in the newspapers, printed at the time of his death, which contained brief obituaries.

ODELL.—At Fort Massey, Halifax, Nova Scotia, on Thursday, April 18, 1901, Elizabeth Ann Odell, widow of the late Hon. William Hunter Odell, Senator from New Brunswick, and daughter of the late Judge William Blowers Bliss, of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

STILWELL, WILLIAM MOORE, of the New York Produce Exchange, died of acute Bright's disease, April 11, 1901, at his residence in this city, aged fifty-five years. He was born in this city, March 21, 1846, and was the son of Richard E. Stilwell and Harriet L. Redman, daughter of Charles H. Redman, all of New York City. His grandfather was the Rev. William M. Stilwell, a Methodist clergyman stationed for twenty-five years in this city. He was the eighth in descent from Capt. Nicholas Stilwell of Gravesend, L. I., who in 1663 was lieutenant under Capt. Kregier in the second Esopus War. He was a member of the Holland Society, the Saint Nicholas Society, and the Society of Colonial Wars, and had been a member of the Harlem and the New York Athletic Clubs. He served for ten years in the Twenty-second Regiment, and took part in the suppression of the Orange Riot in 1871. At the time of his resignation he was lieutenant of Company D of this regiment. He was also a member of the Old Guard. He was elected to this Society April 9, 1897.

He married September 21, 1868, in New York City, Lizzie B. Saffen, born November 19, 1844, daughter of John H. and Sarah W. (Thurber) Saffen of New York City, who survives him. He leaves three children: William M. Stilwell of the New York Produce Exchange; Richard E. Stilwell, and Maud S. Betts, wife of Clarence S. Betts of New York City.

SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS.

THE last meeting of the season 1900–01, was held on the evening of Friday, May 10, but a wild storm prevailed, and the meeting was sparsely attended. Mr. Isaac Townsend Smith presented an address on "The Treatment of Prisoners of War." The season which has just drawn to a close has been a most prosperous one in every department of the Society's work, and we hope that the ensuing period will be the same. The members elected at the last meeting were: Mrs. Eugene Lamb Richards, Mrs. Chas. A. Sherman, and Mr. Edward Guyre Burgess.

The Librarian wishes to announce that the Library will be closed to all during the month of August, but during July and September it will be available to members only, on presentation of a visiting card. This arrangement is made necessary by the annual cleaning, cataloguing and renovating which have contributed so materially to the improvement of the Library.

NOTES.

MR. C. CARROLL GARDNER of No. 83 Johnson Ave., Newark, N. J., requests us to announce that he is compiling genealogies of the Gardner family of Westchester County, N. Y., and Essex County, N. J., and of the descendants of Leonard Headley, one of the founders of Elizabethtown, N. J.

WE take this opportunity to correct a typographical error in our last issue. Among the Book Reviews was the Hoge Genealogy by Orlando J. Hodge, this should have been Hodge Genealogy.

NEW Genealogies in preparation. Treman, Tremaine, Truman genealogy, with related families of Mack, Dey, Board and Ayers, is in preparation by Murray E. Poole of Ithaca, N. Y.

Poole, Carey, Gardiner, Mulock, Zeliffe. A new edition of above work is in preparation by Murray E. Poole of Ithaca, N. Y.

QUERIES.

ALLEN-FORCE.—Wanted ancestry of Aaron Allen of Hanover, N. J., who married Abigail Bonnell; also of Sarah Force, probably daughter of James, married at Springfield, N. J., about 1780, Elijah Gardner. Married 2d in N. Y., 1809, Joseph Karus. Shall be glad of any data regarding this family.

C. CARROLL GARDNER, 83 Johnson Ave., Newark, N. J.

BOICE.—The ancestry is desired of Cornelius Boice, sometimes spelled Buys, and Boyce; his will made Aug. 8, 1760, in Piscataway, Middlesex Co., N. J., mentions wife Lydia Fulkerson, sons Cornelius and Denis Van Duyn, under 21; dau. Lydia Fontine, widow, who married John Fontyne, July 4, 1757; also mentions his cousin John Boice and brother-in-law Derick Fulkerson. Was the above Lydia Fulkerson the dau. of either John or Phillip Folkertson, who signed a subscription paper to defray the expenses of a minister, to be procured in Holland, for the Dutch Church in New Brunswick, N. J., or "Six Mile Run," in 1703. Can any reader give the names of the children of Jacob Jansen Buys, who married Nov. 22, 1690, Merritje Jans, and resided at "Three Mile Run," near New Brunswick, N. J. These were Jan, Joris, b. 1694, Femmetje, and others. Any information regarding the above will be greatly appreciated. WAKEMAN RYNO, M.D., Benton Harbor, Mich.

CANNIFF.—Abraham Canniff was born at Fishkill, Dutchess Co., N. Y., in 1805. His father was Abraham Canniff. Can any one inform me whether the birth of Abraham Canniff can be found on record, and what was the maiden name of his mother? Wanted also information of Canniff family in Dutchess County or in Westchester County. C. C. JAMES, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

REPLY.

HANCE-BORDEN (Record, XXVIII., p. 116).—The will of Frances Borden of Shrewsbury, N. J., yeoman, dated May 24, 1703, speaks of his daughter Joyce, wife of John Hance, jr., and of her children, Joseph and John. I have written some notes on the New Jersey Bordens, particularly of the first three generations, which will appear in N. J. Archives, XXIII., which is to be issued this year, I hope. BOOK NOTICES.

JAMES PARSHALL AND HIS DESCENDANTS. Compiled from the most authentic records. By James C. Parshall, Esq., Counsellor-at-Law, Author of the Barker Genealogy, etc., Syracuse. Privately printed, 1900. 8vo, pp. 46. Price, $1.00,

The object of this pamphlet is to awaken an interest among the descendants of James Parshall that will assist the compiler in the more complete genealogy of this Long Island family upon which he is now at work. Judging from the arrangement and subject matter of this preliminary work Mr. Parshall's ability to compile the larger volume deserves our fullest confidence.

GENEALOGY OF THE RIGGS FAMILY WITH A NUMBER OF COGNATE BRANCHES DESCENDED FROM THE ORIGINAL EDWARD THROUGH FEMALE LINES, AND MANY BIOGRAPHICAL OUTLINES. By John H. Wallace. Vol. I. New York. Published by the author, 1901. 8vo, cloth.

The work of more than a quarter of a century, this book represents ten generations, from 1590 to 1899, and is embraced in one hundred and fifty-four pages, octavo size, with wide margins for notes and emendations. The complete line of descent from the first Edward of Roxbury is shown in each household, and every father in the line is recorded in his place. The system of indexing is very simple and complete, embracing about three thousand references, which are made to consecutive households or paragraphs.

This book is printed on good paper, with a photogravure frontispiece of Rev. Elias Riggs, D.D., LL.D., of Turkey; is serviceably bound in cloth, with the title stamped in gold on the back and side of the cover. It is hoped that the appearance of the book among the kindred may arouse an interest that will result in a second volume. The 250 copies will be sold at $5, or five copies for $20 in one order and one remittance. All remittances must be made by postal money order, or by bank check on New York, to John H. Wallace, No. 40 West 93d Street, N. Y. City.

HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF THE DESCENDANTS, AS FAR AS KNOWN, OF RICHARD AND JOAN BORDEN; WHO SETTLED IN PORTSMOUTH, R. I., MAY 1638, WITH HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS. Compiled by Hattie Borden Weld. 8vo, cloth, pp. 348.

Mrs. Weld's genealogical study has certainly been pursued in a liberal spirit as the three hundred odd pages of this work demonstrate. No effort has been spared to obtain from living members of the family facts of interest for this volume; and the compiler is surely, as she styles herself, "an ardent genealogist." The work begins with a colored reproduction of the Borden Arms and then follows a treatise on the origin of the name, with extracts from "The Great Roll of Battle Abby," after which the compiler plunges at once into the subject of the emigration to America. Regarding this she says (quoting from the Rev. Pardon G. Seabury's manuscript), "from a careful and very extended examination of the early records of the Borden family, these two persons (Richard and John Borden) appear to have been the pioneers in the work of immigration to this country, if not the only persons of that name who came over early and were the ancestors of the numerous Borden families that are scattered throughout every part of the Union."

The probability of these two being brothers is discussed, but the descendants given in the body of the work all come from Richard and his Welsh wife, Joan. These are given for eleven generations all conveniently arranged for ready reference. The work is illustrated and excellently bound, and the contents show patient labor and thorough, painstaking research.

THE BEMIS HISTORY AND GENEALOGY, BEING AN ACCOUNT, IN THE GREATER PART, OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOSEPH BEMIS, OF WATERTOWN, MASS. By Col. Thomas Waln-Morgan Draper, San Francisco, 1900. 4to, pp. viii.-287.

This work was compiled from nearly a thousand question blanks sent out by Col. Draper which were returned to him filled in with data taken from family bibles, church and town records,—truly reliable sources. Aside from these the author has consulted many books on the subject a list of which he gives in the preface. No attempt is made to set forth the family history in England, so the work begins immediately with Joseph Bemis "founder and original immigrant," who was born in England 1619, and came to Watertown, Mass., about 1640. Descendants are given for six generations, with addenda regarding partially identified members of the family. The book is excellently printed on good paper and contains very full index of names and places.

JOHN GIBSON OF CAMBRIDGE, MASS., AND HIS DESCENDANTS, 1634–1899. By Mehitable Calef Coppenhagen Wilson, 1900. (Washington, D. C.) 8vo, cloth, pp. 542.

"It is not certain," says the author in her preface, "whether our Gibsons are of English or Scottish origin: England, however, is generally the ascribed birth place of John Gibson, the Pioneer of 1634 in Cambridge, Mass., . . . " The book does not purport to be a full Gibson genealogy since, as the compiler says, it has been impossible to reach all its members, and some of those that have been solicited have chosen to withold their information. Notwithstanding all that Mrs. Wilson has managed to crowd the pages of a thick volume with a mass of genealogical and biographical material that has been gathered from every available source and set forth here for the benefit of John Gibson's descendants. There are two hundred and twenty-eight families traced in this methodically arranged book and the thorough index is its crowning glory.

THE WINTERMUTE FAMILY HISTORY. Compiled by J. P. Wintermute, Delaware, Ohio, 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 335.

After many years of painstaking research, this family history is finally presented for consideration. No doubt there are some errors, possibly many omissions, and in some families a very meager report. However the volume comprises the descendants of John George, Lennard and Philip Wintermute, of Stillwater, N. J., Wantage, N. J., and Wyoming Pa., respectively, and is divided into three parts, each reserved to the descendants of these immigrants separately. The press work is excellent, the binding neat, the illustrations generous—the whole volume a credit to the compiler. It contains 335 pages, and sixty halftone portraits of the family, including pictures of the two stone houses built by the emigrator, one of which is about one hundred and fifty years old. The work contains nearly three thousand names of descendants, including those who have married into the family, with a more or less complete history which the author has endeavored to make thoroughly reliable, not giving anything as fact unless it seemed to be thoroughly authenticated. The book was much larger than at first expected and the price is $4 for first quality cloth binding, $5.50 in full morocco. Remittances should be made to J. P. Wintermute, Delaware, Ohio.

OLD LANDMARKS AND HISTORIC PERSONAGES OF BOSTON. By Samuel Adams Drake. New and revised edition, illustrated, Boston. Little, Brown & Co., 1900. Crown 8vo, cloth, pp. xviii.–484.

Mr. Drake has been for several years accumulating materials for a thorough revision of the work. Besides numerous alterations in the text, designed to keep pace with the march of improvement, the opportunity has been availed of for the introduction of new and interesting matter. A number of full-page illustrations not found in earlier editions have been added, including a rare picture of Boston in 1830; the daring feat of Isaac Harris, in saving the Old South from the flames; Boston Common as a cow pasture, with the Great Elm; Old Concert Hall, The Almack's of Boston; State Street in 1825, etc. The edition is uniform with the author's "Historic Mansions and Highways around Boston" and contains 93 illustrations and numerous plates. The original edition of this popular work has always been considered accurate and authoritative, so that the revisions have naturally added to its scope and its interest. Copies may be had of the publishers at $2.50 each.

YE ANCIENT BURIALL PLACE OF NEW LONDON, CONN. New London. Press of the Day Pub. Co., 1899. Ob. 8vo, pp. 40, illustrated.

Digitized by Google

A record of the inscriptions on the gravestones of this the oldest burial place in eastern Connecticut has never until now been compiled, nor has any adequate representation of this historic spot been published. This attractive book, compiled by Mr. Edward Prentis of New London, contains the inscriptions from all the legible stones and is put forth "That those who come after us may know the names, and location of the graves of those who rest in the hallowed ground." The descriptive matter is taken from The Repository and calls particular attention to the exact location of the graves of the heroic dead. A panoramic view of the graveyard is folded in the centre of the book, and upon it each headstone is numbered to correspond with the key.

HISTORY OF NORFOLK, LITCHFIELD COUNTY, CONNECTICUT. Opening chapters by Rev. Joseph Eldridge. Compiled by Theron Wilmot Crissey, Everett, Mass. The Massachusetts Pub. Co., 1900. L. 8vo, cloth, pp. viii.–648.

A splendid work and one that does great credit not only to the compiler but to the inhabitants of Norfolk as well. Its inception like that of so many others of its kind, began in genealogical research, which made apparent to the author the need of such a work and Norfolk's worthiness of it. The first three chapters by Dr. Eldridge refer to the history of Connecticut prior to the settlement of this town and also to the early events in its history. Then follow twenty-eight chapters by Mr. Crissey giving a complete and comprehensive biography of the town, with details of its political ecclesiastical, social and military history, well arranged, profusely illustrated and full of interest. Nor has the author forgotten to clothe his work in attractive and serviceable form, for the print, paper and binding are all one could desire; while that most necessary adjunct, the index, completes its perfection.

HISTORICAL MEMORANDA CONCERNING PERSONS AND PLACES IN OLD DOVER, N. H. . . . Edited by John Scales of Dover. Vol. I. Dover, N. H., March, 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 425.

The contents of this volume were collected by Rev. Dr. Alonzo Hall Quint, and others, and published in the Dover Inquirer from 1850 to 1888. They were republished in part, in the Dover Inquirer from Dec. 10, 1897 to Jan. 5, 1900. As the matter was printed from week to week, the same type was used to print four pages of this volume. At the completion of 97 pages the publication ceased and the editor personally took up the work and pushed it to completion. The subject matter was collected by Dr. Quint during nearly forty years and the publication of his valuable memoranda is the result of repeated demands from Librarians of many public libraries.

WINDHAM, MAINE, IN THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION, 1775–1783. By Nathan Goold. H. W. Bryant, Bookseller and Publisher, Portland, Me., 1900. 8vo, paper, pp. 16. 50 cents.

This little pamphlet gives an account of the soldiers of Windham at Boston, Ticonderoga, Saratoga, Quaker Hill, Valley Forge, Monmouth, etc., but does not pretend to give a complete list of those who served.

ANCESTRY OF JOHN S. GUSTIN AND HIS WIFE, SUSAN MCCOMB, INCLUDING AN ACCOUNT OF JOHN HUBBARD, SECOND HUSBAND OF ELINOR SHEPHERD. By Mrs. Sarah A. Dewick, Boston. David Clapp & Son, 1900. 8vo, pp. 136.

Besides the names mentioned in the title, this work gives information concerning the families of Makepeace, Browne, Owen, Price, Smock, Conover, (Van Couwenhoven,) Schenck, Leggett, Mandeville, De Rie, Roos and Mott, and accounts of Osborne the Seneschal and Richard Lawrence. The book is compiled from published histories with corrections made by the author among which is a corrected form of the arms of the Schenck family.

RECORD OF THE KINGWOOD MONTHLY MEETING OF FRIENDS, HUNTERDON COUNTY, New Jersey. Compiled from the Minutes and other Manuscripts beginning in 1744. By James W. Moore, Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. Flemington, N. J., 1900. L. 8vo, paper, pp. 42.

Digitized by Google

Contains sketch of the region about Quakertown, N. J. Proceedings of the Monthly Meetings at Kingwood, Marriages, 1744-1840, Births and Burials during about the same period, Testimony (concerning various members), Friends Sufferings, Certificates of Removal, etc. Copies may be had of Mr. H. E. Deats, publisher, Flemington, N. J., at one dollar each. Mr. Deats has also sent us The Jerseyman, Vol. VI., No. 3, August 1900, which contains an account of Thomas Stevenson, of London, Eng., and his Descendants in New Jersey, by Dr. John R. Stevenson, of Haddonfield. N. J. The Jerseyman is published by Mr. Deats and is issued quarterly at 50 cents per annum, single numbers 15 cents each.

ANCESTRY OF CAPT. TIMOTHY PROUT OF BOSTON, MASS. By J. Henry Lea (Reprinted from the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for January, 1901), Boston. Press of David Clapp & Son, 1901. 8vo, paper, pp. 14.

Mr. Lea gives in this sketch authentic proof of the English ancestry of Capt. Timothy Prout, Surveyor of the Port of Boston, Captain of Forts and Artillery, Member of the Committee of Deeds with Indians, Selectman and Representative, 1682-1692.

SUFFOLK DEEDS, LIBER XI. Boston. Rockwell & Churchill, 1900. 8vo, cloth.

This volume of the Suffolk Deeds contains the biographies of the early Recorders and Registers of Deeds of the County of Suffolk, begun in volume X., by Mr. John T. Hassam, who has here brought them down to 1900. In accordance with an order issued by the Board of Aldermen the deeds are reprinted verbatim, and the whole indexed by Mr. Hassam under five headings: Grantors, Grantees, Persons other than Grantors or Grantees, Places, Miscellaneous.

A HISTORY OF THE KENTUCKY AND MISSOURI STILES, WITH A SKETCH OF THE NEW JERSEY AND OTHER KINDRED. By LaFayette Stiles Pence, Lebanon, Ky. W. T. Hawkins, 1896. 8vo, paper, pp. 48. Price, 50 cents.

Dr. Henry R. Stiles, in his Genealogy of the Stiles Family, refers to the existence of a Kentucky branch, supposed to have moved there from Morristown, N. J., which at that time he could not connect with the parent stock. Mr. Pence has since done the "connecting" and takes up the family at this point, carrying them through several generations.

EARLY DUBLIN. A LIST OF THE REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS OF DUBLIN, N. H. By Samuel Carroll Derby, Columbus, Ohio, 1901. 8vo, paper, pp. 34.

The general purpose of these lists is to preserve the memory of Dublin men who took a strenuous part in those "times that tried men's souls." It comprehends the list published in the History of Dublin forty-five years ago, which list this pamphlet has revised and increased. The basis of the work is Vols. XIV.-XVII., incl., of the New Hampshire State Papers, known as "The Revolutionary Rolls."

GENEALOGY OF THE TAPLEY FAMILY. Illustrated. Compiled by Harriett Sylvester Tapley, Danvers, Mass., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 256.

The pages of this volume include all the Tapley families in this country, as far as known, with the exception of the Mansfield Tapley branch of Cambridge. The name in one line of this branch which settled in Vermont and Canada became changed in the last century to Taplin, this spelling being still in use among the descendants. The first generation given in this book is John Tapley, born in England in 1638; married in Salem, 6 Dec., 1663, Elizabeth, dau. of John Pride of Salem. His descendants are given in eight generations, and the volume then takes up the line of Gilbert Tapley of Salem, the ancestor of the Danvers branch. His descendants are likewise noted for eight generations, followed by an appendix giving a summary of the descendants of Mark Tapley of Chicago, Ephraim of Virginia, and Hosea of North Carolina. The whole is well indexed, neatly printed, and serviceably bound.

THE EVOLUTION OF STUYVESANT VILLAGE (NEW YORK CITY): TENTH TO BLEECKER STREETS, BROADWAY TO SECOND AVENUE AND AROUND THERE. By A. A. Rikeman, Mamaroneck, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 88.

Digitized by Google

Between the years 1568–1609, many of the Protestant Hollanders who fled from persecution came to Manhattan Island and settled upon the territory described in the title of this volume, which was afterward known as Stuyvesant Village. Miss Rikeman's ancestors were among them, hence her personal interest in that bit of local history. The material is drawn largely from tradition obtained from five generations who were well informed in the local affairs, with whom the author has long been in touch. The book is purely historical, and is full of interest. Copies may be had of the author at Mamaroneck, N. Y. Price, $1.25 each.

GENEALOGY OF THE DICKEY FAMILY. By John Dickey, Worcester, Mass. F. S. Blanchard & Co., 1898. 8vo, Half Mor., pp. 322.

After the death of Mr. Dickey, the compiler of this work, in 1894, his manuscript was placed in the hands of Blanchard & Co. for publication. The result is a splendid volume of interest to both the Dickey family and the genealogical world. William Dickey and his wife, Elizabeth, came from the north of Ireland some time prior to 1730, and brought with them three children: Samuel, Elias and Elisabeth; the three Dickeys furnishing the title of this book. The work is divided into three parts:—part 1, Samuel Dickey and his descendants; part 2, Elias Dickey and his descendants; part 3, Elisabeth Dickey (married John Hall of the north of Ireland). The book is most thoroughly indexed. Copies may be had of the publishers.

COMPLETE LINEAGE OF THE STURGES FAMILIES OF MAINE, 1530 to 1900, FROM DE TURGES, ENGLAND, AND CAPE COD, MASS., TO VASSALBORO AND GORHAM. WITH OTHER STURGES GENEALOGY. Compiled by Alonzo Walton Sturges, Lewiston, Me., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 40.

This compilation is the larger growth of a pamphlet published by the same author in 1898 under the title "A few Stray Leaves from Sturges Genealogy." Since that was issued Mr. Sturges has been in communication with various persons having information on this famliy, so that he is able now to trace the ancestry back 370 years. Edward Sturges, of New England, 1634, was the progenitor of the American family, and in addition to his descendants in the various branches of Vassalboro and Gorham, Maine, this volume gives a partial genealogy of the Coleman family.

ALBERMARLE COUNTY IN VIRGINIA. GIVING SOME ACCOUNT OF WHAT IT WAS BY NATURE, WHAT IT WAS MADE BY MAN, AND OF SOME OF THE MEN WHO MADE IT. By Rev. Edgar Woods. The Michie Company, Charlottesville, Va., 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. 412.

"Public affairs are abundantly recorded," says the author. "Not only are they set forth in the countless Journals of the day, but scores of ready pens are waiting to embody them in more permanent form in histories of our own times." Private events then, are those to which the author of this work has turned his attention. Events of travel, toil, settlement, public and private achievement, and all the facts that constitute the growth of any locality. The historical narrative concluded, the author then takes up the various families in alphabetical order and gives a short sketch of each with reference to the more prominent members. These "Accounts of Families" occupy more than half of the volume.

NEW HAMPSHIRE, LAKE REGION INSCRIPTIONS. WHITEFACE, INTERVALE, SANDWICH, PERKINS GROUND, NEW DURHAM, FURTHER MEMORIALS OF MEREDITH, WORCESTER, MASS. Pub. by Franklin P. Rice, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 28.

Mr. Franklin P. Rice of Worcester, Mass., informs us that he has entered into a three year's arrangement for the management and operation of the Systematic History Fund, which was instituted with the purpose to assist the printing and publication of certain elementary historical material. The intention of this undertaking is broader than implied in antiquarian or genealogical research alone, being to preserve, arrange, and make accessible original data which is the foundation of all history. Small editions are to be printed, and the desire is to place these publications in as many public depositories as possible.

Digitized by Google

The coöperation and patronage of Librarians and others are solicited in this movement to make accessible original sources of history. While operations under the Fund are not confined to any particular locality, nor restricted to any special class of matter within the broad field to be developed, it is natural that the first work undertaken should be in the vicinity of Worcester; as it is thought advisable that the personal records of a place should be, so far as possible, completed before other work is attempted. Two publications—The Worcester County Warnings, and The Vital Records of Auburn—have been issued. The latter of these is a paper covered volume of 142 pages, and gives the records to the end of the year 1850, with inscriptions from the Old Burial Grounds. Besides these two publications, Mr. Rice has issued the Worcester Book, a Diary of Noteworthy events in Worcester from 1657 to 1883, paper, pp. 159; Proceedings at a dinner to Mr. Rice in recognition of work accomplished in the development of systematic history; and nearly 100 other publications of a similar character. This enterprise of furnishing indexed information to the antiquary, genealogist and historian, is certainly a most worthy one and deserves the hearty coöperation of all libraries and similar institutions.

A COMPLETE ROSTER OF COLONEL DAVID WATERBURY, JR.'S REGIMENT OF CONNECTICUT VOLUNTEERS. By A. H. Clark, 1897. Published by A. S. Clark, 174 Fulton St., N. Y. City. Price, $1.00.

This was the first regiment of infantry responding to a call for volunteers for the defence of New York City against the British in the American Revolution, and the material here is printed for the first time from manuscript records in the possession of the publisher, with notes compiled from authentic historical sources. The lists comprise officers and privates of ten companies. Copies are for sale by the publisher.

VITAL STATISTICS OF SEYMOUR, CONN, Vol. 3. Published by W. C. Sharpe, Seymour, Ct., 1901. 8vo, paper, pp. 88. Price $1. Postage 3 cents.

Mr. Sharpe's indefatigable labors in this field are deserving of our highest praise. The first of this series was issued in 1883, the second in 1892. The records begin with the incorporation of the town, in the first volume, and in this, the third, cover the period from Jan. 1, 1892 to Jan. 1, 1901, giving births, marriages and deaths, and the records of Trinity Church, and the Congregational Church, with complete index to the whole.

THE GENEALOGY OF THE LINEAL DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM WOOD WHO SETTLED IN CONCORD, MASS., IN 1638. CONTAINING ALSO REVOLUTIONARY AND OTHER RECORDS. Compiled by Clay W. Holmes, Elmira, N. Y., 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. 365.

William Wood was born in England in 1582, emigrated from Mattock, Derbyshire in 1638 and went to Concord, Mass., where he was one of the first settlers. He had one son and one daughter. The descendants of the former are given for ten generations as completely as possible in this excellent volume, and those of the latter, who married Thomas Wheeler, are traced in one line for three generations. The book is a model of arrangement, and its paper, typography, and general makeup are a pleasure to see. The second part of the work is replete with historical information including individual war records, and closes with a very complete index. Mr. Holmes, as historian of the Smithfield branch, intends to continue his labor and expects later to publish information concerning that family.

THE JAMESONS IN AMERICA, 1647–1900. GENEALOGICAL RECORDS AND MEMORANDA. By E. O. Jameson, illustrated. Published in Boston, Mass., 1901. Printed by the Rumford Press, Concord, N. H. Royal octavo, pp. 599. Price $7.00.

We recall the splendid history of Medway, Mass., compiled by Dr. Jameson, and published in 1886 by the Town, and we turn to this with great expectations. Nor are we at all disappointed. The volume embodies the results of more than forty years of inquiry and research, the former conducted by means of printed circulars, the latter through the assistance of town clerks, registers of probate, and professional genealogists. The Jamesons have all come from a common ancestry in Scotland, concerning which the author in an introduction of seven pages, gives interesting information, illustrated with cuts of the arms of various clans. James Jameson and his wife, Sarah, were the first persons of the name known in America. They resided in Boston as early as 1647, where they had five children, three sons and two daughters. The descendants of these sons are traced in this work five generations and then follow accounts of the Jamesons of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maine and New Hampshire, and a supplement of additional data, received too late for insertion in the preceding pages. The volume is one of the most attractive family histories we have seen and it will surely remain a monument not only to the memory and honor of the Jamesons in America but to its compiler as well. A limited royal edition in leather and gold, at nine dollars per copy is also published, and copies of either may be had of the author, No. 31 Greenwich Park, Boston, Mass.

THE HISTORY OF SOUTH CAROLINA IN THE REVOLUTION, 1775-1780. By Edward McCrady, LL.D., New York. The Macmillan Co., 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. xxxii.-899, gilt.

Mr. McCrady, as president of the Historical Society of South Carolina, and as author of "The History of South Carolina under Proprietary Government," and "The History of South Carolina under the Royal Government," is eminently qualified to take up the interesting and valuable work as set forth in the title of this book. It is a valuable contribution to our historical literature, and shows an enormous amount of labor and painstaking research, all directed by the instinct of the true historian. The story is told in good narrative style that holds the interest, and the reader feels from cover to cover that the author is telling the events exactly as his researches have shown him they occurred. The work is supported by constant reference to authorities consulted, and is embellished with six maps of the period. Colonel McCrady has done a commendable work that shows his intimacy with the details of the history of his state.

THE PARISH REGISTER OF CHRIST CHURCH, MIDDLESEX CO., VA., FROM 1653 TO 1812. Published by The National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in the State of Virginia. Richmond, Wm. Ellis Jones, 1897. Quarto, cloth, pp. 341.

The section comprised within the present Middlesex Co., was at first included in Lancaster, but was divided shortly after 1666 into the two parishes of Lancaster and Middlesex. The original vestry book of this parish is still preserved in the Episcopal Seminary of Alexander Co., Va., and the copy here published through the energy and enterprise of the Virginia Colonial Dames, was made by Mrs. Sally Nelson Robbins, of Richmond, a member of that Society. The copy was very carefully compared with the original by a committee of the Virginia Historical Society, of which our esteemed friend Mr. Wm. G. Stannard, Corres. Sec. and Librarian, was a member. The volume includes, "Burialls, Christinings, Marriages, etc." arranged chronologically, covering the period 1653 to 1812, and is for sale by the Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, Va.

PETER PRUDDEN. A STORY OF HIS LIFE AT NEW HAVEN AND MILFORD, CONN., WITH THE GENEALOGY OF SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS, AND AN APPENDIX CONTAINING COPIES OF OLD WILLS, RECORDS, LETTERS AND PAPERS. By Lillian E. Prudden, 1901. Tuttle, Morehouse & Co., New Haven, Ct. 12mo, cloth, pp. 169.

The material for this attractive little volume was collected during leisure hours by Mr. Henry H. Prudden of New Haven, who unfortunately died before the work was completed—if a genealogical work ever is completed. Miss Prudden has compiled the present volume from his papers and note books, and published it with the hope of stimulating some other member of the family to continue the work. "The genealogical lists are complete only in the line of descent which includes the writer's own family," though much other data is given, and the family carried to the ninth generation.

SAMUEL SLADE BENTON, HIS ANCESTORS AND DESCENDANTS. By Josiah Henry Benton, Jr. Privately printed, 1901. L. 8vo, cloth, pp. 354.

This volume, of which 250 copies were printed by the Merrymount Press, in March, 1901, is reserved for private distribution, and is therefore not for sale. Its mechanical construction is of a like pattern to Mr. Benton's other publications, with early imprint headlines, and is put together with his usual excellent taste. It is the story of his own family, which Mr. Benton "has endeavored to tell in such a way as to give the book some historical value." He has done it, for the mass of data will interest all descendants of Edward Benton, the progenitor of the American family of that name.

HISTORY AND GENEALOGY OF THE CARPENTER FAMILY IN AMERICA, FROM THE SETTLEMENT AT PROVIDENCE, R. I., 1637 TO 1901. By Daniel Hoogland Carpenter of Maplewood, N. J. The Marion Press, Jamaica, N. Y., 1901. 8vo, half leather, pp. 370.

We have waited long and hopefully for this book; and, though occassional bits of news regarding its progress have floated to us, and made our expectations of a high order, the work far surpasses our greatest hopes. Externally and internally—in binding, paper and print—it is good to see and sensible; in the matter of contents it is a monumental labor. There are three distinct families of the name in America. All come from England, and are known in this country as The Providence Family, The Rehoboth Family, and the Philadelphia Family. The last has been "written up" in Mr. Chas. P. Smith's "Lloyds & Carpenters," the Rehoboth branch in Mr. Amos B. Carpenter's voluminous work, and this, of the Providence Family, completes the cycle. It begins with William Carpenter of Providence, and carries his descendants to the present generation, through Long Island, Westchester Co., Duchess Co., Ulster Co., and Rensselaer Co., N. Y., New York City, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Michigan, New Jersey and Ohio. The work is profusely illustrated, and contains several maps and facsimiles of records. Only 150 copies are issued, of which 100 are already subscribed.

FIELD GENEALOGY. BEING THE RECORD OF ALL THE FIELD FAMILY, WHOSE ANCESTORS WERE IN THIS COUNTRY PRIOR TO 1700. By Frederick Clifton Pierce. Two volumes. W. B. Conkey & Co., Chicago, 1901. Imperial octavo, cloth, pp. 600, 601-1196.

Another voluminous work added to the already large list from the pen of this compiler. It traces the descent from ancestors located in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire and Virginia, all descendants of the Fields of England, whose ancestor Hurbutus De la Field, was from Alsace-Lorraine. Of the historical matter incorporated we quote from the Table of Contents as follows: Early History, Origin of the name, Arms, English Homes, The Fields of other places in Wakefield, Horsmondon branch, Fields of Heaton, Yorkshire branch, College graduates, Revolutionary Soldiers, Pensioners of the Revolutionary War, also the genealogies of the various branches in America, giving many thousand names. The work was compiled at the instigation of John Spafford Field, and the English researches were supervised by the late Osgood Field of Rome, Italy. The book is a wonder in the matter of voluminous detail, and it grew so from its first inception that it was finally published in two volumes, each about twice the size originally intended. There are 1196 pages of closely printed matter, and nearly 300 half tone illustrations.

GENEALOGICAL MEMORANDA RELATING TO THE FAMILY OF MERRIAM. By Charles Pierce Merriam and C. E. Gildersome-Dickinson, London. Privately printed at the Chiswick Press, 1900. Quarto boards, pp. 99 and chart.

The name Merriam is now a distinctly American name. The family in Kent County, Eng., has died out, the compiler of this work, born in America, has been for a number of years the only one of the name in the London directory. In America, however, the descendants of George and Joseph Merriam, who settled in Concord, Mass., 1638, have increased. These three brothers were sons of William of Hadlow, in Kent, Eng., and it is of the Merriams prior to the emigration that this volume treats, giving wills, parish registers, feet of fine, lay subsidies, poll-books and pedigrees. The imprint of the Chiswick ress determines the mechanical merit of this work, and Mr. Merriam's thirty ear's residence in England, its authentic and painstaking research.

HISTORY OF THE BARR FAMILY, BEGINNING WITH GREAT-GRANDFATHER ROBERT BARR, AND MARY WILLS; THEIR DESCENDANTS DOWN TO THE LATEST CHILD. By Rev. Wm. B. Barr of Hoboken, N. J., 1901. 12mo, cloth, pp. 216.

Of the Church, the State and the Family, the author of this work attaches the most importance to the last, because it lies at the foundation of the others. Hence, if it is incumbent upon the Church and the State to keep careful record of their historic events, it is equally important that the family should do the same. This family is "scattered from Plymouth Rock to the Golden Gate, from Alaska to South America," and Dr. Barr has spent much time, patience, and money in gathering their records. The Barrs are of Scotch-Irish descent, of "good Psalm singing Presbyterian stock," and began in this country with Robert Barr, who was born in Donegal Co., Ireland, and came to this country in 1790, whence he settled in Huntingdon Co., Penn. He had five sons and one daughter, all of whom are traced through their descendants to the present generation. The most interesting part of this book is the language in which the story is told—sprightly, eloquent, original. The volume is well printed, well illustrated, and thoroughly indexed. For copies, at $2.00, postage 30 cts., apply to the author, Hoboken, N. J.

ANCESTRAL CHART OF ELEVEN GENERATIONS. Arranged and copyrighted by Miss Georgiana Guild of Providence, R. I. 9 x 12½. Price, $5.00. Edition 100.

Miss Guild has produced the most artistic form of genealogical chart which has as yet come to our notice. It is printed on heavy, pure white paper, with the rulings and printed matter in blue with red initial letters. The chart consists of title page, dedication, page of directions, 33 leaves for genealogical notations, 11 pages for additional notes, and nine for index. All are bound together lengthwise with blue ribbon, the whole forming a most attractive record book worthy of a place on any library table. The arrangement is much the same as that issued by this Society. The first page, "Chart A," carries the compiler back six generations, from which point each of the 32 ancestors is carried back five generations upon a separate chart. This collection of pages forms the completed record; and, forseeing errors and corrections, Miss Guild has arranged a separate set of "Working Charts," the contents of which, when complete and satisfactory, can be transferred carefully by any good penman to the "Ancestral Chart." The whole work is ingeniously conceived, carefully worked out, and beautifully executed. Copies may be had of Miss Georgiana Guild, 34 Pratt St., Providence, R. I. Price, $5.00 for Ancestral Chart, $2.00 per set for Working Charts.

PHILIP AND PHILIPPA, A GENEALOGICAL ROMANCE OF TO-DAY. By John Osborne Austin, 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. 183.

Mr. Austin has tried his hand at a new field of genealogical literature, and we frankly confess it difficult to reconcile. The story is one of the union of two last representatives of two different branches of the same family, one English and the other American, one a girl of seventeen, the other a youth of twenty-five. They have never seen each other, though he knows of her existence, and his quest of her takes him through many lands—a quest which results of course in matrimony, patrimony and harmony, "forever after."

THE BLAIR FAMILY OF NEW ENGLAND. Compiled for Mr. William Blair, Chicago, Ill., by Miss Emily Wilder Leavitt. Boston. David Clapp & Son, 1900. L. 8vo, pp. 194, illustrated.

The contents of this volume suggest its scope:—The Blair coat-of-arms, the Blairs of Ulster Province, the first of the New England family, six generations of the Blairs in America, Capt. William Blair of Boston, William Blair of Framingham and Shrewsbury, Mass., the Blairs of New Hampshire, the descent of Mrs. Samuel Blair from John Frary, and John Stow, Mrs. William Blair's descent from Rev. Peter Thacher and Richard Seymour, addenda, index. The whole is well put together with good and tasteful mechanical effect.

The object of this Society is the discovery, procuring, preservation and perpetuation of whatever may relate to American Genealogy, Biography and Local History; and it aims to cover the field of genealogical and biographical research more thoroughly than has been done by the public libraries or societies devoted to one particular locality or period.

The Society was founded and incorporated in 1869. For nearly twenty years it occupied modest quarters in Mott Memorial Hall, No. 64 Madison Avenue. In October, 1888, rooms were secured in the Berkeley Lyceum, No. 23 West 44th Street, where the Society remained until May, 1896, when the present building was purchased through the generous bequest of Mrs. Elizabeth Underhill Coles and the substantial assistance of some of the members.

The Society building, No. 226 West 58th Street, is a handsome five-story structure, with an attractive entrance, and, having lately undergone extensive alterations and repairs, is admirably suited to the uses of the Society. It contains a lecture hall handsomely decorated and well lighted, heated and ventilated, with a seating capacity of one hundred and seventy-five persons; a fire-proof library specially constructed with a view to safety, light, quiet and convenience, and an attractive room for general Society purposes open to members and their friends.

The Society has, by careful and capable management, steadily improved, and has at present assets amounting to nearly $50,000.00, and a good income from dues and rentals; it is under the management of a Board of Trustees elected by the members for alternating periods of three years.

The membership of the Society, comprising a large number of our best known and prominent citizens, is made up of Annual, Life and Honorary Members. Annual Members pay an entrance fee of $10.00, and the sum of $5.00 per year dues. Life Members pay $50.00 in lieu of all dues and fees.

Persons desirous of becoming members of the Society may address the Executive Committee. Members have the right of introducing visitors to the rooms and to the privileges of the Society.

The Library has upon its shelves over five thousand volumes of Genealogy, Biography and Local History, and nearly thrice that number of pamphlets and unbound books on these subjects, as well as many manuscripts of value. It is open to members and visitors from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. on week days and holidays, and from 8 to 10 P. M. on Mondays, except during the months of August and September.

Regular Meetings of the Society, at which addresses of historical interest are delivered, are held on the second Friday evening of each month, except June, July, August and September.

The Society has progressed steadily in its particular sphere, and has been the means of awakening interest in many persons heretofore ignorant of or indifferent to their ancestral history; during the past decade this interest has greatly increased, and has resulted in bringing to light and preservation many records of value. Beginners in the Genealogical field will find that the Society with its collections, its "Record," and the accumulated experience of its members, offers advantages indispensable to their work.

"Those who do not treasure up the memory of their ancestors do not deserve to be remembered by posterity."—EDMUND BURKE.

VOL. XXXII. NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1901. No. 4.

THE PUBLIC CAREER OF ROBERT LIVINGSTON.

BY WALTER L. FLEMING.

But soon a change came in these pleasant relations. During his stay in London, Livingston had conceived a plan for ridding the seas of the pirates who preyed upon the commerce of all nations. The plan was for the King to furnish Captain William Kidd an armed vessel of 30 guns and 150 men. Captain Kidd who knew the haunts of the pirates was then to go in search of them. The plunder taken from the pirates would pay the expenses of the expedition. The King thought favorably of the scheme, and laid it before the Admiralty Board.* However, all the vessels of the navy were employed in the war with France, and this project failed. Next Livingston proposed a private venture, for the double purpose of apprehending the pirates and making a profit on the plunder taken from them. An agreement was made between Kidd and Livingston acting together, and Lord Bellomont acting for himself, Lord Chancellor Somers, the Duke of Shrewsbury, the Earls of Romney and Oxford, Sir Edmond Harrison, and others.* The King to show his approval retained for himself a tenth share in the enterprise. Bellomont secured a commission for Kidd as a privateer, and undertook to procure a grant from the King to some "indifferent trusty person" of all the plunder that should be taken by Kidd. Four-fifths of the cost of equipment of the vessel, amounting to £1,600, was advanced by Bellomont for himself and associates. Kidd and Livingston advanced one-fifth, £400. The ship, provided by Bellomont and his partners, raised the amount of their expenditures to £6,000, which Kidd and Livingston agreed to refund in case of failure of the undertaking. To secure this agreement Livingston made bond to Bellomont for £10,000, and Kidd for £20,000. The ship was to become Kidd's property in case he should deliver prizes to the value of £100,000 to Bellomont at Boston. Not more than one-fourth of the plunder was to go to the crew; the remainder was to be divided into five equal parts, four of which were to belong to Bellomont and his associates, and the rest to Kidd and Livingston.†

Kidd sailed away in search of the pirates. Meeting with indifferent success, he turned pirate himself, and ravaged the seas until Bellomont captured him in Boston. The promoters of the scheme were accused by political enemies of abetting Kidd in his crime. In Parliament the Tory party impeached several Whig lords charging them, among other things, with being connected with Kidd's piracies. They easily proved their innocence and were acquitted by the House of Lords.* Bellomont thought it was all the fault of Livingston, who had gotten up the scheme and recommended Kidd for the command of the ship. The governor reported his suspicion to the Lords of Trade. He wrote that as soon as Livingston heard of the capture of Kidd, he hastened to Boston and tried to "embezzel" the cargo of Kidd's sloop.† He also made every effort to obtain the surrender of his bond from Bellomont.

The governor was at last convinced of Livingston's innocence, but so sore was he over the whole affair, that he did not send the proofs to the authorities in England. So the charges remained and afterwards caused much annoyance. Bellomont never forgave Livingston for getting him into this trouble. He no longer considered him the best man in the colony. At every opportunity he said harsh things of Livingston. "He pinched an estate out of the poor soldier's bellies."‡ The governor was offended when Livingston set up a saw mill, and wrote to England his suspicions that Livingston would saw up the trees reserved for the navy.§ Bellomont thought that no person should own more than 1,000 acres of land, and endeavored to have an act passed by the Assembly to vacate some of the extravagant grants made by Fletcher.‖

He thought the defeat of this measure was due to Livingston, who as a great landowner was opposed to it, though he would not have been affected by it, his land having been granted by Governor Dongan.

In Indian affairs Livingston kept well informed, and often was sent on missions to the Iroquois. He sent spies to Canada to find out the designs of the French prison, and deserters were examined by him, and any information obtained was at once transmitted to the governor.¶ He recommended opening up trade with the western tribes by sending 200 whites, who understood the Indians, to live among them, and build a fort (where Detroit now is), to protect them and secure the country. At another time he sends the governor a plan for securing the Iroquois; they should be brought near the English settlements; forts should be build to protect them; they could be used as "bush lopers" against the French; trade with them should be carefully regulated; ministers should be sent to them to keep them from listening to French priests, and to convert them to Protestantism "which they much prefer."††

Upon one occasion he informed the governor that there was an intrigue at Albany, between Colonel Schuyler and others, to keep the control of Indian affairs in their own hands, and that they had used Indian goods belonging to the Colony to secure the sachems to their interests. Bellomont thought that Livingstan was in the plot also.*

Livingston's changes of political opinions had caused both parties to distrust him. Bellomont, who now disliked him as much as he had once liked him, fixed a time for his suspension, along with Smith and Schuyler, from the council. The reason for suspension was that they were "no Leislerians."† Bellomont died on the very night fixed for announcing the dismissal, and Livingston was saved for a time.

Nanfan, the lieutenant-governor, was absent in Barbadoes when Bellomont died, and a dispute arose in the council as to who should act in his place. Livingston, with the minority, supported the claims of Colonel William Smith as being the oldest member of the council. The Leislerian majority wanted to elect a presiding officer by vote of the council. Livingston and his friends refused to appear at the meetings. A statement of the facts was sent by the majority to the lower house. That body passed a resolution that the authority devolved upon the council as a whole, and that the oldest member should be the presiding officer The majority answered that the lower house had nothing to do with the matter in dispute.‡

The wrangle continued, and the lower house adjourned. A month later Nanfan arrived.

Under Nanfan Livingston was retained in the council and for a while was a favorite of the lieutenant-governor, who endorsed his claims, and gave him a certificate that he was an all round good citizen, and that in Indian affairs his services were especially valuable.§

About this time (1701), Livingston addressed a long communication to the Lords of Trade, setting forth the importance of New York as a barrier against the French and Indians; attention was called to the encroachments of the French; the condition of the New York forts was made known; the suggestion was made that the method of pay and supply of the independent companies be investigated; he recommend that missionaries be sent to convert the Iroquois, and thus secure them to the English, and that forts be built to protect them; he gave information of the French settlement at the mouth of the Mississippi; the defensive system was explained. A form of colonial government in three provinces was proposed. The first province was to be made up of Virginia, Maryland and the Carolinas; the second province, of Pennsylvania, New Castle, the Jerseys, and part of Connecticut; the rest of Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Massachusetts should compose the third province.

Each province was to raise £5,000 a year for the common defense, and the King was to send over military stores and soldiers for garrison duty at certain specified posts. As a means of securing the frontier, 200 soldiers were to be discharged every two years, and lands granted to them on the frontiers. Recruits to the number of 200 were to be sent from England every two years. He makes the suggestion that soldiers cannot fight in the woods according to the manner of fighting in Europe. He proposed certain regulations for the production of naval stores, and suggested that in time of war a soldier should be appointed as governor of each province. In short, he outlined a complete plan of colonial government, for peace and for war, and there is evidence that the home authorities acted upon some of his suggestions.*

Livingston had been the moving spirit of the aristocratic party in its opposition to Leisler, and this, added to his conduct in the council after the death of Bellomont, made him many enemies among the Leislerians. On this account he was unable to secure a settlement of his claims in the province, so he proposed to go to London again, to push his case before the Treasury and Board of Trade. The Five Nations were now inspired to request that he be sent to England to represent their troubles to the Queen, and to get missionaries for them.† The Leislerians now accused him of seeking a way to get his expenses paid. He was charged with fraud in the collection of quitrents and excises, and the assembly ordered an investigation of his accounts. It is hard to see anything illegal in influencing the Indians to choose him as their agent, but the assembly seemed to consider it a particularly grave charge, and a committee appointed to investigate the matter, asked him to purge himself of the accusation by his own oath. This he refused to do. He denied the authority of the assembly to investigate his accounts as collector for the royal revenues, and refused to submit his papers for inspection. The fact was the papers were not in his possession, having been turned over to Bellomont shortly before his death, and now his widow refused to give them up. Livingston, however, said nothing of this to the committee of investigation, but simply denied their right to inspect his accounts. The assembly charged him with the sum of £18,000 which they said he had failed to account for, and an act was passed to confiscate his estate unless he should submit vouchers for that amount by a certain day.‡ He failed to do this, and his property was confiscated.

The Leislerians had succeeded in making Nanfan suspicious of Livingston, and he suspended him from the council giving as reasons for so doing, that Livingston had never cleared himself of complicity in the Kidd affair, that he was evidently guilty of fraud in the management of the excise, that he had refused to account for the money that had passed through his hands, that Bellomont had intended to suspend him from the council, and finally that by leaving New York he had deserted his duty as a member of the council.§

When Lord Cornbury came out as governor he obtained the books and papers of Livingston from Lady Bellomont, and the accounts were found to be correct. The act of confiscation, however, was not repealed, and Cornbury, who disliked Livingston, refused to notice his claims against the government. It was necessary to make a second visit to England. The action of the Five Nations in choosing him as their agent gave Livingston the opportunity, and he went to London again in 1702. Near the coast of England his ship was captured and plundered by a French privateer. Livingston lost some valuable books and papers, but managed to conceal the most important ones.* Upon reaching London he applied himself diligently to the affairs of the Five Nations, and for a year said nothing of his own business. He attended meetings of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and made a great display of energy toward securing missionaries for the Five Nations. Two clergymen were at last obtained from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and sent over to New York.†

In 1704, after arranging the business of the Indians, Livingston set to work on his own affairs. An order in council was obtained confirming him in his various offices, and ordering his claims to be settled by the New York treasury.‡ Yet he was not satisfied. This had been done once before, and the order had been disregarded by the governor and council. He waited and worked a year longer, and in 1705 the Queen granted to him directly a royal commission for all his offices. Yet his troubles were not ended. Lord Cornbury refused to recognize his commissions from the Queen until he had investigated the whole matter. The investigation dragged on for two years, and not until 1708 did he obtain his offices again.§ The council again refused to pay his salary.

In 1709, during the short administration of Lord Lovelace, Livingston was elected to the assembly from Albany County, and in 1710 secured the passage of an act repealing the act of 1701 confiscating his estate.‖

Hunter, the next governor, was a Scotchman, and greatly favored Livingston, his fellow-countryman. All the debts due him by the government were paid, except his salary as Secretary of Indian Affairs, to which the council still objected. Now again the appreciative Five Nations came to the rescue, and asked the governor to lay the matter before the Queen and request that he be paid.¶ It was not until 1717 that the arrears of his salary was paid, and then only on condition that Livingston should never again ask for a salary.

† One of these, the Reverend Thoroughgood Moor, not receiving any support in his mission to the Indians, went to New Jersey and took the place of a clergyman who was returning to England. He was so scandalized by the immoral conduct of Lieutenant-Governor Ingoldsby that he refused to admit him to the Communion. Ingoldsby threw him into jail, but the Rev. Thoroughgood escaped, and sailed on the first vessel for England. The vessel was lost at sea with all on board. N. Y. Col. Docs., IV., 1074.

It is quite interesting to trace the evolution of the office of Secretary of Indian Affairs while Livingston held it. At first he was a mere clerk or recorder of the proceedings of a Board of Commissioners, having no authority whatever. It is not long before he assumes the title of Secretary of Indian Affairs, and seldom mentions the superior commissioners. The next step was to transact business on his own authority. Then he secured a commission for the office for life from the crown. He had now left the Board of Commissioners far below, and dealt directly with the governor and the home government. The protests of the council and of the governor show how they regarded the increasing importance of the office.

Regular minutes of all conferences with the Indians was kept from 1675. About 1750, they were collected and bound into four large volumes, which have since been lost.*

In 1711 several thousand Palatines from Germany, who had gone to England as refugees, were sent over to New York as wards of the government. Hunter was directed to set them to work at producing naval stores. For this purpose he bought 6,000 acres of pine lands from Livingston for £400 New York currency, and upon this tract the Palatines were settled.† A contract was made with Livingston to supply the settlers with bread and beer—one-third of a four penny half penny loaf, and a quart of beer to each person daily. Later the allowance of beer was not given to the women and children, but only to the men who worked.‡

Through the efforts of his enemies, Livingston had come to have in England the reputation of a sharper, and when Hunter's purchase of land and the bread and beer contract became known, an investigation was made by the Board of Trade. The Earl of Clarendon (formerly Lord Cornbury), wrote to the Lords of Trade: "I think it is unhappy that Colo. Hunter at his first arrival in his government fell into so ill hands, for this Livingston has been known many years in that province for a very ill man, he formerly victualled the forces at Albany in which he was guilty of most notorious frauds by which he greatly improved his estate, he has a Mill and a Brew house upon his lands, and if he can get the victualling of those Palatines who are so conveniently posted for his purpose, he will make a very good addition to his Estate, and I am persuaded the hopes he has of such a subsistence to be allowed by her Majesty were the Chief if not the only Inducements that prevailed with him to propose to Colo. Hunter to settle them upon his land, which is not the best place for Pine trees. . . . I am of the opinion that if the subsistence be allowed the consequence will be that Livingston and some others will get Estates, the Palatines will not be the richer."§

Governor Hunter appointed a board of Inspectors to govern the Palatines, and of this board Livingston was made president. It was provided that he was always to be a member of the board.‖

The representatives of the Palatines made the complaint that Livingston endeavored to get into his own hands the management of all supplies. His private interests, they asserted, in the subsistence of the Palatines rendered it improper for him to be president of the board of Inspectors.*

To the charges made against him, an answer was made by his many friends to the Lords of Trade that: "Mr. Livingston was always known to be a careful, industrious and diligent man, who by these more than by any other means hath got a considerable estate. It is true that he was accused by a faction in that country of having defrauded the Govern[t] of great sums when he subsisted the forces at Albany, but it is as true that he hath honorably cleared himself, having fairly pas't his accounts before a committee of Council upon which he obtained an Act of Assembly for releasing him and his estate that was under a sequestration until he hath so pas't his accounts; and that the reason that induced the Gov[r] to deal with him was not so much his choice as advantage because the said Livingston made most reasonable and fair offers. . . . That Mr. Livingston undertook this with a prospect of advantage is so certain that it might have created an ill opinion of him if it were otherwise."† From the subsistence contract Livingston obtained more than £15,000.‡

Sometimes even Hunter grew suspicious of Livingston and said rough things about him. Once, thinking Livingston had endeavored to make trouble for him in England, he wrote: "I know him to be the most selfish man alive. . . . I have suffered here by giving him too much countenance and if any Man has any advantage by the Palatines it is he."§ However, they continued on good terms, and after Hunter returned to England he was still devoted to Livingston and was able to assist him in many ways in his dealing with the government.

In the assembly Livingston was a faithful supporter of Hunter, who rewarded him (1715) by a confirmation of Dongan's patent to the Manor.‖ The additional privilege was given of sending a deputy to the general assembly, and in 1716 Livingston took his seat in the lower house as the representative of Livingston Manor. Two years later (1718) he was elected speaker, and held that position until 1725, when he resigned on account of old age. The house desired "that he would nevertheless assist them as often as his state of health would permit during his stay in town."

Hunter upon leaving recommended Livingston to Burnet, his successor, as a very useful and capable man in Indian affairs,¶ and he became Burnet's right hand man as he had been Hunter's. Burnet was persuaded by Livingston to recommend the appointment of his son, Philip, to succeed him as Secretary of Indian Affairs. The salary had been abolished, but Livingston, without the knowledge of Burnet, managed to get it restored for his son. This made the governor angry, and when later he tried to have his son-in-law made treasurer of the province, Burnet thought it was too much, and he expressed his opinion pretty freely concerning "old man Livingston's attempt to provide for his family at the public expense."*

In 1728 Livingston died. He had founded a strong family that for a hundred years was a power in New York politics, usually representing the popular party. He was a man of pleasant manners and insinuating address, and usually secured friendship at first acquaintance. Penniless when he came to Albany, he was soon in possession of small offices that gave him a steady income in ready money. This he saved and carefully invested in trade and lands, and was in a few years one of the wealthiest men of the province. He had a hard struggle against the exclusive ruling caste, but his fight was half won when he married into the Schuyler family. In business engagements he was honest and held faithfully to his agreements, but often his friends were alienated by his shrewd and sharp schemes for obtaining advantages for himself, regardless of others. He expected others to do as he did—look out for themselves. His ideas were essentially modern in every respect. In this he was the type of the future American citizen.

ONONDAGA COUNTY RECORDS—1792.

The word illiterate inserted after names in this record indicates that the individuals signed with an +.

In this year the immigration to the Onondaga country took on still greater strength and the transfers of title by ex-soldiers living farther east continued to be active. The greater part of the military lands was by the close of the year in the hands of speculators and investors who began to make contracts of sale with actual settlers. The demand for western titles brought into the market many claims held by heirs of former soldiers and the number of transfers of this sort during 1792 is very noticeable and is of special interest to geneaolgical workers.

Akins, James; late soldier Art. Regt., transfers to Ichabod Rogers of Sharon, Conn. Joshua Purdy, Anna Quick, wits. Date, Mch. 27.

Allen, Amasa, of Hebron, Washington Co.; late soldier N. Y. line, transfers to Ashur Huggins of Rupert, Vt. Acknowledged before Justice Sheldon at Rupert, Vt. Date, June 2.

Allen, George; late soldier Art. Regt., transfers to William Campbell, lot 23—Tully. Thomas Prentiss, Willard Strong, wits. Date, Jan. 4.

Barrick, Samuel; late soldier 1st Regt., deceased before Jan. 5, 1792, on which date his heir-at-law, Dirck Barrick of Unadilla, yeoman, transfers title in lot 65—Manlius. Dirck Barrick, on Mch. 8 deposes that he is eldest brother of decedent and that decedent has not left children or elder branch of family excepting himself, who might have legal title.

Bateman, John, of Quebec, Lower Canada; gentleman, late lieutenant Livingston's Regt., gives power-of-attorney to Elmer Cushing of Montreal to dispose of land. Date, Oct. 18.

Bebe, Boonerges, of New London, Conn.; late soldier Smith's company, 2nd Regt., transfers to Joseph Emerson of same place, lot 57—Marcellus. Date, Oct. 4.

Benson, William; late soldier in N. Y. line, deceased before March 15, 1792 on which date his heir, James Flitcher of Saratoga Co., transfers lot 95—Lysander. "Said Benson's mother was said Flitcher's full aunt, viz.; Sarrah Flitcher, the sister of full blood of Leonerd Flitcher, who was father of said James Flitcher, said Flitcher being cousin of full blood to the said William Benson, lately a soldier, deceased."

Blank, Cornelius, of Montgomery Co.; late of Van Schaick's Regt., transfers to John Hess of Montgomery Co. Acknowledged before Justice Thorn in Montgomery Co. Date, June 1.

Bloom, Albert, of Kinderhook Town; late soldier 1st Regt., illiterate, transfers to Elihu Gridley of same place. Date, March 24.

THE CHURCH OF EAST PHILIPPI.

By Emma J. Foster of Carmel, N. Y.

The history of this old church, the annals of which have just been published in the Record, runs back to 1743 when Rev. Elisha Kent was installed the first pastor by the "Fairfield East Association." At that time the adjoining parishes in the South Ward of Dutchess Co. (now Putnam Co.), N. Y., since known as Southeast and Carmel, were distinguished as East and West Philippi, being situated in the southeast part of the Highland Patent of the Philipse family.

They afterward bore other names, civil and ecclesiastical, but these were more often used for many years. These parishes formed for a time the double charge of Elisha Kent, but after 1750 he confined his labors to the church of East Philippi, where he resided.

The early settlers of this locality were principally from Cape Cod, and comprised numerous representatives of the families of Hall, Crosby, Doane, Paddock and Foster, and those with whom they intermarried. The pioneers came about 1740 and before 1745 they built a log meeting house about a mile east of Dykeman's Station on the Harlem Railroad, but all traces of it have disappeared, as well as the graves of the early worshippers that were near by.

Rev. Elisha Kent, who left his charge in Newtown, Conn., because conscientiously opposed to the existing religious establishment in that colony, purchased a farm of five hundred acres, Aug. 3, 1743, on the "Oblong," adjoining Philippi, and now within the bounds of Southeast. Mr. Kent was one of the most influential men of his section, and was repeatedly appointed to perform the most difficult and important ecclesiastical duties. He continued pastor at East Philippi until his death, July 17, 1776.

His grave and that of his wife, Abigail Moss, are in the old Southeast cemetery. He had five children, all of whom settled near him. Moss Kent, father of Chanceller Kent lived on a farm adjoining his father's, and the four daughters who married Charles Cullen, Malcolm Morrison, John Kane and Major Grant, all lived within a dozen miles of the East Philippi parsonage. The sons-in-law were royalists and the fortunes of war scattered the family, whose later members all became prominent in civil, judicial and scientific circles.

Before 1761 the congregation outgrew the log church and a frame building was erected about two miles east of the first, and near the residence of Mr. Kent. The exact date of this second church edifice is not known, but it was probably about 1754, and it continued in use until 1794. We find this brief record under date of March 10, 1784. "It was voted that Theodorus Crosby sweep the meeting house and see that the doors are kept shut for ye space of one year," for which he was to receive thirty shillings paid quarterly. The next year, "Jeremiah Burgess was chosen to sweep the meeting house 16 times a year well for 3 dollars." In 1794 the present church was built two or three rods south of the site of its immediate predecessor. "It was 6 feet each way larger" than the old one, being fifty feet long and 38 feet wide, and the original cost was £744, 13*s.*, 2*d.* This building was seriously damaged by fire in 1830 but was repaired on essentially the same plan; later an arched ceiling shut out the old galleries, no longer required for sittings. The pulpit stands between the entrance doors, and the late comer must face the assembled congregation as he enters. It stands on a rocky knoll facing westward, overlooking a wide expanse of farm land, a remote country church, but one with a rich and inspiring history. From the very first, its leading members were men of ability and forceful character, and the influences started here have been borne to many lands.

It has been a mother of churches, giving thirty-two of its members to form what is now the Presbyterian Church of Brewster, N. Y., and sending a colony to Phelps, N. Y., which organized the Presbyterian Church there. Fanny Crosby the famous hymn writer, was born in this little hamlet, and this was her first church home.

A long succession of godly and able men have filled the pulpit of the old church since the days of "Priest Kent," and six of them rest in the old cemetery near by. The old Sears' Burying Ground, so called because it lies adjacent to the farm and homestead of the late Archibald Sears, was given by Frederick Philipse for burial purposes. Here lie the early settlers: Crosbys Sears, Paddocks, Fosters, Bangs, Gage and Halls, all among those who planted this little colony in "N. Y. Province."

Many of the inscriptions are becoming illegible and the stones are broken or prostrate. Church and cemetery are in these later days, suffering from neglect and the inability of the little band that remain to keep the premises in order and maintain regular services in the old church.

Rev. Edward Allen, the last pastor, died July 5, 1900 and since then there have been many to say: "close the church," but it would be better that some whose forefathers founded this rural church, should make it possible that its doors should never be closed. Some of the old stones are broken, and all are becoming defaced by time; it has been only by the most untiring patience that many of the following inscriptions have been transcribed:

THE FAMILY OF DUPUIS, DE PUY, DEPEW, ETC.

By Frank J. Conkling, Brooklyn, N. Y.

5. A child, (not named), baptismal entry, New York Dutch Church, February 14, 1677. Perhaps Maria, who was sponsor with her father in 1702, about which time she married Abraham Hendrickse Lent of Tarrytown or thereabouts and had the following children: Aeltje, 1703; Hendrick, 1707; Catharina, 1711; Abraham, 1712; Geertje, 1715; Johannes, 1717; Margrietje, 1720; Sarah, 1722, and Jacob, 1725.

6. Sara, baptised at Flatbush, February 23, 1679. She became a member of the Tappan Church, April 15, 1702. The same church records her marriage, April 1704, with Herman Hendrickse Blauvelt. Their children were also baptised there as follows: Marritje, 1704; Frans, 1706; Annetie, 1708; Hendrick, 1710; Johannes, 1714; Abram, 1716; Isaac, 1718, and Maria, 1721.

7. Geertje (Gertrude), baptised at Flatbush, September 18, 1681. No further record.

8. Nicolaes, baptised in New York, October 17, 1686. He married Barbara ———, and had a son Willem baptised at Tarrytown, Mar. 24, 1713, who married Marritje ———, and had a son Nickolaas baptised also at Tarrytown, June 12, 1742. The latter Nicholas is entered among the enlistments of New York, year 1758. He is recorded as aged 16 and born in Westchester County. No further tracings of this line.

9. Mary, baptised in N. Y. C., March 3, 1689. The record of the parents is as follows: "Francois Puy and Annie Elsten." No further record of the child or the mother.

The only sons credibly traced to Francois Dupuis are the three given, viz: William, John and Nicholas. Unless John married again, and of this there is no evidence, he is not likely to have but the one child (Geertje). If Nicholas had other children, the records do not show them. So that to William must be charged the progenitorship of Senator Depew, and the further evidence to be offered makes the proposition seem more clear.

Family of William Depew.

1. Sara, born ———, married, N. Y. C., October 4, 1714, Willem Dill, Thiel or Teil. The latter name is probably the nearest correct. They had children baptised in New York and Tarrytown as follows: Geertruyd, 1716; Johannes, 1717; Dorathea, 1718; (William DePuw was god-father) and Elisabeth, 1723, (Thomas DePew and Cornelia his wife were God-parents).

2. Abigael. The following is the only item found of this probable daughter of Willem: "Pieter Consje and Abigael de-Pue" had daughter Sara baptised in New York, October 23, 1717. The sponsors were "Willem Thiel and Sara dePue."

3. Thomas, born ———, married Cornelia Lendel. The records give them issue as follows: 1. Catharina, bap. N. Y. C.,

March 15, 1719, (Sponsors, Hendrick Ryke, Willem Thiel and Margarietje Brestede). 2. Willem, bap. Tarrytown, April 23, 1723, (Sponsors, Willem Teil and Sara his wife). He married Rachel, daughter of Elias Concklin (?) and had child, Christina, bap. Tarrytown, April 20, 1745. 3. Thomas (?) "Tomes DePou and Jantye Kanckelie" (Jannetje Concklin) had son Jan bap. Cortlantown, June 23, 1747, born Sept. 9, 1746. 4. Jan,* bap. Tarrytown, April 17, 1733. Parents as given were, "Tames De-Peuw and wife Marietje." Question, was this Thomas Depew, Sr., and his second wife?

4. Anna, bap. Tarrytown, August 2, 1698. Did she marry Hendrick Van Ess?

5. Francois, bap. Tarrytown, August 20, 1700. His marriage in the Tarrytown church, June 3, 1727, is recorded as follows: "Frans DePew, j. m., en Maritje Van Thessel, j. d." The record also states that they were both born on the Cortlandt Manor. He being a resident there, and she a resident of Tarrytown. Subsequent records blended with traditional accounts of the family as given by Colonel Teetor in his article previously referred to, lends considerable color to the probable descent of Senator Depew from this couple, and more than likely through the eldest son, Hendrick. This line will be taken up again presently.

6. Pieter youngest son of William Depew, bap. Tarrytown, March 28, 1703, married before 1729 Elisabeth Blauvelt of Rockland County. They had issue: Abraham, born January 6, 1729 (m. Rachel Blauvelt), Petrus, born December 17, 1732 (m. Annetje Van Dalse), and Isaac, born March 25, 1740. These were all from Tappan church baptisms; but there is evidence that the family afterward settled in Dutchess County.† Abraham had a son, Petrus, born March 12, 1753, and probably a son Abraham, both in the Revolutionary War from Dutchess.‡ Petrus (son of Pieter) had a son, Petrus, born February 2, 1759, also in the Rev. War from Dutchess.‡

FAMILY OF FRANCOIS DEPEW AND MARITJE VAN THESSEL.

1. Hendrikus, bap. Tarrytown, April 27, 1728. Of him later. (Spo. Hendrik Van Texel and Antje do).

2. Anneke, bap. Tarrytown, August 21, 1730.

3. William (?) born 1732. Muster roll of Westchester County militia, 1758, says: "Born in Cortlandt," "Aged 26." There is no further record of William.

4. Elisabeth, bap. Tarrytown, April 23, 1734, married October 29, 1758, John Lent.

5. Abraham, bap. Tarrytown, April 10, 1736. Died young.

6. Sara, bap. Tarrytown, April 29, 1738.

7. Abraham, bap. Tarrytown, April 30, 1743. Some of his children may be found among a list of baptisms given later.

Returning to Hendrick, (son of Francois, of William, of Francois), the only child that the records credit to him is Abraham, who was baptised at Tarrytown, April 5, 1752. The mother's name was not mentioned. The sponsors were: "Frans Pue and wife," without doubt the parents of Hendrick. It is fortunate for this lineage, perhaps, that Abraham received so marked a distinction as to have had his baptism recorded. The other children of Hendrick, and it seems evident that he had others, were not so favored. We have marked Abraham, for Colonel Teetor tells us that Abraham was the name of the great-grand-father of Chauncey M. Depew, whom he would have descend from Nicholas the emigrant. To get down a little closer let us quote what the Colonel says: "Abraham Depew enlisted January 2, 1777, for the Revolutionary War, in Captain Jacob Wright's Company of the regiment, commanded by Col. Philip Van Cortlandt. He was promoted Corporal June 1, 1777, and was discharged January 3, 1780, on account of expiration of term of service. He married Catherine, a daughter of Captain James Kronkite, who was commissioned Captain October, 19, 1775, and served in the Third Regiment, Manor of Cortlandt, commanded by Col. Pierre Van Cortlandt."

* John D Pew, aged 24, born in Westchester, joined militia of that County in 1758. (Report of Historian, N. Y. S. Colonial Series, Vol. I.).

The church baptismal records of Tarrytown and Cortlandt, furnish very good grounds for confusion among the various Abrahams Depew. While there is an apparent lack of records in some directions, there seems to be a perplexing superfluity of fathers Abraham whose sons and daughters, to straighten out and place where they belong, would take a man with more wisdom than Solomon. It is doubtful if Colonel Teetor ever saw these records, therefore, had no occasion to pick out the family of Abraham the Ancestor of Doctor Depew, and place him genealogically. This he might have done had he taken the time, and with close application, but he has done well when he tells us that "Great-grand-father Abraham" married Catherine, daughter of Captain James Kronkite. Believing that this is from knowledge possessed by the family of the Senator, it is highly proper to accept it, and it enables us to select from the confusion a portion of the family belonging to this couple, which are found charged to them among the Cortlandtown records as follows: Esther, Bap. September 18, 1791; James Kronkright, born August 25, 1791, bap. 1793; Anne, born September 12, 1794; Elizabeth, bo. Feb. 6, 1796; Henry, born May 18, 1798. It is this latter name, Henry, that makes the connection with the family of Hendrick reasonably complete. The name is the same; Henry is Hendrick modernized, and Abraham followed the prevailing custom of the times in naming a son for his father. This clears away the confusion to a certain extent among the baptisms mentioned, and which will be given at the finish of this paper. Whether the Senator descends from James Krankhite, or Henry or some other son whom Abraham may have had, the writer will not assume to suggest. The war record of Abraham will stand. Colonel Teetor very likely consulted the Revolutionary Archives of New York State for his information. In the same regiment and in the same company with Abraham, were also John, Francis, Cornelius and Henry Depew. As they are unaccounted for, unless we except John, may they not be the unrecorded sons of Hendrick, and thus brothers of Abraham?

FROM THE CORTLANDTOWN BAPTISMS.

Abraham Depuw and Mary Cral (?) had child Sarah, born January 23, 1784. Sponsors, Herculus Lent and Wyntje Van Tessel.

Abraham Puw and Sarah Kranckheid, child Annatie, born August 19, 1783, bap. 1784. No sponsors to baptism. Question: Did Abraham, son of Hendrick, marry Sarah Kranckheid, for his first wife?

Abraham DePew and Catrina Krankheid, child Esther, bap. Sept. 18, 1791. Sponsors, Jacobus Krankheid and Esther Krankheid.

Abraham Depu and Catharina Kronkright, child James Kronkright, born August 25, 1791, bap. 1793. No Sponsors.

Abraham Depew and Catharine Kronkheit, child Anne, born Sept. 12, 1794. No sponsors.

Abram Depuw and Catrina Kronkheyt, child Elizabeth, born February 6, 1796. No sponsors.

Abram Depuw and Catrina Kronkheyt, child Henry, born May 18, 1798. No sponsors.

Four children of Abraham Depuw, (mother not mentioned), Anne, Francis, Joseph and Phebe. All baptised July 20, 1800. No sponsors.

Abraham Depuw and Amy Rehe, child Hester, born March 15, 1802. No sponsors.

FROM TARRYTOWN BAPTISMS.

Frans, Jude and Abraham, children of Abraham Pue and Sarah Pue. Date of baptism uncertain, but probably during the year 1784. These would seem to be children of Abraham, son of Francois. The wife of this Abraham is supposed to have been Sarah Conklin.

Among the Tarrytown marriages is found the following: "Elias DePew, j. m., born at Philadelphia and Catharina Storm, j. d., born at Philipsburg. Both living here." The marriage occurred in 1729. There is some doubt about the birthplace of Elias. The writer has been unable to place him among any of the lineages given.

ADDENDA.

Evidence of a traditional character comes to the writer from Mrs. L. E. Schoonmaker of New York City, a member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, that Nicholas and Francois Dupuis, the emigrants to New Amsterdam, were brothers, and as boys or young men were forced to flee from their homes in Paris in the year 1651, victims of the religious persecutions of their time.

This information is important, and the source, to Mrs. Schoonmaker, so straight, that the writer believes it should be accepted. The authority of Mrs.

Digitized by Google

Schoonmaker is her great-grand-mother, Maria, widow of Joseph DePuy of Rochester, Ulster County, son of Moses, and he of Nicholas the emigrant. Mrs. Schoonmaker was fourteen years of age when Maria DePuy died, and has always taken a great interest genealogically in the De Puy family; she has followed out many lineages from Nicholas through his son Moses, having that branch pretty well completed.

Her information is that Nicholas and Francois left a home of wealth and prominence during the night, upon learning through a friend of the family that they were to be made prisoners. She has in her possession a History of France, during the wars of 1648–1654, and a lantern, both of which are said to have been brought to America by her ancestor Nicholas. She also posseses a manuscript written by Dr. Cornelius E. DePew of New York City, who was drowned on the coast of South America in 1822. His manuscript is confirmatory in several important details, naming the year (1651) as the time Nicholas and Francois fled from Paris.

[If, after all, tradition is correct in naming Paris as the probable birthplace of Nicholas and Francois Dupuis, we may conclude that Artois and Calias were rather the homes for a time of these individuals respectfully, and not their places of birth as the records would imply.]

The writer is much gratified with the endorsement by Mrs. Schoonmaker of the salient points contributed in this paper.

A CONTRIBUTION TO A GENEALOGY OF THE FAMILY OF JOHN BOOTH, OF SHELTER ISLAND, N. Y.

By Lucy D. Akerly, of Newburgh, N. Y.

Among the early land transactions relating to Shelter Island, we find a deed delivering the same to Ensign John Booth and Capt. Nathaniel Sylvester, on the 23^{d} of Mch., 1652, "according to the English custom of turf & twig." Some of the early deeds no longer exist so that it does not appear why John Booth should have had a share in the possession of the Island, since the proprietors then were: Thomas Middleton, Thomas Rouse, Constant Sylvester, and Capt. Nathaniel Sylvester.

In 1656, Thomas Middleton purchased one quarter of Shelter Island (and also one quarter of Robins Island), from Thomas Rouse for John Booth who immediately resold the same to Capt. Nathaniel Sylvester for £700 (Southold Town Rec., East Hampton Town Rec., I., 96, 105. Moore's Hist. Address of 1890, Mallman's Hist. of Shelter Island).

We learn from the documents referred to above that John Booth had been in Barbadoes before he came to L. I. He is styled in deeds of land, etc., "Master," and "Gentleman," and was living in Southold as early as the 1st Feb., 1656, and is described as "late of Shelter Island."

Mr. J. Wickham Case mentions that John Booth was the only large land owner in the town who omitted to put his house home lot on record as exacted by the order of 1651. A list of his lands, however, made in 1685, will be found in the Southold Town Records. He lived "between Benjamin Youngs, east, and John Herbert, west."

We have no account of the wife of John Booth, and are even in ignorance as to her name. She and her child are mentioned on 20 Feb., 1656. There is abundant documentary evidence of the existence of four Booth sons, but we lack their birth dates, and the knowledge whether there were any daughters or not. Some of the Booth children were young in July, 1671, when they were refused baptism by the Puritan Minister John Youngs. John Booth very naturally declined to pay his tax for Youngs' salary, and his cattle were distrained in consequence. He then petitioned Governor Lovelace for relief. Although the latter could not lawfully interfere, he wrote a letter of admonition to the Rev. John Youngs. (Documentary Hist. of New York, III., 343, Brodhead's Hist. of the State of New York, II., 174). Evidently John Booth was not of the same "persuasion" as most of his contemporaries at Southold, it may be that he had leanings towards the Quakers.

The son of Thomas Rouse had his ears cut off for being a Quaker, the Sylvesters sheltered Quakers in their island home, while we find John Booth with John Corey and John Swazey (both of whom are said to have been Quakers), and several others, refusing to take the oath of allegiance at New Haven in 1659. All of them are reported to have taken the oath in 1660. (New Haven Col. Rec., 1653–'61, pp. 285, 351, etc.)

In 1675 John Booth was assessed on £147, and in 1683 on £131. In 1686 his family consisted of 3 males and 2 females. At least one of his sons was married at that time, and had his separate household.

JOHN[1] BOOTH, the elder died intestate, on, or about, the 15 Aug., 1689. Letters of administration were issued to his eldest son, Thomas Booth, on 6 Nov., 1691. (Pelletrau's Early L. I. Wills.)

Issue, perhaps not in order:

2. Thomas,[2] the eldest son d. Feb., 1706.
3. John,
4. Charles, d. 3 Dec., 1700, } Called sons of John Booth in a quitclaim deed from Saml King, in 1706.
5. Capt. William, d. 11 Mch., 1722, named as a son of John Booth in a bond of 1689, with his brothers, Thos. and Chas. Booth, above.

2. THOMAS[2] BOOTH (Ensign John[1]), of Southold, d. Feb., 1706. He resided on Robins Island Neck which he inherited from his father. (Deeds of land in Patchogue, Robins Island Neck, etc., in 1689.) He was assessed on £45 in 1683, and in 1686 had 4 males and 2 females in his family. Letters on his estate were issued to his son and heir, Thos. Booth, Jr., 11 Feb., 1706. (Liber 7, p. 290, N. Y. Wills.)

His wife Mary and all the children below are named in the Census of 1698:

3. ENSIGN JOHN[2] BOOTH (Ensign John[1]), of Southold, received from his father, John Booth, on 16 June, 1689, a deed for the home lot of the latter, and lands between Tom's Creek and the Fresh meadows, etc. (Southold Town Rec.) "He lived," said Mr. J. Wickham Case, "in his father's house from 1689 to 1715, after which time we have no authentic records, where he went, or when he died we do not know."

Ensign John Booth m. Hannah,[2] da. of Caleb[2] Horton (Barnabas[1]), by whom he is called son-in-law in his will made 30 Dec., 1699, proved 14 Oct., 1702. (Pelletreau's Early L. I. Wills.)

Children, named in Census of 1698:

Mehitable,[3] who m. (doubtless) John Barnes, in 1721.
John, who d. 31 Jan., 1707, or 17 Dec., 1705.
Obadiah, d. 2 Feb., 1718; he m. Elizabeth Paine, on 9 Jan., 1716, she was probably his 2[d] wife, as a child of Obadiah Booth's d. 2 Feb., 1713. His son Jonathan[4] Booth d. 4 Aug., 1720. (Salmon Record.)
Daniel, m. on 7 Dec., 1726, Rose Halloway, and d. 7 Oct., 1775, æ. 78 years. His children were John,[4] who d. 3 April, 1728; Daniel, who m. Ruth Terry, 11 Apl., 1757; James Wheelock, and Hannah. Daniel is the ancestor of Mrs. Lila J. (Booth) Carrington.
Hannah, who m. (perhaps) Richard Hudson, 8 Jan., 1723.
Patience, perhaps that Patience Booth who m. George Havens, in 1747.

4. CHARLES[2] BOOTH (Ensign John[1]), of Southold Town, who received on 27 June, 1689, from his father John Booth, according to the deed as follows: "Half of my upland in Corchaug, half of my meadow on the south side of Pehcconeck great Bay, or River, & one third of my meadow in Corchaug, as it lyeth in common & partnership between my sons, John, Thomas, & Charles Booth." (Southold Town Rec., II., 283.)

He also received a deed on 26 Jan., 1692, from Mary, widow of Benjamin Horton, of land at Southold which had belonged to her said deceased husband, and of land at Southampton, once the property of her father, James Hampton, grandfather of her 2[d] daughter, wife of Charles Booth. Half of the land could be sold with the consent of Charles Booth's brother-in-law, Thomas Lupton, of Southampton. (Southold Town Rec., II., 283, 285.*)

* James Hampton, of Southampton (formerly of Salem, Mass.), and his wife Jane, gave a deed, on 23 Aug., 1671, to their da. Ann, and her husband Benjamin[2] Moore (Thos.[1]), of Southold, who was b. in 1640, and d. on or about 15 May, 1690. Letters on his estate were issued to Jeremiah Viele (Vail), who had married the widow of Benjamin Moore. (Southampton Small Book of Deeds, and Pelletreau's Early L. I. Wills).

James Hampton "very aged and infirm," and his wife Jane, gave a deed on 5 June, 1673, to John Moppam (Mapham or Mappon), and his wife Mary, their daughter, mentioning, but not naming, John's two oldest daughters. These daughters were Mary Mapham who m. Thomas Lupton, and Abigail Mapham who m. Charles Booth.

The youngest daughter was probably Jean Mappon, who with Mary Horton, wid., was enum-David, b. in 1695; m. 10 Dec., 1717, Abigail Horton (Caleb,[3] Barnabas[1]). (Horton Genealogy).

Elisha, b. doubtless after 1698, has not been identified, but there are reasons for thinking that he was a son of Charles Booth above. Elisha m. on 27 Dec., 1722, Hannah Wilmot, and d. 28 Oct., 1725. His widow, da. of Alexander and Mary (Brown) Wilmot, of Southampton, L. I., went with her two sons below to reside in New Haven Conn. Issue:

EDITORIAL.

WITH the present number of this magazine is completed the publication of the Baptismal Records of the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City, down to the close of the year 1800. A reprint of these records in two volumes with indexes will soon be published. The first volume, covering the period from 1639 to 1730, with a complete index of names, is now ready for delivery, and the second volume will be issued as soon as the index can be prepared and printed. This publication containing as it does the names and dates of baptism of all the children, their parents and witnesses, baptised in the Reformed Dutch Church from its establishment in New York City in 1639, down to and including the year 1800, forms one of the most complete and valuable genealogical records ever published. It forms volume II. of the collections of the N. Y. Genealogical and Biographical Society, volume I. being the Marriage Records of the same church, and covering the same period. To the careful indexing, revision and printing of these records the late Dr. Samuel S. Purple devoted many years of able and painstaking labor, and no better guarantee of their accuracy could be given. The edition is limited to 100. Copies may be obtained from the Librarian at the rooms of the Society. Price, $15.00 per volume.

THE season of genealogical excursions is over for this year, and our enthusiastic friends are already returning to town with scrips full and pencils worn to the stubb. There are several kinds of these. The clergyman friend whose interest in the subject probably began in the book of Genesis and grew under the influence of his profession; the matronly friend who caught the fever from the emanations of a "Daughter's" badge, and now hunts ramifications; the juvenile genealogist who returns with a hopeless mass of detail that may never advance to classification; the professional genealogist whose clients anxiously await the results of summer excursions. Far and above these stand this and our kindred society of Boston, the New England Historic-Genealogical; for it is ours to serve as a guiding hand to all—it is ours to foster the spirit of genealogical research to a point beyond the personal, to foster the production of genealogical literature that shall serve a general purpose. Be it fondly to be hoped therefore, that these and kindred societies will take up the work of the coming season with their scrips full and pencils worn to the stubb.

OBITUARY.

KING.—At Woodbrook, New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y., on Monday, July 15, 1901, Sarah Chandler Goodhue, wife of Percy Rivington King and only child of Sarah Chandler (Parker) and the late Charles Clarkson Goodhue. Mrs. King leaves a son, Charles Goodhue King.

WEEKS, JOHN ABEEL, a member of this Society for more than thirty years, died May 23, 1901, at his residence at Cove Hill, Oyster Bay, L. I., aged eighty-one years. He was born January 7, 1820, in New York City and was the son of Robert Doughty Weeks and Julia Hall Brasher, daughter of Gasherie and Jane (Abeel) Brasher, all of New York City. His father was the first president of the New York Stock Exchange and was the seventh in descent from Francis Weekes, one of the earliest settlers of Oyster Bay, L. I.

He graduated from the New York University in 1839, and studied law with Judge George W. Strong of New York City. After being admitted to the bar he formed a partnership with Henry G. De Forest and opened a law office at 58 Wall St., then a dwelling house and subsequently one of the most famous office buildings in the city. Here he had his office for more than forty years. He made a specialty of real estate and gained a reputation for ability and acquaintance with old New York property. One of his own real estate holdings, which he early acquired and kept as long as he lived, was the old Clarendon Hotel, once the most fashionable hotel in the city. He gained wealth as well as reputation, but his principles were such that he refused to profit by the opportunity afforded him by the panic of 1873, of becoming one of New York's richest citizens. During this panic when securities were offered for almost nothing, he freely loaned his friends over $150,000, demanding only the usual rate for it, and thus saved them from ruin. It was estimated that this amount invested at the time in securities would have resulted in his making several millions of dollars.

He was one of the founders of the Union League Club, and one of its most zealous and honored members. With Le Grand Cannon and a few others he raised the first negro regiment in the State of New York, and he was appointed by the Union League to represent it at the funeral of Abraham Lincoln. He was a member of the New York Historical Society and at one time was at the head of its executive committee. It was through his exertions that this society secured the Durr collection of Dutch paintings, one of the most valuable of its possessions. He was also prominently connected with the charities of the city. He was the president of the House of Refuge for many years, and the work which he performed in the interest of this institution entitles him to a place among the city's philanthropists. He was elected a member of this society, Dec. 10, 1870.

He retired from the practice of his profession in 1880, to the old homestead at Cove Hill, Oyster Bay, built in 1809, near the site of the original homestead of his ancestor. Here he resided until his death in the enjoyment of his well earned leisure, and the friendship of such men as Wm. M. Evarts and Wm. Cullen Bryant with whom he was particularly intimate.

Mr. Weeks was married January 10, 1849, at New Bedford, Mass., to Alice Hathaway Delano, who survives him. She was born November 29, 1827, in New Bedford and was the daughter of Joseph Clement Delano and Alice Howland, daughter of Weston Howland, all of New Bedford, Mass. He leaves four sons and two daughters, all born in New York City: Arthur Delano, Henry de Forest, Frederick Delano, John Abeel, Jr., Alice Delano and Sarah Carnes who married June 3, 1893, Francis Laurens Vinton Hoppin.

NOTES.

WE have received the following errata for our July installment of the Philippi Records, from Miss E. J. Foster, of Carmel, N. Y., whose long acquaintance with, and researches in the history of Southeast, make her corrections authentic and valuable. Page 170, last line, Nanissa Elwell, should be Narrisa; p. 171, 7th line should be Rachel Newell; 12th line should be Desire Merrick or Merritt; p. 172, Mar. 1821, should be Demas Doane, and Lama Crosby should be Laura. EDITOR.

STUART C. WADE (formerly and for some time Librarian in charge of the Genealogical and Local History Department, New York Public Library, Lenox Branch), is collecting material for genealogies on the Morton, Beebe, Heath, Buckner, Maine and Atwell families, and will be glad to hear from members of these families or any persons having collections.

THE MULFORD FAMILY of Salem, Massachusetts, Long Island and New Jersey. The following note as to the ancestral home of this famous New England family may be of interest to the readers of the RECORD. It appeared in Devon Notes and Queries, Vol. I., part 5, January, 1901, page 119, in answer to a query of mine, and is signed Helen Saunders:

"Monuments in South Molton Church. One over the chancel doorway is very handsome, and has a rather pathetic interest, being in memory of the last member of a family long associated with South Molton, whose residence was at Garfield in the adjoining parish of Bishops-nympton. Inscription, translated: 'Beneath repose the mortal remains of John Molford, gentleman, a youth of seventeen years of age, whose ashes by the most evident display of Divine Love (for those whom the Gods love die young), mingle with those of his father, grandfather and great grandfather, too early having joined them, since by his death the only hope of the noble race of the Molfords perished. He died the 21st of June in the year of the Christian Era, 1692.'"

The British Museum has a quarto tract entitled "A sermon preached at the funeral of John Molford, Esquire, of Nymet Episcopi, in the Diocese of Exeter, who died (aged 18 years), the 21st day of June, and was buried at South Molton the 27th day of the same month. By Thomas Easton, A. M., Vicar of Nymet Episcopi." There is a large house in South Street, South Molton, known as Mulford House, now, October 3, 1900, occupied by a medical man. It formerly belonged to the Rev. J. Bawden. The Bishop Nympton registers can probably supply further information.

REPLY.

F. C. C.—Referring to your query in the July, 1899, RECORD, relating to the New Jersey Livingstons, the following information regarding Neil Livingston may be acceptable. My aunt has spoken of him as a Scotchman but she may have been mistaken. I know, however, that he married Hannah Howell, born Feb., 1713–14, died 1798, daughter of Daniel Howell and Mary Beaher. There were no children. In her old age she made her home in Trenton with her nephew Ellett Howell, who was my great-grand-father. A few silver spoons of hers and a table believed to have been hers, descended in the family. We also have a parchment slip, a subpoena issued in the 5th year of George III., to Neil Livingston, as witness in a trespass and ejectment suit before the Supreme Court at Burlington. I shall be glad of any information you may receive from other sources.

BOOK NOTICES.

BAILEY GENEALOGY. JAMES, JOHN AND THOMAS, AND THEIR DESCENDANTS. In three parts. Edited by Hollis R. Bailey, Somerville, Mass. The Citizen Company, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. vi–479.

This volume of Bailey genealogy was published by direction of the Bailey (Bayley) Family Association. Its three parts treat respectively of James Bailey of Rowley, John of Salisbury and Thomas of Weymouth, the three original settlers, and their descendants. These branches of the family have never before been printed. The arrangement is excellent, the subject matter being confined mostly to genealogical compilation, without the usual concommitant of fullsome biography. Of 295 copies originally printed, about 220 have been disposed of; the balance are for sale at $2.50 per copy and may be had of Mr. Hollis R. Bailey, 53 State St., Boston, Mass., Room 905. Mr. Bailey who is Secretary of the Family Association has compiled a careful, well indexed volume, attractive in its mechanical construction, and his labors have been assisted by Mrs. Gertrude E. Bailey and Mrs. Abbie F. Ellsworth, the former of whom compiled the index. We note with particular pleasure the system of typography which is so clear and methodical that it leaves no room for confusion. The seven reports of the annual gatherings from 1894 to 1900 inclusive, contain much valuable matter and are on sale at 50c. each, except 1894, which is 25 cents.

THE SHARPES. 8vo, cloth, pp. 212.

Mr. W. C. Sharpe of Seymour, Conn., has been conducting this valuable serial on the Sharpe Family since January 1893. The papers of about 4 pages each are published monthly and contain information supplemental to that published in 1880 by the same author. The present volume contains the papers from Jan., 1893, to Oct., 1896 inclusive, neatly bound in cloth.

REGISTER OF OLD SUFFOLK CHAPTER, SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, 1900. Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop, Mass. Printed for the Chapter (Boston 1901). 8vo, pp. 106, Ill.

Although this volume is primarily a regulation register and year book of the Society, it contains an interesting address on the battle of Chelsea, May 27, 1775, and is so marked on the cover. The battle of Chelsea has been passed over by historians, mainly, as Mr. Bosson says in his address before the Society, because of their partisan prejudices and the cause of the battle itself, namely, jealousy between the field officers. It was not however without importance, for Col. Putman, John Stark and Dr. Warren took part in the engagement and it resulted in the capture of four cannons, twelve swivels, and clothing and money belonging to a British schooner.

NOVA SCOTIA ARCHIVES, VOL. II. A CALENDAR OF TWO LETTER-BOOKS AND ONE COMMISSION-BOOK IN THE POSSESSION OF THE GOVERNMENT OF NOVA SCOTIA, 1713-1741. Edited by Archibald M. Macmeachan, Halifax, N. S., 1900. 8vo, pp. 270.

These documents, here published by authority of the Legislative Assembly, relate to the administration of government during Walpole's long peace, and illustrate the experiment of governing a French population by English ideas. The manuscripts are part of a large collection relative to the history of Nova Scotia which was gathered, arranged, indexed, bound and catalogued by the late Thomas Beamish Atkins, Commissioner of Public Records. They number over 535 volumes besides nine boxes of unbound papers, all preserved in the Province Building at Halifax.

NEW IPSWICH IN THE WAR OF THE REBELLION, WHAT ITS MEN AND WOMEN DID. By Mrs. L. A. Obear, New Ipswich, N. H., 1898. 12 mo, cloth, pp. 71.

Mrs. Obear writes us in sending this little book, "Had I realized that this volume, written to perpetuate the memory of the deeds done by the men and women of this little town, in the war for Freedom and for the Union, was also a record of what was done by many another town all over New England, I might and should have taken time and pains to make it better worth preserving as history." In reply we have to say that what is well done, be it large or small, is worth preserving as history. Mrs. Obear has given a brief and interesting account of her subject and closes the book with a list of her townsmen who served as far as their names could be obtained.

AUTHORS AND WRITERS ASSOCIATED WITH MORRISTOWN, WITH A CHAPTER ON HISTORIC MORRISTOWN. By Julia Reese Colles, 1895. Vogt Bros., Morristown, N. J. 8vo, pp. 407. Ill.

This excellent work has reached its second edition, the first having been published in 1893. Usually such books have only a local interest and lack more or less true literary finish. Not so however with Mrs. Colles' work. It is a story of a section rich in associations of distinguished names in the annals of literature, history and art; it is a story of a town that has a charm all its own, "the most beautiful within a hundred miles of New York" as Dr. Theo. L. Cuyler has said: it is a story handled skillfully, attractively and with a breadth that gives it a general and well merited value.

BECKWITH NOTES. WITH SOME ACCOUNT of ALLIED FAMILIES. Nos. 2 and 3. 8vo, pamphlets, 1899, 1901.

MARVIN BECKWITH AND HIS WIFE ABIGAIL CLARK, THEIR COLONIAL ANCESTORS AND THEIR DESCENDANTS. 8vo, pamphlets, 1899.

The latter of these constitutes number one of this series of pamphlets on the Beckwith family, compiled by A. C. and E. S. Beckwith of Elkhorn, Wisconsin. There is no particular limit set for the series. Marvin Beckwith was of Southington, Ct., and the work of publishing the pamphlet bearing his name was the outcome of a search for his parentage, which resulted in proving him third in descent from Matthew Beckwith of Old Lyme, son of Matthew who came over about 1645, and settled first in Hartford. Nos. 2 and 3 relate to other descendants of Matthew Beckwith not in Marvin's line. It is estimated that a full "muster roll" should include 7,000 names of which nearly 4,000 are still unknown.

HISTORY OF THE OLD ARGILLA ROAD, IN IPSWICH, MASS. By Thomas Franklin Waters. Publications of the Ipswich Historical Society, No. 9. Salem, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 43.

This pamphlet is published in order to record the list of land holders along the Old Argilla Road, and also to give brief sketches of the proprietors themselves. Numerous foot notes, referring to the five volumes of Ipswich Deeds, now deposited in the Registry of Deeds at Salem, afford opportunity and guidance to those who desire to make more extensive research in the matter.

THE HOTEL CLUNY OF A NEW ENGLAND VILLAGE, BY SILVESTER BAXTER, AND AN OLD IPSWICH HOUSE, BY W. H. DOWNES. Salem, Mass., 1901. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 53.

These papers constitute No. 10, of the publications of the Ipswich Historical Society, and give a most interesting account of the historic house now occupied by the Society itself. It is said to be the most pronounced specimen of colonial architecture and has been preserved exactly as it was in early times. It belonged originally to John Whipple and was built about 1650. The Ipswich Historical Society is indeed fortunate in being able to house itself amid such historic environment.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES ON THE FAMILIES OF DANIEL LANE, 2d, AND MARY GRISWOLD LANE, OF KILLINGWORTH AND WOLCOTT, IN CONNECTICUT. Compiled by four of their descendants. Elkhorn, Wisconsin, 1899. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 64.

Mr. A. C. Beckwith, who was instrumental in getting out the Beckwith Notes, has also assisted in the publication of this pamphlet, which is intended to correct errors regarding the Lanes of Wolcott, Ct., which have appeared in Rev. Sam'l Orcutt's History of that town, and in Rev. James H. Fitts' "Lane Genealogies." Its corrections are based on "conflict of authorities" relative more particularly to the early generations of a few allied families.

A HISTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY, OHIO, FROM ITS EARLIEST SETTLEMENT TO THE PRESENT TIME, INCLUDING CHARACTER SKETCHES OF THE

Digitized by Google

PROMINENT PERSONS IDENTIFIED WITH THE FIRST CENTURY OF THE COUNTRY'S GROWTH, AND CONTAINING NUMEROUS ENGRAVINGS AND ILLUSTRATIONS. By Nelson W. Evans and Emmons B. Stivers. West Union, Ohio. Pub. by E. B. Stivers, 1900. Imperial Octavo, sheep, pp. viii.–946.

This history of Adams County, Ohio, is far beyond the usual, conventional, machine-made county history, and deserves a prominent place in the historical literature of this country. While it is apparently limited in title, yet in fact it is largely a history of Southern Ohio. The county originally bordered on the Ohio, from Ripley, O., to Ashland, Ky., and extended the same width north to include Franklin County, occupying what is now fourteen or more counties. Adams was the fourth county organized and the third settled. Within its confines lies the Great Serpent Mound that has been such a source of interest; and that with other natural curiosities make the articles of this book on the geology and mineralogy of the county among its most interesting chapters. The work gives full accounts of the Indians, the settlements and lives of the Pioneers, of the Territorial Courts and those later, sketches of the Judges and members of the Bar, members of the Legislature and Congress. It gives revolutionary records and records of the Civil War, with an account of the Morgan Rebel Raid and the Cholera Scourges of 1835, '49, and '51. The operation of the underground railroad is fully described, and then follows township histories, prepared by Hon. E. B. Stivers. The Pioneer sketches were prepared by Mr. Evans of Portsmouth, Ohio, and form the great feature of the book. The edition is limited to 500 copies, of which there are now less than 100 for sale. The price is $10 per copy, and may be had of Mr. Nelson W. Evans, 135 W. Second St., Portsmouth, Ohio.

HOMES OF THE MASSACHUSETTS AMCESTORS OF MAJOR-GENERAL JOSEPH HOOKER. By Isaac P. Gragg, Brevet-Captain, U. S. Vols. Copyright 1900, by Isaac P. Gragg, Boston, Mass. 8vo, pp. 24, Ill.

The ancestors of "Fighting Joe" Hooker, according to this volume, were located in Wenham, Littleton, Westford, Greenwich and Hadley; and to the memory of their illustrious descendant, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is about to erect an equestrian statue on the grounds of the State House. Gen. Hooker was born in Hadley in 1814, in a house that was "located on that grand and ancient main avenue of Old Hadley named West Street." The book is artistically gotten up, nicely printed on good paper, and is profusely illustrated. Copies are obtainable of Isaac P. Gragg, No. 53 State St., Boston, Mass.

ANCESTRY AND DESCENDANTS OF SYLVANUS EATON, JACOB SWETLAND AND CHRISTOPHER REYNOLDS. Compiled by Mrs. Jane Adaline (Eaton) Wight, Springfield, Mass., 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 69.

The title of this work explains its scope, and is put forth as a stimulus to someone to compile a more extended genealogy of the Eaton family.

CIVIL AND MILITARY LIST OF RHODE ISLAND, 1647–1800. A LIST OF ALL OFFICERS ELECTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, FROM THE ORGANIZATION OF THE LEGISLATIVE GOVERNMENT OF THE COLONY TO 1800. Compiled from the records by Joseph Jencks Smith, Providence, R. I. Preston & Rounds Co., 1900. Small quarto, cloth, pp. vii.–659.

The compilation gives a list of all officers, civil and military, appointed by the General Assembly from the organization of the Colony under the first Charter in 1647 down to 1800, including all the Judicial Officers, Clerks of Courts, Sheriffs of Counties, Justices of the Peace, Conservators of the Peace, Colonial Agents, Commissioners for various purposes, and hundreds of minor officers, even ferrymen. The lists of military officers show the gradual development of the militia system of the Colony, the officers of the Island and of the Main during the Indian and Colonial wars, the officers during the Revolutionary war, not only those of the regular brigades, but of the troops hastily raised on occasions of alarms, and for guard duty. Also the officers of the independent chartered companies, as the Providence Grenadiers, North Providence Rangers, Scituate Hunters, Kingston Reds, Cranston Blues, Captain General's Cavaliers, Smithfield Federal Protectors, and many others. It includes over fifty thousand names, and cannot fail to prove of great value alike to those interested in genealogy and in the study of our colonial institutions. The price is $7.50 net, and may be had of Preston & Rounds Company, 98 Westminster Street, Providence, R. I. A second volume will shortly be issued, giving all the officers of the Continental service from 1800 to 1850, whose appointments were made by officers in the field or by the Continental Congress, also all officers in the regular army or navy, 1789 to 1850, as well as those engaged in the War of 1812 and in the Mexican War. Of special importance in the forthcoming volume will be the list of officers on vessels from Rhode Island engaged in privateer service during Colonial, Revolutionary, and the War of 1812, with full statistics regarding them.

THE HAMLIN FAMILY. A GENEALOGY OF CAPT. GILES HAMLIN OF MIDDLETON, CONN., 1654–1900. By Hon. H. Franklin Andrews. Pub. by the author, Exira, Iowa, 1900. Imperial Octavo, cloth, pp. 479.

In the January, 1899, issue of this periodical we reviewed a 130 page pamphlet on this same family by the same author. It was published as part one of a larger work intended to be issued serially. The present work covers a different ground, giving the descendants of Capt. Giles Hamlin, who settled in Middleton, Conn., about 1754. At the time the above mentioned pamphlet was published, Mr. Andrews announced that he had over 7,000 pages of manuscript relating to the descendants of James Hamblen, who settled at Barnstable, Mass., and over 1,000 pages of manuscript giving descendants of Giles Hamlin, besides over 1,000 pages of records of other Hamlin families. We believe it is his intention to continue the first in pamphlet parts, the second, we have before us in splendid book form, and we shall hope to see the third later. The volume shows careful research and painstaking labor, both absolutely assured by a glance at the very full index. Copies may be had of the author at Exira, Iowa, who also is publisher of the Andreus Family, $2.50, and the Hamlin pamphlet, $2.00.

A GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF THE CHAPPELL, DICKIE, AND OTHER KINDRED FAMILIES OF VIRGINIA, 1635–1900. Compiled by Phil. E. Chappell. Revised edition, 1900, Kansas City, Mo. Hudson-Kimberly Print. Co., 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 382, Ill.

The manuscript of this genealogy was first turned over to the printer in 1895, and shortly after appeared the first edition. The compiler says he thought at that time that the work was forever done, though he was well aware of its incompleteness. With the distribution of that edition, however, came volumes of additional information, the discovery of lost tribes, an added sense of duty—and now a revised edition. Its pages are the result of five years of painstaking research added to the original years of labor in producing the first edition, and are nearly double the quantity of the original volume. No attempt has been made to trace the family in England, for the compiler has "confined himself to a new family in a new world, and to tracing down its descendants, rather than treat of an old family in an old world, and trace back its ancestors." Its contents give origin of the family and name; first settlement in Virginia; the families of Bennett, Chappell, George, Andrew, John, and Capt. John, Thomas, Thomas the second, Samuel, Christopher and Robert; the Edgefield branch of South Carolina, the Georgia branch, the Rough Creek branch, the Chappells of Ohio and Indiana, the Richland branch of South Carolina, the Texas branch, and the Tennessee branch. In addition the volume gives full information of the allied families of Dickie, Wade, Compton, Pate, Yarlington and Adams. The volume is an excellent one, well printed and neatly bound; it leaves little room for criticism, except that it lacks an index. Copies may be obtained by addressing the compiler at Kansas City, Mo.

ARCHIVES OF MARYLAND. MUSTER ROLLS AND OTHER RECORDS OF SERVICE OF MARYLAND TROOPS IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, 1775–1783. Baltimore, 1900. Small quarto, cloth, pp. 736.

Digitized by Google

This most valuable contribution to the early annals of Maryland was published by authority of the State, under direction of the Maryland Historical Society, and forms volume XVIII. of the State Archives. The publication was first undertaken in 1897, from papers found in the possession of John Hopkins University, and was continued by the aid of other manuscript sources which appeared from time to time. The accuracy and honesty of the work are attested by the assistance rendered by persons and societies of the State who are specially interested in such productions. The volume contains early and independent companies; Flying Camp papers; Musters of Maryland Troops, 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, Rawhiegs' Regts., and the German Regt.; Miscellaneous Maryland Line papers; Muster and Pay Rolls, 1780–3, 1786; Artillery Rolls; Lee's Dragoons, Pulaski's and Armand's Legions; Miscellaneous Naval Rolls; Escaped and Exchanged Prisoners; Return of Invalids; appendix and an index of 74 pages, 4 columns to the page.

YEAR BOOK OF THE HOLLAND SOCIETY, 1901. Prepared by the secretary, Theo. M. Banta. 8vo, cloth, pp. 219.

One of the best yet published by this Society. It contains list of officers, the Holland Society and Columbia University, the Poughkeepsie Dinner, the 16th Annual Banquet, addresses, poems, account of Queen Wilhelmenia's Wedding and the Society's proceedings relative thereto, "In Memoriam," Dutch Words, Phrases, etc., Dutch Records in N. Y. City Clerk's Office, Grants from the Indians and the West India Co., Conveyances in the City of New Amsterdam, Indexes of Grantees and Grantors, Mortgagees and Mortgagors, Apprenticeships, Inventories, etc., Constitution, By-Laws, List of Members, and Deceased Members. The volume contains a fine half-tone frontispiece portrait of Rev. Henry Van Dyke, the outgoing president.

A MEMORIAL OF THE TOWN OF HAMPSTEAD, NEW HAMPSHIRE. Illustrated. Compiled by Harriette Eliza Noyes, Boston, Mass. Geo. B. Reed, 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. xi.–468.

Miss Noyes was Historian of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Town's Incorporation, July 4th, 1899, and for her efforts at that time won much praise and admiration. In this volume she has presented a local history well supported by existing authorities, and the story is told without vainglorious attempts at rhetoric, simply a narration of facts. The work is commendable for its authenticity, and its contents are as follows: Various petitions relative to the Town's incorporation, charter and annals concerning the "old meeting house;" historical sketch of the town by Rev. John Kelly, 44 years minister in the town; full proceedings of the centennial celebration, July 4, 1849, with addresses; full proceedings of the 150th anniversary of the town's incorporation, July 4, 1899; chapter descriptive of Hampstead, England; educational work in Hampstead, including list of natives of the town graduating from college and elsewhere; religious work in town, from the pioneers to 1900, various church societies, other denominations; the military, giving names and interesting facts of Hampstead, men who have served in the Colonial, Revolutionary, and later wars, to the Spanish-American, the diary of Captain John Calef, kept at Ticonderoga in 1777, etc.; cemetery inscriptions from ten cemeteries in town; historical and genealogical notes, parental tributes, and many interesting facts pertaining to the families of the town; list of town officers for 150 years, to 1900, births, marriages and publishments as recorded on the first book of records, about 1800; descriptive map of the town and general index. Copies, costing $3.00, may be had of the author, Westville, N. H.

A HISTORY AND GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF THE ALLING-ALLENS OF NEW HAVEN, CONN., THE DESCENDANTS OF ROGER ALLING, FIRST, AND JOHN ALLING, SEN., FROM 1639 TO THE PRESENT TIME. Compiled by George P. Allen, New Haven, Conn. Price, Lee & Adkins Co., 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 317.

Mr. Allen has been engaged for several years in the compilation of this work, and though he does not claim that its pages contain a complete genealogy of the descendants of Roger and John Alling, yet he has gathered a mass of material containing thousands of names. The work, as is usual in genealogies, gives the personal history of the early generations, and carries their descendants to the present time by a system of notation that is clear, concise, and readily followed. There are about twenty half tone portraits, and the mechanical construction of the work is well done, the whole closing with copious indexes. The cost of the book is $3.00 per copy, and may be had of the compiler at North Woodbury, Conn., or of the publishers.

DESCENDANTS OF ELISHA WARE, OF WRENTHAM, MASS., TO JAN. 1ST, 1896. 8vo, cloth, ob.

The compilation of this little work began about 1883, and is arranged here in chart form with illustrations and descriptive matter appended. The first four generations have been taken by permission from The Descendants of Robert Ware, by Miss Emma F. Ware. Elisha was of the fourth generation, and the second chart gives his descendants to the ninth generation. The book has never been sold but is supplied gratis by Mr. F. W. Mann of Milford, Mass., the compiler, who does so to those interested. He assures us that it was compiled "with more than usual care and accuracy," and says that the illustrations are from photographs taken by himself. The last page but one contains numerous fac-similies of signatures.

HISTORY OF BELFAST, MAINE, TO 1825. By Dr. Herman Abbott. With an Introduction and Notes by Joseph Williamson, Belfast. Miss Grace E. Burgess, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 18.

The title explains the work. It was reprinted from the Republican Journal of Jan. 25, Feb. 1, 8 and 15, 1900, and is printed, not published, for Mr. Joseph Williamson of Belfast. It is an interesting pamphlet and closes with quite some vital statistics.

EZRA BELLOWS OF LUNENBURG, MASS., AND SPRINGFIELD, VT., AND HIS DESCENDANTS. By Thomas Bellows Peck, 1901. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 14.

These pages are published as supplementary to the sketch on page 609 of the Bellows Genealogy, 1898, by Mr. Peck, and are here reprinted from the Genealogical Quarterly Magazine.

THE GORHAM FAMILY IN RHODE ISLAND. Notes on the Providence Line by Georgiana Guild. Bristol Branch by Henry S. Gorham, Boston. David Clapp & Son, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 11.

These statistics were originally compiled to correct some errors already published, and have been enlarged to include the Bristol Branch. These pages were reprinted from the New England Register for April, 1900.

REPORT ON CANADIAN ARCHIVES. By Douglas Brymner, 1900. Printed by order of Parliament, Ottawa, 1901. 8vo, paper, pp. 540.

Mr. Brymner has devoted many years to this work, and has done much to preserve the annals of our hyperborean neighbor. The present volume contains statistics on education, emigration, State papers of Upper and Lower Canada, 1832–1835. The whole is an appendix to the report of the Minister of Agriculture.

THE BENNETT, BENTLY AND BEERS FAMILIES. By S. B. Bennett of Pittston, Pa. (1899). 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 50.

These three families converge in the compiler, and so his original intention to give only the Bennetts grew threefold. Mr. Bennett gives this little pamphlet to the genealogical world as the result of labor conducted during the intervals of a busy life, and regrets that time and opportunity have not afforded him more. The immigrant ancestor was from Wiltshire, where the seat of the Bennetts is at Pitthouse; just before the Revolutionary War, the family removed to the Wyoming Valley in Pennsylvania, where their history became interwoven with the stirring events of that locality. Mr. Bennett tells his story with a style that is most entertaining and likewise profitable.

THE MACDONOUGH-HACKSTAFF ANCESTRY. By Rodney Macdonough, Boston, 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. viii.-526.

This handsome, illustrated work has just been issued from the press of Samuel Usher, Boston. The volume consists of a series of fifty-five articles on the writer's ancestors from the time of their arrival in this country to the present day. An article has been written on each male ancestor in which, in addition to what is known of his wife, is contained all the information obtainable as to his birth, marriage and death; where he lived; purchase and sale of property; civil offices held; naval and military service; children; and such events and particulars in his life as would be interesting to his descendants. Although the volume is printed for private distribution, it contains much that will be of interest to genealogists in the shape of wills, inventories, extracts from and illustrations of original records, etc. The articles include the families of Barker, Bigg, Burrowes, Coit, Cole, Denning, Garr, Griggs, Hackstaff, Hallock, Hawxhurst, Hopkins, Laroux, Macdonough, Morrell, Mould, Pratt, Priest, Reddocke, Shaler, Sinclair, Spencer, Stocking, Stow, Swazy, Townsend, Vance, Williams. But three or four of the twenty wills and eighteen inventories here given have ever been printed before. The illustrations include numerous ancient documents of much interest and value. There is a full set of ancestral charts and a complete index of persons and places. Probably the most valuable portion of the work, historically, is that devoted to Commodore Thomas Macdonough, U. S. N., the writer's grandfather. This article contains the greater part of an autobiography left by the Commodore which has never been made public. The article is preceded by a full page half-tone reproduction of the Stuart portrait of Commodore Macdonough, and also contains half-tone, full page illustrations of the battle on Lake Champlain, September 11, 1814, the autograph dispatch from the Commodore to the Secretary of the Navy announcing the result of the engagement, and the obverse and reverse of the gold medal granted by Congress. A limited edition of 300 copies, printed from type on high grade paper, wide margin and uncut; bound in linen; $5.00 a copy. After January 1, 1902, $7.50 a copy. Order from Rodney Macdonough, 205 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

HISTORIC DUXBURY IN PLYMOUTH COUNTY, MASSACHUSETTS. By Laurence Bradford, Boston. The Fish Printing Company, 1900. 8vo, cloth, pp. 128, Ill.

The object of this book is to give a brief sketch of the town of Duxbury, mostly for the tourist and summer visitor. Mr. Bradford has derived his information mostly from the long residence of his family in the town, and from his acquaintance with the last generation of the town's inhabitants. The volume contains chapters on the early settlement and settlers, Capt. Myles Standish, Elder William Brewster, John Alden, the Standish monument, old burial places, ship building, roads, maps, old houses, antiquaries, Kingston and Green Harbor, the French cable, 250th anniversary, and the clam industry. It is an historic old town. whose early days partook of the romance of the "Plimouth Plantation," and to its memory poets, orators and historians have contributed some of their best efforts. Copies of the book may be had of the author at Millbrook, Mass.

EARLY RECORDS OF BAPTISMS, MARRIAGES, DEATHS, AND MEMBERSHIP OF THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, EAST HAMPTON (CHATAM), CONN. Middletown, Conn. Pelton & King, 1900. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 150.

The above title explains the scope of this work. The records are copied from a diary kept by the Rev. Mr. John Norton, pastor of the church from 1748 to 1778, which copy was made by Mr. Martin L. Roberts from the original now in possession of a Dr. Cornwell of Brooklyn, N. Y. It is composed of small sheets of writing paper sewed together, and covers the period from April 18, 1764, to March 24, 1772. The remaining records of his pastorate are supposed to have been destroyed.

THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM TOWNE, WHO CAME TO AMERICA ON OR ABOUT 1630, AND SETTLED IN SALEM, MASS. Compiled by Edwin Eugene Towne, Newtonville, Mass. Published by the author, 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. 372, Ill.

Another excellently compiled genealogy. They come upon us thick and fast, and at the present rate there will be left in a short time few families that have not been "written up." The present volume is conducted on the Record and Regtster plan, and the typography and press work are fine. The historical and genealogical records have been obtained from the usual sources of town, church and court records, and also from those collected by the late William B. Towne, who published in the New England Register, some years ago, an article on the origin of the name in England. The present work reprints that article, and gives reprints of wills, the genealogy of the family for ten generations, records of southern families, miscellaneous branches, historical notes, and seven indexes most carefully prepared. The volume is embellished with thirty-six portraits, and is a model of genealogical compilation.

NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY BULLETINS, NO. 53, DEC., 1900; NO. 56, FEB., 1901. Compiled by Charles A. Flagg. L. 8vo, paper, pp. 175–283, 289–558.

The first of these is a bibliography of Connecticut Local History compiled from materials in the New York State Library, and gives the dates of incorporation of each town. The arrangement is by counties, first, then alphabetically by towns. Works relating to the State at large are grouped at the beginning. The second is a bibliography of New York Colonial History from its discovery to 1776, confined to the territory within the present limits of the State. In addition to the citation of works indicated by the title, there are indexes and calendars of manuscripts, many church histories, and reprints of the city charters and legislative journals. Both works are invaluable contributions to the reference shelf.

ATWATER HISTORY AND GENEALOGY. Compiled by Francis Atwater, Meriden, Conn. The Journal Publishing Co., 1901. 8vo, cloth, pp. 492, Ill.

In the "wee sma'" hours the compiler of this genealogy has poured over the notes accumulated, and now in the light of day comes forth a volume most creditable in its result, another bright and shining example of a labor of love. After a sketch of the family in England, it proceeds to an account of the family in America, from the two sons of John Atwater of Boyton, England, namely Joshua and David, who came to this country and settled in New Haven about 1638. The second part of the work gives the descendants of David in genealogical notation. The work concludes with a monumental index covering forty-three pages, three columns to the page. The compiler hopes that persons interested in the family will criticise and correct his work, and announces that pages will be printed from time to time to keep it up to date.
